Challenges House Ways And Means Chairman To Explain Reductions To Homeless Shelters

Finn Concerned Over Proposed $2M Cut In Homeless Services

JOSEPH FINN

Joe Finn, executive director of the Massachusetts Housing and Shelter Alliance (MHSA), has issued a challenge to State Representative John Rogers, Chairman of the House Ways & Means Committee, to visit any homeless shelter program across the state to explain how their programs can survive a $2 million cut in funding.

Finn, former director of Father Bill's Homeless Shelter in Quincy, was responding to the recent release of the FY '05 proposed budget from the House Ways & Means Committee. The proposed budget cut $2 million, approximately 7 percent, from 4406-3000, the line item that funds shelter, day programs, and services for homeless individuals.

This cut follows a 15 percent cut two years ago. With this proposed cut, $9 million has been cut from homeless shelters for individuals across the Commonwealth since 2002, Finn said.

"Not only will this eliminate emergency resources of last resort for mentally ill people and others living on the street," Finn said, "but it will drive up costs across all systems of care. Where will people go - to emergency rooms or correctional facilities? They will seek out other types of costly services just to survive."

Finn challenged Rep. Rogers to visit any program funded through 4406-3000 at the Chairman's convenience. In his letter to Rep. Rogers, Finn stated: "I will meet you in Pittsfield to visit Barton's Crossing, operated by the American Red Cross, the only resource for homeless individuals in the Berkshires; I will meet you at Father Bill's Place in Quincy, a community-based shelter funded for 75 beds, that sleeps people in its dining room and serves up to 125 an evening; I will meet you at Market Ministries Shelter in New Bedford where Sister Rose Gallogly struggles daily to meet the needs of New Bedford's poorest people."

There are approximately 50 programs funded under this line item, including shelter, day programs, and health services. The last round of cuts resulted in closed day programs and the elimination of other services that move people out of homelessness, Finn said.

Finn insists that this is not meant as a symbolic gesture. He hopes that Chairman Rogers takes the challenge seriously and views this as an opportunity to take a thoughtful look at the issue.

"I really think we can end this problem with the appropriate housing and services. We won't end it by simply ignoring it," he added.

MHSA is a statewide homeless advocacy alliance of 87 agencies serving homeless people throughout Massachusetts.

1,600 Volunteers Roll Up Their Sleeves

'Cleaner, Greener' Clears 100 Tons Of Debris

An estimated 1,600 Quincy residents and volunteers rolled up their sleeves last weekend and pitched in for the sake of making the city cleaner and greener.

A record-breaking turnout of volunteers removed about 100 tons of debris from the city's beaches, parks, schools and other public places.

The Park Department coordinated the effort with the assistance of the Department of Public Works (DPW) and Recreation Department. Both the Park Department and DPW participated in the event cleaning up at various locations and undertaking the labor of hauling the tons of debris for disposal. BFI also donated a truck that was needed to assist in the task of removing the refuse from the various cleanup locations.

Following the event, Mayor William Phelan hosted an appreciation cookout attended by more than 1,000 volunteers who participated in the cleanup.

This was the first year the city had a major corporate sponsor. Aviva Life Insurance, signed on for the event. The North Quincy based Aviva donated $5,000 for the event and a team of more than 50 employees gave their time to spruce up Commander Shea Boulevard and Squaw Rock Park.

Other areas in the city that were cleaned up include: Perry Beach, Baker Beach, Parkhurst Marsh, Shore Side Road Beach, Post Island Beach, Avalon Beach, Faxon Park, The Bog, Bishop Field, Lincoln-Hancock Elementary School, Wollaston Beach, Butler Pond, Sailors Pond, Freedom Park, Merrymount Park, Nickerson Beach, Orchard Beach and the Squantum Causeway.

"I applaud the efforts afforded by Cleaner, Greener and the outpouring of support was overwhelming," said Phelan.

Based on the turnout of last Saturday's event, Phelan said he is confident that his newly announced "Planting Pride in Quincy" campaign will follow suit.

"Planting Pride in Quincy" is the city's newest mantra and by-line for the recent entry in the America in Bloom contest. The contest matches cities of familiar size nationwide as they compete for national recognition based on their commitment to beautifying and revitalizing the community.

Judges will visit the city in late July to evaluate the city based on floral displays, tidiness, landscaped areas, urban forestry, heritage, community involvement, turf and groundcovers, and environmental effort.

City's Beacon Hill Delegation Tells Council:

No Increase Seen In Local State Aid

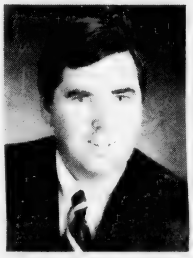
By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Quincy is expected to receive level funding in local aid from the state for Fiscal 2005, members of the city's state delegation told the city council Monday night.



Sen. Michael Morrissey, along with Reps. Bruce Ayers, Ron Mariano and Stephen Tobin provided an update on the state's budget situation and how it relates to Quincy.

Although the state economy and revenues have perked up a bit, most cities in towns will not see any marked increase in state aid, they said. Quincy is expected to receive $82,773 million in state aid for Fiscal 2005, which is the same amount as last year. Since fiscal 2003, the city has sustained approximately $7 million in local aid due to the economic downturn.

The House recently passed its fiscal 2005 budget, and the focus will now shift to the Senate. Morrissey said the Senate could take up its version of the budget in a few weeks.

But legislators said that both Houses have pretty much agreed on the local aid numbers for 2005.

"It's better to receive level funding rather than any cuts," said Tobin. "Can we always use more? certainly. At this point we are looking at a very delicately balanced situation."

MICHAEL MORRISSEY

BRUCE AYERS

RON MARIANO

STEPHEN TOBIN

Mariano said state tax revenues are up slightly this year, but it is still not enough to keep up with rising fixed costs, which eat up a large portion of the budget. State spending for fiscal 2005 is still likely to face a cash shortfall, he said.

"We can't say last year also we were able to keep what you had last year," Mariano told the council.

Morrissey called it a "victory" for Quincy to receive level funding.

"We are trying to help the cities and towns weather the storm under difficult financial times," said Morrissey. "I would call it a victory it's a monumental effort

Hero Officer, Others To Be Honored At Law Day Ceremonies

Quincy Police Officer Robert Tapper, a hero of a Boston gun battle with a holdup man, will be one of those honored at Law Day ceremonies today (Thursday) at Quincy District Court.

The annual Law Day address will be delivered by Hubie Jones, the former dean of the Boston University School of Social Work and civil rights activist.

Officer Tapper will receive the Robert F. Dana Distinguished Service Award for Law Enforcement from William Keating, the Norfolk County District attorney.

He is being cited for playing a key role in the apprehension of a man who held up the Burger King in Quincy Point and fled to Boston via the Expressway.

The chase ended when the man's car flipped over in Boston and he got out firing at his police pursuers. He was shot by the police.

Other winners of the Dana Award include:

Braintree Officers Brendan McLaughlin and Donal Curtin for their actions in talking a 17-year-old youngster out of a suicide attempt while he was holding a knife to his midsection.

Weymouth Lt. Richard Gimes and Officers Scott Harrington, Matthew Tinin and Robert Winer for disarming a knife-wielding man in such a manner that no one was hurt.

Holbrook Officers Jeanine Matott and Keysha Bowen for their part in disarming a distraught man who was bent on harming himself by contacting him by phone in another town.

Other Law Day awards and their recipients include:

Mark S. Charbonnier Award - Sgt. Stephen F. Long.

Alfred P. Malaney Award - Mayor William Phelan as the Quincy Bar Association's Man of the Year.

Quincy Court Jason Feldman Outstanding Citizen Award - Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Business Association.

Rabbi Jacob Mann Social Justice Award - Rev. William R. McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John the Baptist Church and founder of Father Bill's Place.

James McIntyre Humanitarian Award - Robert H. Quinn, former state attorney general and sponsor of the Quinn Bill to help educate police officers.

Two awards will not be announced until the Law Day ceremonies are underway. They are the Timothy J. Spillane Outstanding District Court Prosecutor Award and the Dennis F. Ryan Student Essay Contest Awards.

Mark S. Coven, the first justice of the Quincy District Court, will deliver remarks and introduce Hubie Jones, the Law Day speaker.

Then Coven and Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin will acknowledge and welcome back those who took part in Operation Iraqi Freedom.

The Rev. William McCarthy will give the invocation and the Rev. Richard Brondyke of the Fort Square Presbyterian Church will deliver the benediction.

City, State Officials In Tribute

Paul Harold Bridge Dedicated With Praise

The Quincy Center Concourse bridge is now the Paul Harold Bridge dedicated Sunday in memory of one of Quincy's most popular political figures.

City and state officials participating in the ceremonies warmly praised Harold whose public service career spanned 27 years as a city councillor, council president, state senator and Norfolk County register of deeds.

He died Aug. 12, 2002 after a long battle with cancer at age 53.

Following the dedication some 280 runners and walkers took part in the Paul Harold Memorial Road Race which raised $20,000 for scholarships to high school seniors and to support youth sports, causes close to Harold in his life.

Mayor William Phelan who initiated the naming of the bridge for Harold through a homerule petition approved by the City Council and the state legislature noted, "The first section of the concourse was one of Paul's efforts to revitalize downtown Quincy."

State Transportation Secretary Daniel Grabauskas recalled being a staffer in the state senate when Harold was a senator.

"He loved the city of Quincy and he stood up and was tall" . . . and was . . . "dedicated to making the world a better place," Grabauskas said.

Congressman William Delahunt cited Harold's appreciation of history and added: "I'm sure if he were with us today, he would say we need to complete this concourse."

The plan is to extend the concourse from the bridge in the Ross parkinway to the Southern Artery.

Senator Michael Morrissey noted projects such as the MBTA Red Line and the Burgin Parkway have improved the quality of life in Quincy.

In a tribute to Harold, he said: "Paul Harold was a dedicated public servant and had a long history of being involved in monumental transportation issues that improved the quality of life for people in Quincy and the South Shore. Paul loved transportation issues. He loved helping people and he also loved the sport of running."

Massachusetts Highway Department Commissioner John Cogliano, a native of Canton, had this tribute: "Being from the South Shore myself, I think it's fitting to name such a prominent bridge after a man who contributed to the entire region.

George Burke, former Norfolk County district attorney, state representative and city councillor, said: "Paul loved this city. He dedicated his life to this city."

Michael Linnane, longtime friend and election campaign coordinator for Harold who directed the road race, said:

"For years to come, runners and walkers will pass over this bridge and know that it is in memory of a man who ran 18 marathons and hundreds of road races. As a public servant, he always worked to build bridges to make the world a better place. It is fitting that a bridge at the crossroads of his hometown carries his name."

Among those attending the dedication were:

Harold family members Joseph Harold and John Harold, both nephews; and cousins, Geraldine Sharkey and Steve Harold; City Council President Frank McCauley and former Council President Peter Kolson, both close friends of Harold; state Rep. Stephen Tobin, Dist. Atty. William Keating, County Commissioner John Gillis, Register of Deeds William O'Donnell and Councillors John Keenan, Doug Gutro, Alicia Gardner and Jay Davis.

"HE LOVED QUINCY and stood up tall," said State Transportation Secretary Daniel Grabauskas in tribute to the late Paul D. Harold as the Quincy Center Concourse bridge was dedicated in his name Sunday. With Grabauskas, from the left, are Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Keating, George Burke, former district attorney and city councillor; Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner, Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis, Congressman William Delahunt and Mayor William Phelan.

Honoring Two Legends

They are living legends of different faiths with a strong common bond: dedication to people.

And, today they will be honored at Law Day ceremonies at Quincy District Court:

Rabbi Jacob Mann, spiritual leader at Beth Israel Synagogue for six decades, for whom a special new award has been named.

RABBI MANN

FR. McCARTHY

Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John's Church and the inspiration for Father Bill's Place, the interfaith shelter for the homeless, who will be the first to receive it.

COVEN

BLOOM

It is the Rabbi Jacob Mann Social Justice Award established this year by Judge Mark Coven, presiding justice at the Quincy Court; Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin and First Asst. Clerk Magistrate Robert Bloom to honor a man who symbolizes social justice. The award will be presented annually.

And, as a companion honor, Mayor William Phelan has proclaimed today "Rabbi Jacob Mann Day."

Rabbi Mann, who for many years participated in the annual Law Day ceremonies with Fr. McCarthy, won't be there today. Now in his 95th year, he has been living in Jerusalem the past several months where he was born and ordained.

But his heart will be there at Quincy District Court today.

In a letter to Judge Coven, Tobin and Bloom, he wrote, "I was profoundly honored and touched" when informed of the award in his name and for the mayor's proclamation.

And he was pleased that Fr. McCarthy will be the first to receive the award.

"The choice of Father McCarthy as the recipient of the first award," he wrote, "is a good and appropriate one as he is an institution in himself who always showed concern and compassion for the citizens of Quincy. It was my honor to follow him on the program at Law Day ceremonies.

"May there be many more Law Days in the good city of Quincy with its upstanding public servants and law-abiding residents.

"I send you a heartfelt thank-you from my new home in the State of Israel."

Rabbi Mann came to the United States in 1930, serving eight years as a rabbi in Torringtonk, Conn., before becoming spiritual leader at Beth Israel Synagogue at age 33 in 1942 during World War II.

His near 62 years at Beth Israel is believed to be the longest anyone has ever served as spiritual leader of a Quincy house of worship.

And during those years, he became a community treasure, a living, walking definition of humility and humbleness.

Two sons have followed in their father's footsteps: Rabbi Jonah Mann and Rabbi Abraham Mann, both of New York. A daughter, Esther Snyder, lives in Israel and keeping a loving eye on her father. And there are grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

The award in Rabbi Mann's name is for social justice. The inscription on the plaque reads: "Let Justice Roll On Like A Mighty River," taken from the Old Testament.

Well, this year's first recipient, Fr. McCarthy, has been rolling on, defining the words social justice for 52 years as a priest. And at 77 is still on a roll.

"Father Bill" as he is affectionately known has spent more than a half century dedicated to helping the homeless, the poor and hungry.

He was ordained in 1952 by Cardinal Richard Cushing and after assignments at St. Rose in Chelsea and St. Gregory's in Dorchester, he was named pastor at St. John's Church, Quincy, Feb. 1, 1977.

He served 18 years there until his retirement as pastor in 1995. But he is not retired as a priest, now serving at Our Lady of Victory parish in Centerville and helping out at other parishes on the Cape.

And keeping a doting watch over Father Bill's Place which was named by interfaith colleagues in his honor in 1988.

His generosity to those in need is legendary. He literally and figuratively will give you the shirt off his back. And if it doesn't fit, he'll go out and buy you one.

At St. John's, many came knocking at the rectory door in need of a financial handout. The door was always open to them.

And there's the story about the time a flustered housekeeper discovered blankets and a bed missing. Fr. McCarthy had sent them to a needy Quincy family.

He's still out there, never missing an opportunity to raise funds to keep Father Bill's Place running to provide shelter to the homeless.

"He has his hand in your pocket but you really don't mind," said one admirer.

And Fr. McCarthy likes to tell a joke on himself. It's the one about the Quincy police officer who asked him if he had a gun permit.

"What do I need a gun permit for," Fr. McCarthy asked back.

"For all the people you hold up," the officer replied.

But perhaps a former homeless drug addict, once so desperate he even planned suicide, knows better than anyone what Fr. McCarthy is all about.

Brian Taylor was one of the lesser known of some 500 people honoring Fr. McCarthy at his Golden Jubilee reception at the Quincy Marriott two years ago.

Noting the notables on the podium with him — including a congressman, two mayors, a former mayor, a city councillor and a bank CEO, Taylor quietly said:

"Because of Father Bill, I feel as important as they are."

A friend had told him about Father Bill's Place. "The night I went there I was going to commit suicide," he said.

But with the welcome and the help he received at the shelter and from the man for whom it is named, he got his life turned around.

"If I could be half the man Father Bill is, I would be a great man. Father Bill is a true hero," he said.

And with that he walked over to Father Bill and gave him a hug.

If Rabbi Mann could have been at today's Law Day ceremonies, there might have been another hug — a mutual one.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 postcard view of the first bridge across the Neponset River. It was built in 1803 as part of the Neponset Turnpike connecting Quincy Square to the Boston side of the river. Privately built it was a toll road until 1858 when it became Hancock Street. This view is from Quincy looking towards the old coal yards on the Boston side to the right. Over 100 years old, this bridge was ready to collapse into the river when in 1916 it was demolished and replaced with a temporary bridge. The temporary bridge was used for eight years when in 1924 funds became available for a new permanent concrete one. That new bridge in turn was replaced in 1971 by the present maze of ramps, which the state is now saying, is also close to collapsing into the river and is in need of immediate repairs. If this scenario sounds familiar you wont' be surprised to learn that back in 1916 the state also considered building a tunnel under the river. Perhaps they should have. ### Joe Lydon Will Be Missed

I was saddened to hear of the recent passing of Joe Lydon of Squantum. I first met Joe back in 1973 when he was younger than I am now. Back then I was beginning my career as a state employee and my years as a mentor of AFSCME. Back in the late 70s I served on the Executive Board of AFSCME Local 470 in Boston and Joe was one of the staff reps at Council 93.

Joe eventually became a vice president of Council 93 and was always a voice and vote for public employees.

The world has changed much in over 30 years. Joe represented the best of public employee unionism.

He may not have always won every battle against management but he always fought hard. As a younger guy back then working with Council 93 I came to see unions as an important part of American workers and their work lives.

When there was trouble, Joe was always our advocate fighting for us. I met Joe years later when I moved to Quincy and became an active Democrat.

He brought the same passion to his political activities as he did do his union work.

Another part of yesterday has passed. We are all the lesser in his passing. Joe was one of the good guys and will be missed.

Upset Over UMass Article On Pat Tillman

I have read the article by Rene Gonzalez in the UMass student newspaper the Daily Collegian and I was truly upset after reading it.

As the founder of the George "Trigger" Burke UMass Hall of Fame and as a former captain in the United States Army and as a former professional athlete, I believe I speak for the UMass athletics who deeply honor the sacrifice of Pat Tillman.

It is difficult for some people to understand that a man can rise above himself and dedicate his life to others. It is clear that the writer, Rene Gonzalez, does not understand this concept.

Pat Tillman not only gave up his football career as an athlete, but he also gave up $3.6 million to serve his country for $18,000 a year. He gave his life because he believed in what this country stands for. The Bible say, "No greater love hath any man than he lay down his life for his friend."

I did not personally know Pat Tillman, but I stand in awe of him and the sacrifice he gave to his country. As I have served in the United States Army, I feel I understand his thinking in wanting to become an Army Ranger.

I personally have dedicated a large portion of my life to serving UMass in helping to raise millions through the UMass-Amherst Foundation, of which I am clerk. I have sent 73 students from Quincy to UMass-Amherst under scholarships and have personally donated hundreds of thousands of dollars to a school at which I received a great education for $50 a semester. This is done with the belief that everyone is entitled to receive an education and that we must dedicate our lives to serving others rather than ourselves.

But I supposed Rene Gonzalez would also consider this idiotic.

Reinstating The Draft

Ralph Nader claims the government is gearing up to reinstate the draft. He says the Pentagon is quietly recruiting new members to fill local draft boards.

If this is true it will be interesting to see if any of the sons and daughters of the U.S. Congress and Senate are called to the military. I doubt it.

Crackdown Ordered On Traffic Violations

This Week
53 Years Ago

City Manager William J. Deegan, Jr. instructed Police Chief Joseph F. Hughes to assign all available men to rigid enforcement of traffic rules following a barrage of criticism from city officials.

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin called attention to speeding around Quincy Square's rotary traffic pattern and yearned for the days when the famed Two Gun Baker rode herd on speeders on his motorcycle.

"I think we are getting a little too loose," Burgin said. "I think it is about time something is done."

City Councillor Alfred G. Helfrich protested speeding on Beale St. in Wollaston and Councillor Edna B. Austin noted that both private cars and buses were ignoring traffic signals in the Square.

ANTI-GAMBLING VOTE

The Quincy Council of Churches passed a series of resolutions sponsored by the Rev. Bedros Baharian, pastor of the Quincy Point Congregational Church, in opposition to gambling.

The few dissenting votes were led by the Rev. Joseph D. Parkman, pastor of the Atlantic Memorial Congregational Church, who protested that the resolutions did not go far enough.

"I feel that we are trying to stamp out only a small section of the gambling evil when what we should be concerned with are the much larger evils of organized gambling," he said.

WORK FORCE DOWN

Henry N. Hazard, general superintendent of the Fore River shipyard, told the Long Service Club that the work force will decline when the Export Liner is completed May 24.

But it should rise from the current 6,500 to 8,000 in January, 1952, he said, after work gets underway on five high speed cargo carriers for which the first keel is to be laid July 1.

Carrie Jie Lunde Awarded Woodward Science Prize

Carrie Jie Sunde of Quincy and Sharon Lawler of Avon were the grand prize winners in the Science Fair at The Woodward School for Girls.

Carrie, 11, a sixth grader in her first year at the school, won the Lower School prize for her project entitled "Are two eyes better than one?"

Sharon captured the grand prize in the Upper School for her project called "Just Breathe."

The prizes included copies of "The Science Book," an illustrated story of science, and an engraved wooden plaque.

The awards were presented by James Pickel, a teacher of Honors Chemistry, Physics and Calculus, at the annual Founder's Night Ceremony at the school.

Carrie Jie's project tested how depth perception varies and often determines success at a task if a person uses one eye or two eyes working together.

Granite Railway Tours Are Off And Running

Quarry-to-wharf van tours of the roadbed of historic Granite Railway, the first chartered commercial railroad in the nation, have resumed and will continue through October.

The next tours are scheduled for the weekends of May 22-23, June 26-27 and July 24-25, with more possible during the week of the Democratic National Convention (July 26-29).

August, September and October dates have yet to be announced.

The tours begin at the well-preserved 1826 railway terminus at Bunker Hill Ledge in West Quincy and traverse segments of the old right of way through East Milton Square to the wharf on the Neponset River.

It was there in 1826 that blocks of granite were transferred from the railway cars to barges that carried them to Charlestown for construction of the Bunker Hill Monument.

On the way, the tour includes visits to several quarries with their spectacular views, the 1830 double-track incline, and several structures significant to the granite, iron and railroad industries in Quincy.

There are two 3 1/2-hour guided tours a day, at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., meeting the van in the rear parking lot of the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center. A pickup is also available at the Milton T station on the Ashmont-Mattapan High Speed Line at 8:30 a.m.

The Sunday mornings tours take place only with sufficient advance reservations.

A donation of $5 is requested from all participants. Since space in the 15 passenger tour van is limited, an early pre-registration is suggested.

The tours are sponsored by the Massachusetts Bay Railroad Enthusiasts, Inc. (RRE), a not-for-profit educational historical organization.

Anne Hutchinson Author's Topic At Historical Society

Journalist and author Eve LaPlante will discuss her new biography of Anne Hutchinson, one of the most controversial figures in Massachusetts history, at the annual meeting of the Quincy Historical Society Thursday, May 13, at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy, Quincy Center.

Hutchinson inspired a religious and political struggle that shook colonial Massachusetts — a struggle in which the early Mt. Wollaston community, the future of Quincy, was deeply involved. Since then she has been alternately condemned as a fanatic and praised as a defender of religious freedom and women's rights.

LaPlante, a direct descendant of Hutchinson, in her book, "American Jezebel," seeks to present Hutchinson as a complex, fresh-and-blood woman and to trace her often surprising influence on American values and institutions.

LaPlante will discuss her vision of Hutchinson, her own process of discovery as a Hutchinson descendant, and read from her work. Her presentation will offer an introduction to Hutchinson's dramatic and truly "uncommon" life and for those familiar with the story, will present new insights and perspectives. Following the talk, copies of LaPlante's book will be available for sale and autographing.

LaPlante, who holds degrees from Princeton and Harvard, writes on a variety of topics. Her articles have appeared in a range of magazines, including The Atlantic, The New York Times Magazine, and Parents. Her first book, "Seized," was a highly praised study of epilepsy and both medical and cultural perspectives.

As part of the annual meeting, the Historical Society will also elect officers and trustees for the coming year and present its Volunteer of the Year Award. There will also be special refreshments. The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

150 Quincy College Honor Students To Be Recognized At Honors Convivium

Nearly 150 Quincy College honors students preparing to graduate this spring will be recognized today (Thursday) at the annual Honors Convivium.

Don't Privatize Medicare Or Social Security, Silver Haired Legislators Urge

The seventh session of the National Silver-Haired Legislature, meeting recently in Washington, voted to urge Congress not to privatize Social Security or Medicare.

A report on the actions of the senior citizen solons was brought back to Quincy by Sabina K. Stenberg of Quincy, the silver-haired representative from the 10th District.

"We urged Congress to reject an privatization for Medicare as it has been successful since its inception in 1966," she said.

"Social Security has succeeded in providing a guaranteed lifetime income for retired workers and survivors, avoiding any risks of market downturns."

According to Stenberg, the silver-haired Congresspersons also voted to:

Thank Congress for appropriating $2.8 million to address the impact of 76 million Baby Boomers in critical senior topics, including economic and health care issues.

Urge President Bush to issue the official call and set a date and request Congress to appoint members of the National Silver Haired Congress and Baby Boomers to the World Health Organization.

Preserve English as the official language of the United States and urge Congress to reduce the spending required to comply with the minority language in the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Require a national criminal background check and registry for health care givers and urge Congress to enact legislation creating a registry of employees of health care organizations and facilities.

BROAD MEADOWS SCHOOL sixth grade teacher Barbara Fenby holds the "fatal vision goggles" that Mayor William Phelan would soon try on to demonstrate the effects of alcohol.

JERRY CHUNG, a sixth grade student at the Broad Meadows Middle School, pours alcohol over egg for an experiment that would demonstrate the effects of alcohol on the body. Peer advocate Adam Squatrito supervises.

Teach-In Delivers Grim Message

Broad Meadows Students Get Sobering Lesson About Using Alcohol

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

Mrs. Barbara Fenby's sixth graders fidgeted as they clustered around their experiments.

They had cracked open the eggs, dumped them into bowls and covered them with rubbing alcohol only minutes ago. Now, the bright yellow yolks had morphed into a white soupy mixture.

The experiment was meant to demonstrate the effects of alcohol on the body. It was part of a Reachout Now alcohol awareness teach-in last Thursday afternoon at Broad Meadows Middle School. The teach-in was led and organized by Fenby and peer advocates, who teach fellow students about the realities of alcohol, from the sixth and seventh grades at Broad Meadows. It included an alcohol awareness lesson from Mayor William Phelan.

"It is very important that you take care of your body at this stage, so that you can reach your next potential," said Fenby to her sixth grade class.

The program was the first in a series of alcohol awareness programs made possible through two $100,000 grants, one from the Quincy Department of Juvenile Justice and the other from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, awarded to IMPACT Quincy. The grants, according to IMPACT Quincy Program Director Alejandro Rivera, will allow IMPACT to bring alcohol awareness activities to the classroom.

"Every focus (for the activities) is on prevention," said Rivera.

Rivera said IMPACT has several events planned, including a presentation to the City Council by the Broad Meadows peer advocates about the dangers of underage drinking.

"It's important that (the adolescents) have a message from their peers," said Rivera. "The peer advocates convey the message it's a terrible thing to do."

Fenby added, "And that most kids aren't doing it," noting that 25 percent of people between the ages of 15-21 drink alcohol.

At the teach-in, the peer advocates explained the dangers of alcohol and underage drinking through short speeches and quizzes. They told their peers that alcohol was a drug, that it was made out of fermented food and that it was very important not to drink before age 21, because alcohol could harm their minds and bodies, which are not fully developed until age 21.

The sixth graders almost aced the quizzes, but were tripped up by the question, "Alcohol affects your body right away." Echoes of surprise bounced around the room when they found out the answer was true.

Peer advocates played a short video of alcohol commercials including those for beers featuring frogs and penguins, to warn their classmates against getting tricked by advertising into thinking alcohol is fun.

"They're targeted to people under age 21 trying to (make you think) how much fun alcohol is," said Fenby.

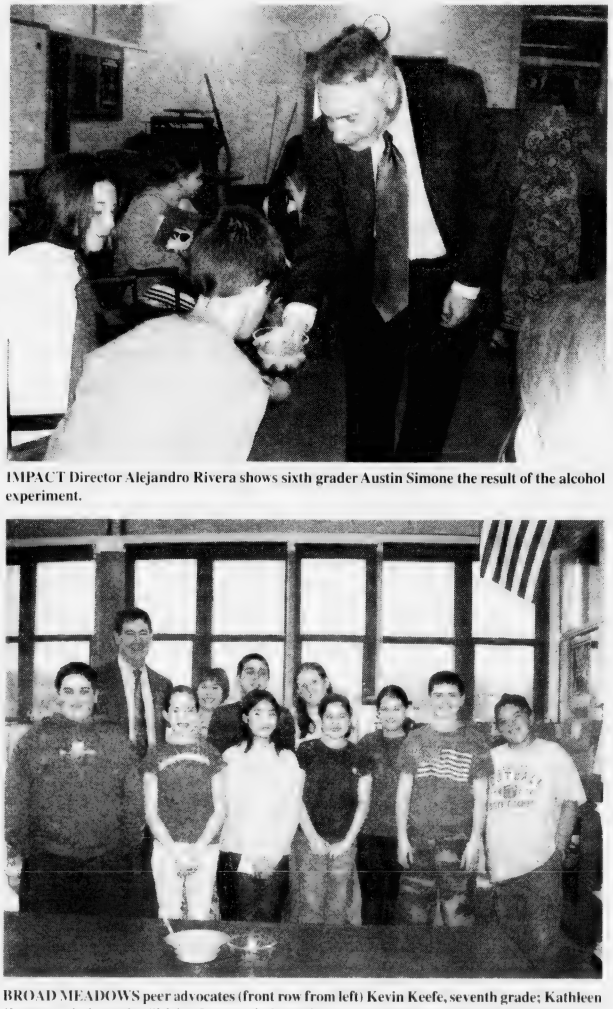
Mayor Phelan answered the students' questions about alcohol, which ranged from "Is caffeine a drug?" to "Did you ever drink?" and offered his insights on avoiding alcohol.

"If you feel good about yourself, why would you put something in your body to change the way you feel?" asked Phelan. "It's a lot more fun in life not using drugs and feeling good just the way God made you."

Phelan helped demonstrate the effects of alcohol by putting on "fatal vision goggles" which blur vision and make it difficult to do everyday tasks. Students watched as Phelan wobbled back and forth in an attempt to walk a straight line, struggled to pick up keys off the classroom floor and repeatedly missed the hand of a student while trying to give a high five.

Phelan complimented the peer advocates for being "powers of example for the younger kids."

Fenby's students learned many new facts about alcohol through the teach-in.



"I learned that the drinks are made of rotten stuff," said Michael Whittemore, a sixth graders in Fenby's class. "That's nasty."

Fenby said she held the teach-in because she thinks it is important to show her students, most of whom will soon be teenagers, how to make good decisions concerning drugs and alcohol in the years to come.

"It's the number one killer in the U.S. for ages 15-25," she said. "If they don't know, how can they prevent it?"

IMPACT Director Alejandro Rivera shows sixth grader Austin Simone the result of the alcohol experiment.

Quincy Post Offices Sponsoring Annual Food Drive

In an attempt to curb summertime hunger, the National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) Branch 34, including the Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy post offices, is sponsoring its annual food drive this Saturday to stock local food pantries and the Greater Boston Food Bank.

The food drive involves thousands of letter carriers from across the United States who collect non-perishable food and deposit it at local food banks. Last year's effort produced 45 million pounds of food. This has turned into the nation's largest one-day food drive.

Postal customers should simply leave non-perishable food by their mailbox and it will be picked up and delivered to your local food pantries.

The NALC Branch 34 is an affiliate of the AFL-CIO, which represents 3,500 letter carriers who deliver mail in approximately 65 communities in the Greater Boston area.

Ayers Investigating Driver's Ed And Junior Operator's Licenses

In response to the tragic events over the past year and the recent fatal accidents involving young drivers, Rep. Bruce Ayers recently chaired an informal hearing held by the House Committee on Public Safety investigating possible changes to driver's education and junior operator's licenses in Massachusetts.

The hearing, held at North Quincy High School, convened parents, law enforcement representatives, the Romney administration and the Legislature to become more involved in the safe driving habits of the most inexperienced drivers.

"We cannot let tragedies like this occur again," said Ayers. "Being young and being inexperienced means significantly higher risk of injury for junior operators and it is our responsibility as legislators to make sure these young drivers are given the education, the tools and the force of well-crafted laws to protect them."

According to the National Highway Safety Administration, motor vehicle accidents are the leading cause of death among teenagers.

Last week's hearing highlights the efforts of the Committee on Public Safety to investigate potential legislative action and regulatory changes that may be made in order to bring further awareness of the restrictions in the junior operator law.

Earlier this month, Ayers and Rep. Brad Hill (R-Ipswich) were appointed to co-chair a Subcommittee on Driver's Education and Junior Operator's Licenses as part of the Committee on Public Safety's effort to curb young driver fatalities and injuries.

The subcommittee heard from a number of individuals, organizations and agencies, including Lt. George Clark of the Quincy Police Department, David Duane from the Village Auto School, Tim Cooney from the Central MA Safety Council, Inta Hall from the MA Brain Injury Association, concerned parents, students and various representatives from the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

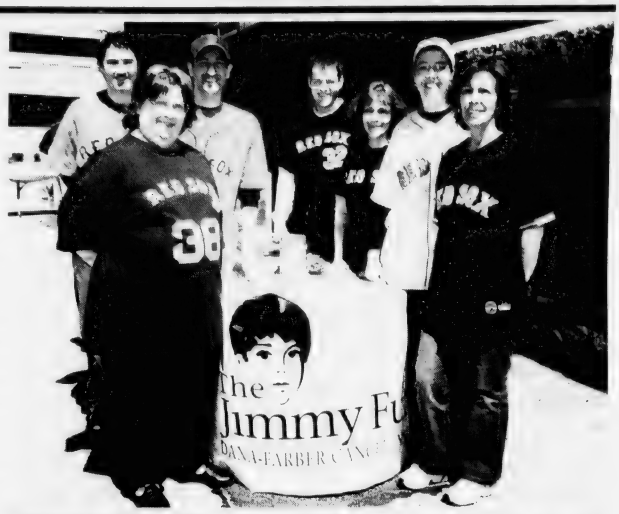
QC Raises 'Ted-Friendly' $406 At Red Sox Cookout

Quincy College faculty, students and staff recently raised a 'Ted Williams-friendly' $406 for the Jimmy Fund at the school's annual Red Sox season cookout at Coddington Hall.



More than 600 ballpark franks, peanuts, chips and sodas were consumed by hundreds of Red Sox boosters who are excited about this year's team.

Donations from the campus community represented one dollar for each point in Ted Williams' record batting average. Contributions allowed people to wear Red Sox garb during the day of the event, creating a festive atmosphere on campus as faculty and staff served complimentary lunch for students.

Red Sox Day is part of a series of Quincy College fundraisers benefiting community charities.

"Our ad campaign this Spring featured the tag line 'This is our Year,'" said Quincy College President Sean Barry. "For the college, this year it means a brighter future. For people thinking about enrolling with us, it means now is the time, and for all of us avid Red Sox fans it means we will win the World Series in October."

The Boston Red Sox also helped out a bit, donating an official MLB baseball signed by pitcher Mike Timlin. The Quincy College Foundation also donated pairs of tickets for a raffle. Kiss 108 FM attended the cookout and contributed gifts for students, as well as additional Red Sox tickets.

79 Percent Say 'Yes'

Should Supreme Court Retain 'Under God' In Allegiance Pledge?

YES NO

The tide is still running strongly in favor of the phrase "under God" in the pledge of allegiance to the American flag in The Quincy Sun's informal poll of its readers.

Fully 90 percent of those in the poll favored retention of God's name in the pledge in these times of semi-religious warfare with terrorists.

It reminded one woman of something she learned from her mother many years ago.

"I'd like to share a thought from my childhood," she wrote.

"As a child, whenever I approached my mother with a negative thought relative to something I thought I couldn't do I always got the same response from her.

She would say 'spell American.' I would. Then she would say 'and what are the last four letters.' 'ICAN,' I would reply and she would send me on my way. 'I CAN,' I'd think again and it changed my whole attitude in life.

"Fifty years later I'm doing it and have shared it with many of our youth and it still works.

"As an American, I CAN."

Another participant in the poll harkened back to 1954 when the phrase "under God" was inserted in the pledge at a time when atheistic Communism was the enemy of America.

"'Under God' should not be retained in the allegiance pledge," wrote the man. "It was just an unwarranted knee-jerk reaction to the 'Red scare.' Time to go!"

The Supreme Court will have the final say on the question of God in the pledge to the flag. Meanwhile, you too can register your feeling in The Quincy Sun poll.

Simply put a check mark in the box of your choice — —,"Yes" to retain the phrase "under God" in the pledge, "No" to eliminate the phrase — and send it to :

The Quincy Sun
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy MA 02169

Or fax it to The Sun at : 617-472-3963

The final result of the poll will be published in a later edition of The Sun.

Former Quincy Man Dies In Iraq Suicide Bombing

Norman Darling was an American only a short time and a son of Quincy even shorter.

But he died fighting for his adopted country in a far away land called Iraq along side fellow soldiers who had been Americans all their lives.

Army Pfc Darling, 29, was one of eight soldiers who died in a suicide attack south of Baghdad while they were searching for explosives by the side of the road.

Darling was a native of the Bahamas, where he lived with his father, Sidney, his mother and five brothers and sisters.

The rest of the Darlings remained in Nassau, the capital of the Bahamas, but Norman had a wanderlust. He left for the United States after high school.

He became an American citizen when he married an American girl but the marriage lasted only a short time.

He lived in Brockton for a while, then moved to Quincy in 2001 to work for Boston Financial. He enlisted in the Army and was sent to Ft. Benning, Ga., in January, 2003.

Early this year, he flew to Germany with the Fourth Battalion, 27th Field Artillery Regiment and from there into the maelstrom that is Iraq.

He leaves a daughter, Camryn Lee Darling, who lives with her mother in Florida.

Dolan Funeral Services Renews Lofty Oaks Affiliation

Dolan Funeral Services of Milton and Dorchester have renewed their affiliation with Lofty Oaks Association, a New Hampshire organization dedicated to reforestation and conservation efforts in Massachusetts.

The firms arrange to have a tree planted for each service that they perform to provide a living memorial in honor of the deceased and to renew the forest life of Massachusetts.

The memorial trees are planted in the spring and fall. The program is part of a large endeavor, to restore the landscape and environment with the eternal beauty of living trees.

After each service, close family members and friends are informed that the memorial tree has been arranged for by the staff of the Dolan Funeral Services. When a certified nurseryman has planted the tree, the designated people will receive a certificate of planting suitable for framing and keeping in the family's history.

Gardner Seeks 'John's Law' Ordinance

Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner has introduced a drunk driving ordinance modeled after "John's Law" in New Jersey, which prevents those arrested on DUI charges from obtaining their vehicle after being bailed out of jail and then driving again while intoxicated.

The law, which was passed in Boston in 2003, is named in memory of Navy Ensign John Elliott who was killed in a crash with a drunken driver arrested and released by police earlier the same evening.

If passed, the ordinance would require police to impound the cars of those charged with drunk driving for up to 12 hours and issue responsibility warnings to those who take custody of the DUI offenders.

Gardner said the legislation would further protect the public safety of residents and visitors in the city.

"I believe it is very effective tool in trying to prevent the tragedy of drunk driving," said Gardner. "Impounding a car for 12 hours is a good safeguard in preventing those drivers from getting behind the wheel again while intoxicated."

The proposal was placed into the city council's ordinance committee for review.

Stephanie Tetreault Selected For Youth Leadership Forum On Medicine

Stephanie Tetreault of Merrymount recently enrolled in the National Youth Leadership Forum on Medicine which will be held June 20-29 in Boston.

A sophomore at Notre Dame Academy in Hingham, she will join 350 other high school students from around the country who demonstrate academic excellence, leadership potential and an interest in a career in medicine.

Stephanie, the daughter of Kathleen Tetreault and the late Mark A. Tetreault, is interested in becoming a pediatrician or a career in medical research. She is a former Quincy Sun's news carrier.

The 10-day forum will introduce Tetreault and the other students to a variety of concepts in public health, medical ethics, research and general practice. There will be site visits to medical facilities and clinics.

The students will engage in a simulation using problem-based learning, an educational method in which students will be presented a fictional patient's case history and must diagnose and develop a treatment plan for the patient.

"The National Youth Leadership Forum on Medicine creates a virtual classroom out of hospitals, clinical facilities and health care professionals," said Donna Snyder, executive director of NYLF. "By shadowing key personnel, students like Stephanie Tetreault will have a great opportunity to gain a behind-the-scenes perspective on a career in medicine. This is a critical time for these students to be exploring their future career paths, just prior to immersing themselves in course work once they are in college."

Tetreault and the other students will have the opportunity to hear from and interact with leaders within the medical field. Students have up-close and personal contact with physicians, surgeons, researchers, scientists and medical educators as they go behind the scenes to view these professionals at work.

NYLF is a nonprofit educational organization that brings various professionals to life, empowering outstanding young people with the confidence to make well-informed career choices. NYLF has provided programming to more than 50,000 young people.

Michelle Lydon Completes Certified Funeral Celebrant Training

Michelle Lydon, a funeral director for the Lydon Funeral Home in Quincy, recently completed Celebrant Training to become a certified funeral celebrant at a three-day workshop in St. Petersburg College in Florida.

The funeral celebrant training is a new concept presented by Doug Manning and Glenda Stansbury of In-Sight Books, Inc. A celebrant is a lay person, clergy person or funeral director who has been trained in the specific area of conducting non-religious funerals.

"Our society has become much more mobile and less tied to the church," Manning said. "Many people do not have a church or a clergy person on whom to call in times of death.

"Also, many people are not comfortable with traditional religious funeral ceremonies. Therefore, the need for funeral celebrants has become mor apparent," he said.

The practice is used widely in New Zealand an Australia. In some cases, celebrants, who are licensed by the government in those countries, perform more than 50 percent of funerals and weddings.

Lydon, who is also a justice of the peace, has performed more than 100 weddings in the past two years.

Doug Manning, one of the leading speakers and authors in the area of bereavement, toured these countries several years ago and brought back the idea that people in the United States needed this option.

MICHELLE LYDON, a funeral director for Lydon Funeral Home in Quincy, receives her certificate from Doug Manning after completing certified funeral celebrant training at a recent workshop in Florida.

Lydon said she wants to share her service as celebrant in Boston and the South Shore area.

The three-day intense training included people from all over the country who will contract with funeral homes to offer these services to the community.

Lydon will continue with on-going training through In-Sight Books and, as more celebrants are trained across the country, will form an association for certification.

Lydon has already performed two funerals. "I am happy that I could have served these families in the celebrant capacity. It gave the family an option and comfort level that they did not know they could have," she said.

GREENER QUINCY. David Aristide of South Quincy (left) receives a sapling from City Councillor Leo Kelly in trade for an old Christmas tree he turned in to the Park Department in January. When he plants his sapling, Quincy will be a little greener.

1,000 Saplings Given In Christmas Evergreen Program

The Christmas tree recycling program, begun by now-City Councillor Leo Kelly, observed its 15th year last week by giving out some 1,000 saplings to be planted in the interest of a greener Quincy.

"We must have given out more than 10,000 in the past 15 years," said Kelly. "I see some of them have grown to over 10 feet tall by now."

Kelly is chairman of the committee that supervises the program. Members include Mayor William Phelan and developer Jay Cashman, who annually picks up the tab for the program.

It works like this:

Residents bring their old Christmas trees to the Park Department, which converts them into wood chips. The residents are given coupons for each tree entitling them to a free sapling to plant in the spring.

And the city, which is constantly fighting urban sprawl, is a little greener for it.

National Magazine Ranks Conway 69th in U.S.A.

The Jack Conway Co. has moved up a notch in the national ranking of real estate firms, according to ratings recently released by National Relocation Magazine.

The Norwell-based firm had 6,926 transactions for 69th place nationally and first in Massachusetts. In the sales ranks, it was 75th nationally and also first in Massachusetts.

Company Chairman Jack Conway said he was "completely pleased" with the rankings of the multi-office company, which he started 48 years ago in 1956.

"Keeping our top position in Mass. is very important to us and to all of the 754 associates in our 42 offices," he said.

The magazine also listed Jack Conway Co. as the 28th largest privately owned independent in the United States.

"We prosper in a world of conglomerates and franchises and we are very proud to keep our business independent," said Conway President Richard Cahill.

The firm also owns Conway Financial Services, Washington Appraisal, Conway Relocation, Conway Property Management and the Relocation Registry.

Dealing With Water Stains, Mold, Mildew

(NAPS) — It happens every year. Months of wet winter weather followed by the spring thaw produce one of the most common household problems — water stains on walls or ceilings.

You might be tempted to cover water stains by applying a fresh coat of paint. But chances are it won't work. Most water stains will bleed right through ordinary paint. Plus, unchecked moisture can create an ideal environment for the growth of mold and mildew.

Follow these steps from the experts at Zinsser to help you deal with water stains and mold and mildew on any painted surface in your home:

• First, make sure the surface is sound. Identify and fix the source of the moisture or you'll soon have another unsightly water stain.

• Clean the surface thoroughly to remove dirt and unsightly deposits. Use a solution of one cup bleach per gallon of water to remove mildew. Rinse the surface thoroughly. To prevent high moisture conditions beneath the surface, avoid "flooding" the area with water, bleach or cleaning solutions.

• Dry the surface thoroughly. Use a hair dryer to dry small areas. Larger areas may require the use of a dehumidifier, heater or a fan to ensure the surface is completely dry before priming.

• Prime the surface with a shellac-base, stain-killing primer-sealer like Zinsser's B-I-N Primer-Sealer. Available in pints, quarts or gallons, B-I-N seals the stain and prevents it from bleeding through the topcoat. For small or hard to reach stains, use B-I-N in a convenient aerosol spray.

• For high humidity areas, such as bathrooms, repaint with a product that prevents future mold and mildew growth on the paint film Zinsser's Perma-White Mold & Mildew-Proof Interior Paint protects itself against mold and mildew growth for five years guaranteed.

It's low-odor and water-based for easy application. The fast-drying, stain resistant eggshell, satin or semi-gloss finish is available in white, but can also be tinted to off-white, pastel and medium tone colors to match any décor.

Yard Equipment Tips Keep Lawns, Wallets In The Green

(NAPS) — Keeping your yard equipment in top shape can result in a year-to-dependable use and a healthier lawn. By following five simple steps, you can spend less time repairing equipment and more time beautifying your yard.

1. Safety First: Safety is important when maintaining your equipment, so never attempt to fix your mower while the engine is on. Be sure to remove the spark plug to avoid accidental blade engagement. Faulty spark plugs are often the reason for engine problems so always keep the spark plug clean and a spare in your toolbox. A new plug every spring will keep your mower running smoothly and only costs around $2 at your local hardware store.

2. Keep it Sharp: To ensure a healthy lawn, you should inspect, sharpen and balance the mower blade every two months to ensure that your grass is getting the cut it deserves. Be sure to discard and replace cracked or broken blades. A sharp blade not only makes mowing easier, it's also kinder to the grass. Dull mower blades don't cut grass; they tear it, rip it and shred it. Grass suffering from physical damage and abuse becomes weak as it is always striving to repair itself.

Never attempt to sharpen the blade while it is still attached to the mower. The blade can usually be taken off by loosening a single bolt and always remove any debris before sharpening. Use a bench grinder or a hand file to sharpen the blade, or take it to your local hardware store to have it sharpened for under $10.

3. Fresh Fuel: Whether you are running a brand new machine or a timeless classic, always use fresh, clean fuel with at least 87 octane for maximum operating efficiency. Never let gas sit in the tank for more than 30 days. This is important for equipment like tillers that are not used every week. Prior to storing any machine for an extended period of time, run your engine until the fuel tank drains.

4. Dependable Performance: For dependable starting mowers, consider the Self-Starter models from Yard-Man. Pull-start them once, and get multiple restarts with just the touch of a button. This feature allows you to restart easily after unexpected breaks from your job, like stopping to pick up a stick or running inside for a beverage.

Even if your equipment is properly maintained, starting it is often frustrating and string trimmers can be the most difficult. To experience how easy starting equipment can be, try one of the new Troy-Bilt string trimmers with Spring Assist starting. The Spring Assist system can reduce your pulling effort by up to 55 percent over standard trimmer engines.

A slow, steady pull is all it takes to easily start the engine each and every time.

If you're looking for an easier starting chain saw, try the new MacCat with Smooth Pull Power-Assisting Pull Starting System from McCulloch. It will reduce your starting effort, yet has the power to tackle your toughest chain saw projects.

5. Annual Checkup: Just as you need regular checkups to remain healthy, so does your power equipment. At the beginning of each season or after sitting idle for any extended period of time, be sure to review your owner's manual and perform any recommended maintenance.

Your local service dealer will be glad to handle these routine maintenance items for you and also check for other safety or hazardous conditions that may not be readily apparent to you.

Equipment that is cared for will not only start easier, but will have a significantly longer life span.

Floor Coverings To Suit Taste, Budget

(NAPS) – When describing floor covering, the key word today is choice. Consumers have a wide range of styles and options to choose from – each with its own unique characteristics and associated costs.

Given that selecting a floor covering is a decision most people have to live with for some time, it can often be helpful to get some professional assistance.

To help you rise above the surface and find a path towards underfoot enlightenment, the World Floor Covering Association has prepared the following tips to ease the process.

It's always best to begin the process by doing a little homework. Books, magazines and related Web sites will reveal that flooring is broken down into just six categories: woods, ceramics, stones, laminates, resilients and carpeting. Learning the basics about each one – such as its durability, compatibility, price and color range, can help guide your search for the floor covering that best suits your lifestyle and budget.

There's no doubt that new floor coverings represent a significant and costly purchase. Keep in mind, however, studies show that if they care chosen well, not only can they last for years, but they will increase the resale value of your home.

Wood floors add warmth and character to almost any room and are available in many different styles, colors and prices. When shopping for a wood floor, you'll find that there is a wide range of varieties – from solid wood, to engineered planks, to bamboo. There are advantages to each type, depending upon the room, your budget and your home's subfloors.

Ceramic flooring, which has been around for centuries, is available today in a wide variety of designs and finishes. It's durable, easy-to-care for, environmentally friendly, fire resistant and very versatile. It's also scratch and water resistant.

Marble and stone floors are another popular choice that can help create a natural and elegant look. Varieties include limestone, marble and travertine – all of which are available in an array of finishes and come in either slabs or tiles. This flooring variety works well in high-traffic areas, as it is extremely durable and easy to care for. Note that all types of stone floors require a strong sub-floor.

Fire Study Approved By Council

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

A study of the fire department's long-term needs will finally become a reality.

On a unanimous vote two weeks ago, the city council approved a blueprint for evaluating the department's needs, including a review of its eight firehouses, an inventory of apparatus and staffing requirements.

The council agreed on a final RFP (request for proposals) after Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell combined their efforts in drafting the blueprint.

The study is not binding, but it can serve as a guide for the city as it attempts to address the department's needs.

Councillor John Keenan, who has pushed for a fire study since last year, said the upcoming evaluation should steer the city toward a "cost effective, efficient and state-of-the-art fire department."

Council President Frank McCauley said it would be beneficial to have a study completed by the end of the year. "Hopefully, they can pick a vendor by the summer and finish this thing up sooner rather than later. This is something that should have been done years ago."

A number of vendors have already expressed interest in undertaking the study, according to Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, who sits on a committee charged with reviewing the bids.

"We have already received a number of interested vendors, and I suspect that companies that have responded to previous RFPs will also show interest," said Coughlin.

Coughlin said he hopes to receive responses within the next four to six weeks.

"We want a vendor who is going to give exclusive attention to the city," said Coughlin. He also said the committee will be taking a close look at the background of bidders, their training and their history of completing similar studies.

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly said it is important that the study examine a number of issues, including manpower and upgrades to equipment and firehouses.

"If you are going to upgrade your houses, you need to upgrade your equipment as well," said Kelly. "Hopefully, this study will show that the equipment and firehouses will need to be upgraded. We have a jump on the fire study by passing the $10 million bond. I'm hopeful the study will address the manpower issue," said Kelly.

McCauley said approximately $75,000 was appropriated to conduct a fire study a few years ago. That study never materialized.

About $60,000 remains in the account for a study, but that could prove to be inadequate, said McCauley.

"We quite well may need more money," he said.

Coughlin said the cost of a fire study could approach $100,000.

Insurance Companies Offer Improved Towing Insurance

The Statewide Towing Association (STA) of Massachusetts recently issued a bulletin about important new developments in the auto insurance industry concerning towing insurance.

"Many policies now offer consumers the choice of selecting short-term insurance for as little as $5 per year. This benefits consumers since those choosing the additional option can utilize the insurance instead of paying for an auto club membership.

"This additional benefit allows consumers to make their own choice of tow company, and not depend on the auto club," said STA President William Johnson.

"In addition, most auto insurance companies charge a premium for their towing and roadside assistance coverage. This can mean a consumer pays more for towing benefit instead of just adding the auto insurance premium."

Most insurers interviewed charge as little as $16 per year for this coverage. Triple A costs $61 for their basic service and the membership does not cover the entire towing charge.

"In most cases, consumers can save money by arranging their own auto insurance, not an auto club," Johnson said.

Paint Pens Help Solve Scratch Problems

(NAPS) For car owners, a scratch in the paint can be a two-fold problem. If nothing is done, the exposed area can start to rust. And if you try and cover the spot with brush-on paint, it can actually end up looking worse than before the project began.

The problem with applying paint with a brush is automotive paint dries very quickly. From the time you dip the brush into the bottle and apply it to the vehicle, the paint is already drying and when you apply it to the vehicle, it tends to leave a blob of paint rather than going on smoothly.

Using a paint pen makes the job much easier, since the pen can be used much like a felt marker. The paint can be applied to your vehicle in very thin coats, completely avoiding the blob of paint common with a brush. To make the repair nearly invisible, use a medium-duty rubbing compound.

To find paint pens, many automotive experts recommend visiting www.paintscratch.com. This Web site sells paint pens in colors to match both old and new cars, as well as brush cap bottles and spray cans, on up to gallons of paint.

KELLY BARDEN (14) of North Quincy hustles into first base after the ball got by the catcher on a strike three call. Quincy junior quad-captain Alysia DiMuzio covers first base.

DEANNA IACOBUCCI picked up the loss for North Quincy. The junior pitched well in her first start, allowing four earned runs, all in the third inning, to a potent Quincy squad.

KATIE WALSH slides safely into third base for a two-run triple in the third inning to give the Presidents 3-0 lead. The junior quad-captain also had an infield single.

Sorensen's 1-Hitter Leads Quincy Past North, 7-0

REBI SORENSEN came within two outs of tossing a perfect game against North Quincy last Thursday at Pageant Field. The junior ended up firing a one-hitter with 15 strikeouts in Quincy's 7-0 win. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

By CHRIS POISSON

As Quincy High School softball pitcher Rebekah Sorensen set down Red Raider after Red Raider, you'd think head coach Mike Sedar would've had an inkling the junior was just two outs away from a perfect game.

Sorensen lost her perfect game bid when senior Kim Walsh hit a flare to right field with one out in the seventh inning. She punched out the final two hitters to finish with a one-hit, 15-strikeout masterpiece.

"You know me, I didn't know she had a no-hitter, a perfect game going, again," he said following the Presidents' 7-0 victory over North Quincy last Thursday afternoon at Pageant Field.

Last season, Rebekah's sister, Rachel, tossed a no-hitter against Dennis-Yarmouth and Sedar didn't even realize the accomplishment until well after the game had ended. He's too consumed watching all aspects of his team's play — and lately Quincy has been excelling in all areas.

"We shut them down the whole game," Sedar said. "Rebi was phenomenal. We're playing great. We're hitting the ball well and we can't play any better defense, all the way around."

Quincy (4-3 overall, 3-0 Atlantic Coast League), which was rained out Monday against Nauset, traveled to Dennis-Yarmouth Wednesday and will head to Sandwich Friday.

Sedar believes the pair of losses to defending state champion Cardinal Spellman over school vacation week has made his team stronger. Quincy cruised to a 7-1 win over a mighty Whitman-Hanson team the day before the North Quincy contest.

"Every time we play Spellman we're a better team," said Sedar, whose team last year won eight of its final 10 games after the two-game series with CS. "It's just a great ball club to play because they get us ready for league play. No one is going to be better than Spellman."

Although not near the level of CS, the North Quincy team the Presidents faced is much improved from a year ago. The Red Raiders have a 2-6 overall record (2-2 Old Colony League), but two of those losses were by one run.

The day before the Quincy game, they pulled out an exciting 8-7 win over Plymouth South when senior Christine Perry — in her first varsity game — knocked in sophomore Kelly Barden for the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Senior quad-captain Michelle Boyd powered the offense, going 3-for-4 with a home run, triple and three RBI. Barden went 2-for-3 with three runs scored and senior Kristin Grazioso plated the tying run in the sixth.

While their offense sputtered against Sorensen, the Red Raiders played strong defensively at times, turning a double play in the first two innings and throwing a runner out at home on a passed ball in the sixth. Barden also made several outstanding plays at shortstop.

"There were some good defensive plays, no question," said head coach Bob Doyle. "I had to move Kelly Barden from third to short to fill the void by May Ho (knee injury) and she has done a tremendous job. I've been real impressed with her delivery to first base."

Junior Deanna Iacobucci, in her first start, pitched well in all but two innings. Seven of the eight hits she allowed and two of her four walks came in the third and fifth frames when Quincy scored all of its runs.

In the third, junior Rebecca Williams walked and sophomore Leanna Lam reached on an infield single. Sophomore Kim Lebel followed with an RBI single.

junior quad-captain Katie Walsh belted a two-run triple and junior quad-captain Alysia DiMuzio lined an RBI single.

In the fifth, North Quincy had a defensive breakdown with two errors that led to three unearned runs. Walsh reached on an error and scored on DiMuzio's sacrifice fly. After senior Rose Bell walked and Sorensen reached on an error, Williams ripped a two-run single.

"Quincy is a better team than us right now," Doyle said. "Sorensen mowed us down. She was in great command and kept us off-balance. I'd like to see us improve offensively. Hitting has been a thorn in our side. For some reason we tense up in the games."

SAY "HI" TO HYBRIDS

As ecology and economically conscious people have been striving to wring more mileage out of every drop of gasoline, over the past few decades many different alternate fuels and technologies have been discussed. Presently, hybrid cars show the most promise. These vehicles seamlessly meld electric motors and gasoline engines to offer compelling mileage – in the range of 50-60 miles per gallon. Simple math will tell you that hybrids offer a 50% or more gas savings over your present vehicle. This can translate into savings of $200-$1,000 or more, depending on what you drive, how much you drive it, and what kind of driving you do. On top of that, there are significant tax breaks for hybrid buyers. The future is now.

Over the next several years many car manufacturers will be introducing hybrid cars. They are generating a lot of interest. While they are generating a lot of interest it will take quite a while for them to spread into SUVs, 4x4s, etc. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) is your local auto center that can handle most all your automotive needs. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." # Shaughnessy Named Raiders Football Coach

By CHRIS POISSON

Bill Shaughnessy, a former Quincy High School quarterback, has been named the new head coach of the North Quincy High School football team.

"It feels great to be the coach at North," said Shaughnessy, who teaches at the school. "My friends have been teasing me a little. But I just keep telling them that it's all about the kids. And it helps that I work here and I know the kids.

"It's a big rivalry, Quincy North, but you end up making friends with the kids from the other side."

Shaughnessy, 37, replaces Tony Green, who coached the Red Raiders the past three seasons.

"I look forward to working with Bill and his coaching staff," said Athletic Director Ed Miller. "I wish him the best in the Atlantic Coast League next season, and will help him develop his style of football."

The Red Raiders have struggled in recent years. They haven't had a winning season since the days of former head coach Ken McPhee and have dropped five straight Thanksgiving Day games to the city rival Presidents.

"We want to bring the pride and tradition back to the school," Shaughnessy said, "by allowing alumni and coaches to get involved by recruiting students that are not playing any more and get them back to the team.

"We want to have the same numbers that we start with at the beginning of the season at the end of the year. We want to work with the freshman team because they are the future of the program. Principal (Lou) Ioanilli is supportive of athletics and academics and he'll help us to be successful."

Members of his coaching staff include: Peter Chrisom, Lou Marcucci, Tim Connor, Paul Brown, Rick Beach, Mike Shaughnessy, and volunteers.

BILL SHAUGHNESSY, a former Quincy High School quarterback, will be leading the North Quincy High School football team as the program's new head coach.

"We have an experienced coaching staff and that will allow us to share our experiences with the kids, both on and off the field," Shaughnessy said.

In addition to high school and college, Shaughnessy has played for several teams throughout Europe and for the Randolph Oilers semi-professional team of the Eastern Football League. He also tried out for the New England Patriots and the CFL's Toronto Argonauts, and signed a contract with an Arena Football League team but decided not to play.

A member of the Quincy/North Quincy Football Hall of Fame, Shaughnessy was a three-year quarterback at Quincy High where he graduated in 1985.

He received a scholarship to UMass-Amherst. After earning some playing time as a freshman, he was injured his sophomore year and left school.

"Academics wasn't important to me at the time," he said. "I just wanted to play football. Then I realized it was important when I starting working, doing labor. I realized that I had an opportunity to get an education and that gives you more options. I want to share that experience with the kids, too."

Shaughnessy transferred to Curry College, where he excelled in football and baseball and was later inducted into both Hall of Fames. He graduated in 1989.

In 1991, he returned to Quincy High where he coached the quarterbacks and wide receivers, and also began to substitute teach.

In 1995, he left Quincy High to join the coaching staff at UMass-Boston. After two years he took a break from coaching to pursue his master's degree and spend time with his two young children.

Shaughnessy has been teaching in Quincy public schools for 13 years, including Quincy High, Broad Meadows, Point Webster and North Quincy High.

He lives in Bridgewater with his wife, Kristen, and his two kids.

Santon Pitches Presidents Past Red Raiders, 5-3

By CHRIS POISSON

During the first month of the season, the Quincy and North Quincy high school baseball teams anxiously awaited the day they would be able to play at renovated Adams Field.

In the meantime, each team played their five homes games at nearby Merrymount Field, as new sod was being laid down with new clay on its way from New Jersey to be spread on the infield.

They finally stepped onto the field last Thursday night — just in time for the first meeting between the two city rivals. And the Presidents took round one with a convincing 5-3 victory, backed by the right arm of junior pitcher John Santon.

The win snapped Quincy's three-game losing skid and pushed them back to .500 with a 4-4 record. Quincy (1-4 Atlantic Coast League), which was rained out Monday against Nauset, hosted Dennis-Yarmouth Wednesday and will host Sandwich Friday at 4 p.m.

As for North Quincy (3-5 overall, 2-3 Old Colony League), the loss was its third straight setback. North Quincy, which was rained out Monday against Marshfield, traveled to Silver Lake Wednesday and will head to Taunton Friday at 4 p.m.

So what's the coaches' reviews of the new field?

"I don't really like the backstop that much with balls bouncing back," joked Quincy head coach Mike Draicchio. "This a great place to play. I loved it. It's a great atmosphere. They were trying to get this ready as fast they could. I'm sure they're going to fix some things."

North Quincy head coach Rick Beach said, "It feels good to be playing here. For them throwing it together as fast as they did. I drove by here at 2 and they still had the tractor out here putting the dirt down. This field is so much better.

"It's great for the seniors. They sat here for the Babe Ruth World Series, watching, waiting and drooling to get on the field. Another game goes by, can't get on the field, then another game. Finally they get on the field and they were happy."

In the showdown, Quincy excelled in all areas against North, with solid defense, great hitting and strong pitching. Santon fired a complete-game, allowing two earned runs on five hits while punching out 10 Red Raiders.

"He pitched unbelievable," Draicchio said. "He really needed it for his confidence. It's a big builder for him. It's all right that they got a few runs at the end. He came back and did his job."

Santon was aided by his defense. Junior center fielder Steve Priscella made two outstanding running catches, the infield turned a double play and senior first baseman Sean Sullivan made two great plays in the last inning.

"Quincy made the plays," Beach said. "They played great defense and we didn't. We always have that one bad inning. Our defense has been hurting us all year. We're just not a good enough team to make mistakes and come back. But the kids fought hard the whole game."

The Presidents reached senior pitcher and tri-captain Steve Reardon for three runs in the first inning. Steve Priscella drew a leadoff walk, his brother Joe, a senior tri-captain, dumped a single into left-center and Sullivan, in his second game back from an ankle injury, blasted a two-run double over the left fielder's head.

Junior Ray Marchand singled to put runners on the corners, but senior catcher and tri-captain Andy McAllister gunned him out trying to steal second. Senior Chris Kirschner knocked in the third run when he beat out a grounder to shortstop.

Quincy extended its lead to 4-0 in the second when Joe Priscella roped a triple down the right field line and scored on Sullivan's single to center field. In the third, Quincy made it 5-0 when senior tri-captain Dan Cosgrove ripped a double to the left-center gap to plate junior John Folino (walk).

After that, Reardon settled down and gave up just two hits over the final three innings. He finished the game with seven strikeouts and three walks.

The Red Raiders staged a rally in their final at-bat. Sophomore Paul Doolan reached on an error and advanced to third after two groundouts. Reardon was hit by a pitch and junior Dave Djerf pinch ran for him.

With runners on the corners, junior tri-captain John Fitzgerald stroked an RBI single to right to spoil Santon's shutout bid. After Fitzgerald stole second to put both runners in scoring position, McAllister singled them home to make it 5-3. Santon retired the final batter on a foul pop-up in which Sullivan made a nice catch near the fence.

"This team wants to get into the tournament," Draicchio said. "They want it bad. And they've been working hard."

Heart Disease And Diabetes: Making the Link

(NAPS)—Heart disease and diabetes go hand in hand. People with diabetes are two to four times more likely to develop cardiovascular disease, the leading cause of diabetes-related death. They also have three to four times the risk of having a heart attack compared with people of the same age. Fortunately, simple lifestyle changed can reduce the risk.

"People with diabetes need to be aware of their increased risk for heart disease and learn how they can reduce their risk. Diabetes should be treated comprehensively, no only by managing blood glucose levels, but also with good blood pressure and cholesterol levels," says Pharmacist Sarah Matunis, R.Ph. "Steps taken by those at risk for heart disease are the same steps taken by people with diabetes."

Small Steps, Big Benefits

A heart-healthy diet, low in sugar and fats, weight control and a regular exercise program are key to maintaining a healthy heart. Even moderate reduction of blood pressure, blood glucose, and cholesterol can lessen the risk of cardiovascular disease in persons with diabetes.

Know Your Diabetes ABCs

Manage your A1C (blood glucose or sugar), blood pressure, and cholesterol. By doing so, you will help to lower your chances of having a heart attack, a stroke, or other diabetes-related problems.

• A is for the A1C test. It shows how well your blood glucose has been controlled over the last three months. It should be checked at least twice a year. The goal for most people is less than seven.

• B is for blood pressure. The target for most people is 130/80. High blood pressure causes your heart to work too hard and can lead to heart attack, stroke and kidney disease.

• C is for cholesterol. The LDL, or "bad" cholesterol, goal for most people is less than 100.

While there is no cure for diabetes, complications can be avoided. Understanding the link between cardiovascular disease and diabetes, along with proper education and lifestyle changes, can effectively improve health and save lives.

According to Matunis, all Rite Aid pharmacists are trained on heart disease and diabetes management. They will work one-on-one with you to answer any questions. For more information, visit www.riteaid.com or www.riteanddiabetes.com.

Cardiovascular Awareness Campaign Encourages Women To Know Risk Factors

Quincy resident Madeline Spinelli recently attended a free cardiovascular disease (CVD) risk factor screening for The Boston Heart Party™ and learned her blood pressure, cholesterol and glucose numbers by heart.

The Boston Heart Party™ has dedicated the past five years to raising CVD awareness and encourages all women in Quincy to attend a free screening and learn their risk factors.

The campaign, which runs through May 13 and is sponsored by Pfizer Inc, Primary Care, LLC and Boston area health care providers and employers, offers free CVD risk factor screenings for women aged 35 years and older and informs them about risk factors such as smoking, gender, age and a family history of heart disease.

Women who attend The Boston Heart Party™ learn their numbers for blood pressure, cholesterol and glucose, and have the opportunity to speak one-on-one with a health care professional about their screening results.

The Boston Heart Party™ 2004 offers screenings at more than 100 locations throughout Eastern Massachusetts. For a list, log onto www.bostonheartparty.com or call 781.433.3606 for more information.

Cellulite and Exercise

Q. I run three to four days a week, and do squats and lunges for my legs. Even after doing all of that, I still have cellulite on my thighs. I know you can't spot train, but are there specific exercises I could do to reduce cellulite? — *M.H., Richmond, Va.

A. The appearance of cellulite causes many people to cringe, especially if they are working hard at exercising and following a proper nutrition plan.

The dimpled, cottage-cheese look of cellulite is the result of fat deposits under the skin that are pushing through the connective tissue. Researchers have varying ideas as to the reason for cellulite, but most agree on some combination of your total amount of body fat, eating habits, exercise frequency and genetic predisposition for the condition.

Maintaining a body-fat percentage within a healthy range through exercise and proper nutrition will lessen the amount of fat your body has to store.

Exercise is a great weapon for reducing the appearance of cellulite. And while it's true that there are no effective spot-training routines, you can try some modifications to your current workout:

• Change your workout every three weeks or so. After a few weeks of completing the same form of exercise at the same speed, intensity and frequency, your body becomes efficient at that task. That's good, but to get at that cellulite you need to kick things up a notch. Changing your workout will challenge your body to respond to this new task, causing it to burn more calories and further strengthen your heart and other muscles.

• Instead of running four days a week, challenge your body by mixing up your cardiovascular routines. Cycling, swimming, running hills or inclines, and using the elliptical trainer all provide great cardio benefits.

• On the resistance-training side, aim for a total body workout. All that lean muscle you develop will not only will keep you strong and fit, but also help you burn more calories even when resting, helping to lower body fat.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

DENTISTRY
for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

LIGHTEN UP!

It may come as a surprise when the dentist must tell a patient to back off a bit on the toothbrush. The fact is, however, that some people exert too much force (up to a pound of pressure) with their toothbrushes, which can damage teeth and gums. According to English researchers, brushing for about two minutes with about five ounces of pressure proves adequate in removing plaque. This optimum pressure was found by observing twelve volunteers who each exerted different pressures with their toothbrushes for various lengths of time. Plaque amounts on their teeth were measured before and after brushing. To gauge five ounces of pressure, push down with your hand on a kitchen portion scale.

Whether you need brushing tips or your teeth cleaned, we can help. When was the last time you had your teeth checked by a professional? Call us now at. Call us at 617.479.6220 and schedule an appointment for comprehensive dental care. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. ## A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Mother's Day is a day that has shown it has heart and living interests for all classes, races, creeds, native and foreign born, rich and poor. . . People have been honoring mothers and motherhood for thousands and thousands of years. . .

Tiny statues of Mother-Goddesses were among the caveman's earliest artifacts. Some scholars think these doll-like statues may have been given to little girls, in hopes that they would grow up to be mothers of many children. . . the ancient Egyptians also admired large families; the more children a woman had, the greater her prestige. In "family portraits" painted on tomb walls, over 4,000 years ago, the proud Egyptian mama is generally surrounded by at least 10 or 12 youngsters. By old English custom, mid-Lent Sunday was "Mothering Sunday" when people went back to the "Mother Church" of their baptism and visited their mothers with flowers and other gifts. Small rich pastries called "Mothering Cakes" were popular presents for mama.

To all mothers on this special day, we wish you a very happy and joyous day.

No Increase Seen In Local State Aid

[illegible] in [illegible] Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro said lawmakers' words were "encouraging."

"It's encouraging to hear the Bleeding has finally stopped with regard to local aid," said Gutro. "But it's still substantially less than what we had just a few years ago. There is no indication that we will return to the hey days of five to 10 years ago, when we could count on annual increases in local aid."

Based on what he heard from state elected officials, Council President Frank McCauley said he expects fiscal 2005 to be a "tough financial situation."

"The mayor has some rising fixed costs like health insurance and he also has some negotiated pay raises that are going to kick in," said McCauley.

Phelan is expected to present his fiscal 2005 budget at the May 17 council meeting, and Thomas Largey, Phelan's top aide, said the mayor "is looking at all departments with a dispassionate eye and with the view of increasing efficiencies and decreasing costs." He did say the mayor wants to provide a modest spending increase for the school department.

The amount of local aid sent to cities and towns has a big effect on their budgets. If Quincy receives level funding from the state then the mayor will have less wiggle room when putting together a budget. Last year, local aid accounted for 16 percent of the city's $204.6 million budget.

State lawmakers also talked about a number of other issues facing the state and local municipalities, such as Quincy.

Ayers said the House budget restores funding to keep summer State Police patrols on Wollaston Beach.

"When there is an authority figure along the beach people are more aware of it, and it's a deterrent against speeding, loitering and drinking during the summer months," said Ayers.

Morrissey said potential cuts to the Department of Conservation and Recreation could jeopardize the future of the $7 million Wollaston Beach improvement project. He said any cuts in personnel - especially with contract administration jobs - could hamper DCR projects.

In addition, lawmakers said they are concerned about a recent court decision ordering the state to reconfigure how it finances schools. Although a final decision is still less than a year away, it could ultimately have a negative effect on Quincy, they remarked. Morrissey said the ruling could mean that the state must place more funds toward schools in poorer districts. "If this happens it can only come at the expense of other communities, such as Quincy," said Morrissey.

Mariano said the House was able to restore about $5 million in the MWRA rate relief fund that was originally cut by Gov. Romney. He said approximately $200,000 of that will go to ratepayers in Quincy.

Fixed Costs, School Dept. Increases In Fiscal 2005

Phelan Vows 'Leaner' Budget

By WILLIAM FRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan is set to unveil his proposed fiscal 2005 budget, a blueprint that he characterized as being "leaner" than last year's budget.

But the plan will not shortchange city services, he said.

"The budget will maintain the level of services that the residents are accustomed to, but in a more efficient manner, even though we are absorbing large fixed cost increases and a continued shortage of local aid revenues," he said.

Mayor Phelan met with The Sun and offered a preview of his proposed fiscal 2005 budget, which will be unveiled at next week's council meeting.

The estimated $218 million budget, an increase of $9 million in spending over last year, will contain cuts in personnel, increases in the school budget, and a consolidation of some city functions, such as the enhanced 911 service.

Phelan said most of the spending increases - about $6 million - will come from fixed costs, such as health benefits, retirement costs and MWRA rate increases.

The fiscal 2005 budget calls for a five percent increase in the school department's budget, which amounts to $3 million, he said. An additional $800,000 will be proposed for retirement pickup costs, he said.

"I believe we should be funding the schools and I don't think we should be cutting back on our children's future," he said. "I would have given them more if I could."

Phelan said his budget calls for the elimination of 17 positions through attrition, including six police positions and four firefighters. Other positions will be eliminated in Constituent Services and the Treasurer's office, he said.

"Many of the departments throughout the city are spending considerably less money in the fiscal 2005 than they were in the fiscal 2002 bud-

Blessed Sacrament On Church Closing List A Shock To Parishioners

By TOM HENSHAW

The Rev. William English was philosophical.

"I don't know where we stand," he said. "We hope we can remain open. We will know May 25th. Until then, we can just sit and wait."

Father English is pastor of Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Houghs Neck, one of 37 Catholic churches that have been added to the tentative list of some 100 parishes targeted for closure by the Archdiocese of Boston.

The pastor of the 105-year-old church on Sea Street urged his parishioners at Mass Sunday to write letters to Archbishop Sean O'Malley in the interest of keeping their church open in the hope that it will influence his final decision.

"Several parishioners have written letters," he said. "But I don't know if it will do much good. All the information has been sent in long ago. We didn't expect it. I don't know what will happen."

Parishioners of Most Blessed Sacrament Church were more outspoken.

"I'm heartbroken," said Mrs. Wendy Connors, who said she had her first communion at the church on her wedding day when she converted 15 years ago. "It's upsetting.

"For years we've raised funds to repair the building. I buried both my in-laws there. My nieces and nephews had their first communions there. I never felt that this would be the consequences."

"It's not good," said Mrs. Eleanor Pimental, 71, who moved into the parish from Dorchester when she was 3 years old. She had her first communion and was confirmed at Most Blessed Sacrament. She has posted church envelopes for the past 35 years.

"It's just a terrible shock," she said. "Our church seems to be too big to close. It's a very active parish. We'll see what happens May 25. I pray that we will stay open."

Archdiocesan statistics for the year 2003 show that the average weekly Mass attendance at Most Blessed Sacrament was 752, second smallest of the eight Catholic churches in Quincy.

There were 48 baptisms, 16 marriages, 30 funerals and, two statistics that Father English questions, no first communions and no confirmations.

"Actually," he said, "We had 35 first communions and 38 confirmations. What happened? I guess someone with a computer made a mistake."

Mrs. Agnes Kenney, 71, was born and brought up in Most Blessed Sacrament Parish.

Parking Fee Hikes Are On The Way

The city council's oversight committee approved parking fee hikes for motorists who park their cars at the Ross Parking Garage or Hancock Parking lot.

At Monday night's meeting, the committee signed off on a plan that increases hourly fees and monthly fees at both garages. The days of free two-hour parking will be gone, also.

Under the plan, motorists utilizing either garage would pay $1 per hour for a maximum of $7 for the day. Monthly parking permits would jump from $55 to $40.

Currently, it is free to park in either garage for the first two hours, and motorists pay 25 cents per hour beyond that.

The city's plan was presented by Traffic Engineer Roy Lamotte, Jr., who said the current parking fee structure is not competitive with other communities.

Instituting fee increases will allow the city to accomplish a number of goals, such as installing new parking control equipment, produce more turnover of cars, improve customer service and increase the number of monthly parkers.

Lamotte said the cost of upgrading the equipment would be about $135,000.

"The fees we have in place are not covering our costs," Lamotte told the committee.

In addition, Lamotte said about 50 percent of the users in the Hancock Parking lot come from Quincy District Court. Those users usually stay for less than two hours, he said.

"Many of them are not paying anything to park," said Lamotte.

Lamotte also said the city wants to expand the new

"The budget will maintain the level of services that the residents are accustomed to, but in a more efficient manner, even though we are absorbing large fixed cost increases and a continued shortage of local aid revenues," he said.

Mayor Phelan met with The Sun and offered a preview of his proposed fiscal 2005 budget, which will be unveiled at next week's council meeting.

The estimated $218 million budget, an increase of $9 million in spending over last year, will contain cuts in personnel, increases in the school budget, and a consolidation of some city functions, such as the enhanced 911 service.

Phelan said most of the spending increases - about $6 million - will come from fixed costs, such as health benefits, retirement costs and MWRA rate increases.

The fiscal 2005 budget calls for a five percent increase in the school department's budget, which amounts to $3 million, he said. An additional $300,000 will be proposed for trash pickup costs, he said.

"I believe we should be funding the schools and I don't think we should be cutting back on our children's future," he said. "I would have given them more if I could."

Phelan said his budget calls for the elimination of 17 positions through attrition, including six police positions and four firefighters. Other positions will be eliminated in Constituent Services and the Treasurer's office, he said.

"Many of the departments throughout the city are spending considerably less money in the fiscal 2005 than they were in the fiscal 2002 bud

Parking Fee Hikes Are On The Way

The city council's oversight committee approved parking fee hikes for motorists who park their cars at the Ross Parking Garage or Hancock Parking lot.

At Monday night's meeting, the committee signed off on a plan that increases hourly fees and monthly fees at both garages. The days of free two-hour parking will be gone, also.

Under the plan, motorists utilizing either garage would pay $1 per hour for a maximum of $7 for the day. Monthly parking permits would jump from $55 to $40.

Currently, it is free to park in either garage for the first two hours, and motorists pay 25 cents per hour beyond that.

The city's plan was presented by Traffic Engineer Roy Lamotte, Jr., who said the current parking fee structure is not competitive with other communities.

Instituting fee increases will allow the city to accomplish a number of goals, such as installing new parking control equipment, produce more turnover of cars, improve customer service and increase the number of monthly parkers.

Lamotte said the cost of upgrading the equipment would be about $135,000.

"The fees we have in place are not covering our costs," Lamotte told the committee.

In addition, Lamotte said about 50 percent of all users in the Hancock Parking lot come from Quincy District Court. Those users usually stay for less than two hours, he said.

"Many of them are not paying anything for parking," said Lamotte.

Lamotte also said the city wants to expand the spa

Broad Meadows Students Cited For Helping Poor Children

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Past and present Broad Meadows Middle School students were recently recognized by Reebok International for their decade-long campaign to provide better education for poor children in developing nations.

Students were cited for their efforts during last week's 15th annual Reebok Human Rights Award ceremonies held at the Lincoln Center in New York City.

Representatives from four generations of Meadows students and language arts teacher Ron Adams traveled to New York City for the ceremonies.

Current student Kristen Bloomer, 7th grader; and former students Laura Bloomer, Amanda Loos and Jennifer Brundige represented Broad Meadows Middle School during the ceremony.

The catalyst for the ongoing crusade began 10 years ago when Broad Meadows students met Iqbal Masih, a Pakistani boy who had an extraordinary tale to tell.

Masih's father sold the 4-year-old boy for $12 to a carpet manufacturer, according to Reebok officials. Masih spent the following six years of his life bound to a carpet loom for 14 hours at a time, often with little food and constant abuse.

He managed to escape and eventually spoke at an international labor conference in Sweden about the plight of child workers in Pakistan.

Masih visited the United States in 1994 to receive the Reebok Human Rights Youth-Action Award and to push for the elimination of child labor, speaking before community and business leaders, as well as Broad Meadows students.

After Masih returned to Pakistan, the Quincy students launched a letter-writing campaign to lobby against child labor. Only months after visiting the Broad Meadows students Masih was shot and killed while riding his bike near his home.

Adams said students were so upset by Masih's death that they decided to launch a drive to raise money to build a school in Pakistan.

Thus far, they have collected $147,000 and have continued their work over the past eight years to bring education to poor children throughout the world.

Broad Meadows helped launch a pilot program with the US Agency for International Development to build schools and establish educational opportunities in poor countries.

The program, called "Operation: Day's Work," encompasses 1,000 students from 20 schools nationwide. Thus far, students' efforts have led to the construction of eight schools in places such as Haiti, Ethiopia, Bangladesh and Pakistan. Three more are on the way in Sierra Leone, said Adams.

He said the Reebok ceremony was an appropriate way to remember Masih.

"The ceremony was a way to remember Iqbal and recognize the kids who have done so much work over the past 10 years," said Adams. "After Iqbal died, it made the kids realize how lucky they are, to have everything that Iqbal could only dream of – freedom, free education and laws that protect them."

Adams said about 40 students from Broad Meadows, 42 from North Quincy High, 10 from Quincy High and 25 from Archbishop Williams High School participate in Operation: Day's Work.

Each year, students set aside one day during their April vacation to do a day's work designed to raise funds for the schools. This year, students planted a "Peace Garden" at the Thomas Crane Public Library and spruced up other parts of the city. Students are paid a day's wages, which are really contributions that go toward building schools in impoverished countries.

Kristen Bloomer, 7th grade student at Broad Meadows, explained why she got involved in the program.

"Ten years ago, the students at Broad Meadows came face to face with child labor when Iqbal Masih of Pakistan visited the school," said wrote in an essay. "I was only three years old at that time and therefore didn't have the opportunity to meet him. However, from that day on, dozens of Meadows students have kept Iqbal's memory alive and continued for 10 years to work toward his dream for all children to get an education."

Police Special Equipment: Stuffed Animals For Kids

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

Lt. Jack Sullivan, Quincy Police Department communications officer, saw the car on fire outside the Quincy Police Station.

Its passengers, a father and his two young boys, were all right, but the boys were scared and upset. Sullivan grabbed two stuffed animals he had in his office and handed them to the boys.

"It flipped the switch. It was like magic the way they stopped crying," said Sullivan.

When the boys tried to hand the stuffed animals back to Sullivan, he insisted that they keep them.

It is situations like this that "Project Smile" seeks to have an effect on. Started by Hopedale resident Catherine Pisacane in November, 2003, Project Smile collects stuffed animals and donates them to Massachusetts police departments. Police officers use the stuffed animals to comfort children who have been in accidents, who have witnessed a crime, are sick or injured or who have experienced a traumatic event, such as domestic violence.

Project Smile donated about 150 stuffed animals Tuesday to be split between the Quincy and Weymouth police departments. Since November, Project Smile has collected 3,400 stuffed animals through donations from citizens. The Quincy and Weymouth police departments were the 20th and 21st police departments from Massachusetts to receive donations from Project Smile.

The stuffed animals included teddy bears, horses, reindeer, dolls, elves, Beanie Babies and others.

"Our goal is to have enough stuffed animals for (every police department) in Massachusetts, and eventually, every one in New England," said Pisacane.

"I would like it to be like Toys for Tots," she added.

Pisacane, a teacher in the Dover-Sherborne extended day program, said she started Project Smile after reading an article about the three brothers from New Jersey who were starved by their adoptive parents in November, 2003. When police officers arrived at the house, they gave one of the boys a stuffed tiger. The boy held the tiger during his time at the police station and wanted to take it with him.

"It's a home run with the kids," said Safety Officer Bob Barry, Weymouth Police Department.

Sullivan said officers often put stuffed animals in shopping bags and keep them in the back of their cruisers. He said he stores the surplus in his office. But the supplies of stuffed animals run out quickly and he said there are many times an officer will respond to a scene and regret he does not have anything to give an upset child.

Project Smile received certification as a non-profit last month. Project Smile accepts donations of only new stuffed animals. Financial donations are also appreciated. More information can be found at www.projectsmile.org. Pisacane can be reached at cpisacane@projectsmile.org or at 508-634-0203.

McFarland In Council Bid

The next city election is still a good year and a half away but School Committee Vice Chairman Mike McFarland, is off to an early campaign start.

Not for the school committee. But for the city council.

McFARLAND

His red, white and blue "Mike McFarland City Councillor At Large" bumper stickers can already be seen on cars around town.

And there is a reception coming up Thursday, May 20, 6 to 8 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

The event will mark his 50th birthday. But it is also a fundraiser. Tickets are $50.

"I've decided to run for councillor at-large and I am letting people know early that I am," he says.

His decision will open his school committee seat in next year's election. He will be completing his second four-year term and leaving that board.

McFarland says he will be seeking the council at-large seat Council President Frank McCauley will be vacating.

McCAULEY

McCauley, who topped the at-large field in last year's election, said that would be his last run.

He will be closing out an historic 32-year political career as the only person in the city's history to hold all four municipal elective offices: mayor (four terms), councillor at-large, ward councillor, school committee.

McFarland, now business manager at the Norfolk County Agricultural High School, is no stranger at City Hall. He has served as executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, city auditor and city purchasing agent.

"I want to use the experience I have gained in addition to being a former businessman," he says, "to sort through the complex fiscal issues facing us over the next decade.

"Frank McCauley has done an outstanding job in this area and I would like to continue that work."

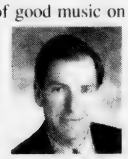
There could be two open council at-large seats if Joe Finn decides to run for mayor. He has been considering a possible mayoral run next year.

FINN

Two open at-large seats could have a trickle-down effect with one or two ward councillors stepping into the at-large field. And that in turn would open up ward seats.

But McFarland isn't waiting for if's, and's or maybe's.

He's running for councillor at-large.



Now.

RON DELLA CHIESA, keeper of good music on WGBH, was the emcee at the dedication of the Quincy Center Concourse bridge in Paul Harold's name.

RON CHIESA

HAROLD

Della Chiesa grew up in Quincy and has deep local political roots. His father, Aldo Della Chiesa, was a Ward 3 city councillor. And his uncle, Amelio Della Chiesa, was both Plan E and Plan A mayor over a 12-year period.

Ron also was a friend of Paul Harold's.

And recalled Paul telling him he grew up knowing only Amelio Della Chiesa as mayor.

"He told me," Ron said, "that growing up he used to see trucks with the letters M.D.C. (Metropolitan District Commission) on them and thought they stood for Mayor Della Chiesa."

Ron had his own personal tribute for Harold at the dedication ceremony:

"Paul was one of a kind."

GUTRO

MILESTONE: Ward 5 Councillor Doug and Sue Gutro are parents of their second son, Scott Quincy, born Saturday at Brigham and Women's Hospital. Scott weighed in at 6 pounds, 10 ounces.

"He arrived 11 days early," says Gutro. "We just made it to the hospital. I'm lucky I didn't have to make the delivery."

Scott Quincy joins his big brother, Brian, 16 months.

Why the middle name Quincy?

"We love the city and hope he will grow up to love it as much as we do," Gutro says.

COUGHLIN

A RECEPTION FUNDRAISER for Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin is set for Wednesday, May 19, 6 to 8 p.m. at The Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy. Suggested contribution choice: $25, $50, $100.

ANYONE OUT THERE from the North Quincy High School class of June, 1934?

A classmate is wondering if there's going to be a 70th anniversary reunion.

Margaret (Duncan) MacLeod, sister of retired Quincy teacher Helen Duncan, now living in Coconut Creek, Fla., writes:

"As a member of the First Class to graduate from North Quincy High School, June, 1934, I haven't heard of a 70-year class reunion!

"I called the office of North Quincy H.S. last September, 2003. I spoke to a clerk who advised me that she could not find any information re: graduations prior to 1939.

"I tried contacting class members over the internet. Only four members (last year) appeared on the "Classmates" web site for the Class of 1934. Maybe there is none of us left. I am 87 years old and live here in Florida.

"Any in-put on this would be appreciated."

If anyone has any information, Mrs. MacLeod's address is: 5335 Hillsboro Blvd. #615, Coconut Creek, FL 33073.

She would love to hear from you.

Trans-Atlantic Flyers Land At Squantum

This Week
67 Years Ago

Famed aviator Dick Merrill and his companion, Jack Lambie, landed at Squantum Naval Air Station for gas and oil check on the last leg of their trans-Atlantic flight from New York to London and return.

The flyers were delivering films of the dirigible Hindenberg disaster at Lakehurst, N.J., to London and films of the coronation of King George VI of England to New York.

Lt. S. Robert Shultz, the doctor who examined Merrill and Lambie during the 20-minute stop at Squantum, said both of them were in excellent physical condition.

"They both had headaches and were naturally fatigued but not terribly fatigued," said Lt. Shultz. "They were plenty able to go a long ways yet."

He gave them some aspirin.

Merrill and Lambie were greeted at the airfield by Lt. John J. Shea, commander of the base, and Lt. Warren Sweetser, who was in charge of the Marine detachment.

Sweetser said Merrill told him that they had not seen land from the time they left England until they cam down through fog and found themselves over Squantum.

Merrill said they intended to land at Dennison Airport in Atlantic but there was a tractor on the runway so they went to the adjacent Squantum field instead.

Mayor Thanks Residents For 'Cleaner, Greener' Help

I would like to publicly thank all of our residents who participated in the 15th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy celebration. We estimated more than 1,600 people donated their time and efforts during a very busy time of the year to help make our city cleaner and greener.

I am proud to be the Mayor of a city that possesses such a strong sense of community pride. Quincy enjoys a great history and beautiful natural landscapes, but our greatest resource has always been our people.

I hope that we continue our work to beautify our great city through my "Planting Pride in Quincy" campaign, which will beautify our city's gateways, main thoroughfares, business districts, neighborhood schools and parks. My goal is to make Quincy the most beautiful city in America and I hope to tap into that same sense of civic pride that made Cleaner, Greener Quincy such a tremendous success again this year.

This year we will be participating in the national "America in Bloom" contest that judges cities on appearance and I urge residents, businesses and civic organizations to join me in an effort to make Quincy more beautiful. Working together, we can make Quincy the most beautiful city in America.

I appreciate all your help and look forward to working with you again.

William J. Phelan
Mayor

Some Hopeful Signs

As I see things, there are some hopeful signs that the war on Earth is dying out. Number one sign, very little mentioned by the press, is the fact that Osama bin Laden approached major European countries anxious to strike an armistice with them.

Almost at the same time, President George W. Bush instructed the Americans in Fallujah, Iraq, to negotiate an armistice with local terrorists. Every man on Earth knows that Peace and Appeasement always save lives, without discrimination, and wars, even economic wars, always destroy lives, without discrimination.

If the Europeans, who are the American staunch friends and allies, in spite of all disagreements, would strike a deal with bin Laden, the Europeans would serve as a go-between between us and bin Laden in a desperate hope to stop the loss of human life all around the globe.

We must not forget that the rejection of appeasement led to catastrophic World War II and the spread of Communism in Europe and Asia.

I would like to offer to President Bush to use a Serbian proverb as a political compass, nationally and internationally: "With God's justice for all. Without Prejudice at all!"

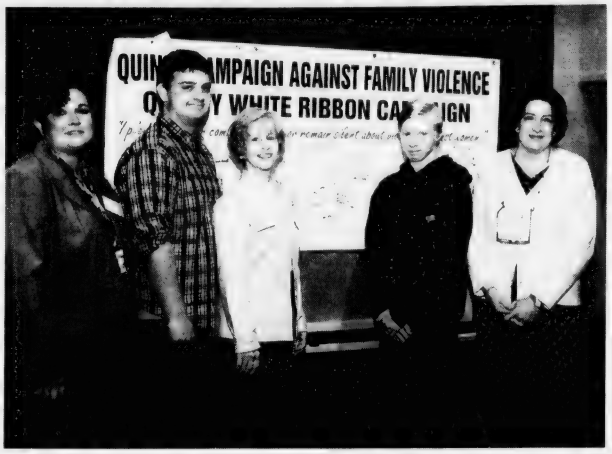
NQHS Students Pledge To End Family Violence

More than 200 North Quincy High School students pledged to help end family violence in White Ribbon Ceremonies recently in the school's auditorium.

In two separate ceremonies, students heard school and elected officials condemn family violence and relay personal experiences on the subject.

After listening to the speakers, students later stood up and took the White Ribbon pledge: "never to commit, condone, or remain silent about violence against women." Students, faculty and school officials also signed a pledge sheet condemning violence.

Sponsored by the Quincy Campaign Against Family Violence, the events were designed to empower men and women of all ages to come together to prevent violence.



Student leaders were Jake Smith and Nicholas Rice.

The keynote speaker for the event was Major Richard Cardinal from the Plymouth County Sheriff's office.

'Promotes Accountability,' Says Raymondi

Ordinance Committee Approves Tax Rates Before Sept. 15

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The ordinance committee approved a home rule petition that sets a Sept. 15 deadline for the city to establish its tax classification, a move that will promote more accountability to the taxpayers, according to its author, Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi.

On a 7-0 vote, the committee approved Raymondi's legislation, which mandates the board of assessors to set the city's tax rate for the fiscal year no later than Sept. 15.

Under the proposal, any future property tax increases would be spread out over three bills instead of two, which was the case this year. Second quarter tax bills could be sent out Oct. 1 with the new tax classification.

Last year, the council set the tax classification in December, and third quarter tax bills went out in early January with the new rate. Residents were hit with property tax increases averaging 18 percent in their third quarter bills.

The legislation will go to the city council for approval. If passed by the council, the legislation would require the mayor's signature. A home rule petition would also require passage by the state Legislature, as well as the governor.

Mayor William Phelan said he also wants to set the tax classification as soon as possible each year.

"We are more than happy to set the tax rate as soon as we possibly can," said Phelan. "The city has set the tax rate in December for as long as I can remember. It was not done as an arbitrary date. We will try to get the tax rate set as early as possible and cooperate in any way we can."

DANIEL RAYMONDI

Phelan pointed out that the Legislature passed a special law last year allowing the Department of Revenue more time to certify tax rates because it fell behind in December.

But Raymondi said mandating an earlier date is the right thing to do.

"Residents are tired of post-election sticker-shock," said Raymondi. "It's the right thing to do – the sooner we get our fiscal house in order, set the tax rate and send out the bills, the better off we will be."

Setting the tax classification during the holiday season is a mistake, because most residents are busy and not paying attention to the council's business, he said.

"There is a disconnect between voting on the budget in June and establishing the tax rate in December," said Raymondi. "This home rule petition provides more of a nexus between what we do in the budget and how it plays out in setting the tax rates."

Council President Frank McCauley said, "I say let's give it a shot. At the very least I think it will just spur people to move on things a little quicker."

Marion Fantucchio, chairwoman of the board of assessors, said the department would be hard pressed to comply with a Sept. 15 deadline every year. The city is in the midst of a three-year property re-evaluation and also trying to install new financial software in the assessor's office.

"This is a tough year," she said. "I could not say we could do it every year."

Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick said implementing Raymondi's proposal would be arduous.

"I think it's a good idea, but from a practical standpoint, it would be very difficult," he said. "Under the current environment, in terms of staffing and the software we are running, it would be a painstaking process."

Fitzpatrick said the new software may make things easier next year.

Raymondi's legislation allows the city to petition the Department of Revenue Commissioner for an extension of the date in the case of unforeseen circumstances.

He said the measure also ensures that taxpayers will know what their property taxes are prior to November elections.

If approved, the law would take effect next year, in time for the next election in November 2005.

"This is a reform measure that increases accountability, responsibility and efficiency of municipal government," said Raymondi. "It holds the city's feet to the financial fire."

Councillor Joseph Finn agreed, saying the initiative makes the mayor and city council more accountable to taxpayers. "It will also provide some relief to taxpayers by spreading the burden of the tax bills out of a longer period of time," he said.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said it was a good idea to delay implementation of the law until 2005 because it would be "nearly impossible" for the city to comply with the Sept. 15 deadline this year.

"My fear was we would be setting ourselves up for failure, that's why we decided to delay implementation for a year," he said. "But once the new software is in place and the glitches are ironed out in the assessor's and auditor's office it will be much more facile for us to achieve that goal."

QMC President Speaker At Ward 4 Senior Meeting

OPEN LETTER TO THE CITIZENS OF QUINCY AND THE MEDICAL COMMUNITY from the HOSPITAL HILL NEIGHBORHOODS ASSOCIATION

For generations the families of Hospital Hill have enjoyed Glendale Park, sledding, playing and exploring the woods. Our children have learned to play baseball on the open grassy area along Glendale Road. The four acres of woods are home to many animal species, from salamanders to red foxes, and intermittent streams pass through on their way to wetlands below. Several large beech trees, planted when the land belonged to the Adams family, grace the park.

We, like many others in Quincy, take pride in our neighborhood. This year would have been our 20th year cleaning the Park; our efforts pre-date the Cleaner, Greener Quincy program. Over the years we have worked closely with the city to maintain the park's appearance. The city mows the lawn and empties the trash barrel. Unfortunately, and quite inadvertently, when the City of Quincy sold the hospital to the Quincy Medical Center in 1999, Glendale Park was included in the sale. Today we are in grave danger of losing this precious open space.

This past December, QMC unveiled a plan to build a 3-story parking garage for three hundred cars that would, in effect, destroy Glendale Park, damage our quality of life, and undermine our property values. Our efforts to get the hospital to consider alternative locations for the garage have been dismissed. When the Quincy Conservation Commission asked us to document evidence of protected species on the site, the hospital responded by posting No Trespassing signs and a security guard, and refused us access to the site. Only after a second hearing with the QCC did QMC reluctantly grant us access for a few hours.

While the hospital has behaved in a heavy-handed manner, the Hospital Hill Neighborhoods Association has always agreed that QMC has a parking problem and has consistently expressed its willingness to work with the hospital toward a mutually satisfactory solution. The proposed parking garage location is 750 feet downhill from the back entrance of the hospital. Although QMC claims to be concerned about elderly and handicapped patients and visitors, the parking garage is so far from the hospital, all who park there will have to walk uphill through snow, ice and rain to the hospital. The proposed location makes no sense. A garage located as close as possible to the hospital is consistent with current hospital designs across the country and provides the safest, most convenient access for staff and patients. There are alternative temporary parking solutions that can be put in place while a new garage is being built.

Today QMC is considering a proposal advanced by our Mayor that would move the garage off the wooded lot and closer to its primary facility. The HHNA hopes that QMC will design and construct a facility that will harmonize with the surrounding community while being safe and convenient for those who must use the hospital. We want to work closely with QMC toward a solution that will preserve Glendale Park and be a permanent benefit to the hospital. It is our hope that the citizens of Quincy and the medical community will support us in our efforts to maintain and preserve our quality of life.

Ward 4 Seniors Vote 'Yes!'

Should Supreme Court Retain 'Under God' In Allegiance Pledge?

YES NO

If the senior citizens of Quincy's Ward 4 were members of the U. S. Supreme Court, there is little question that the phrase "under God" would remain in the pledge of allegiance to the American flag.

While others debate the question, 45 elders from Ward 4 got together and cast 45 resounding "Yes!" votes to acknowledge a Supreme Being in the pledge in The Quincy Sun's informal poll of its readers.

Thus far, the count is running 92 percent for retention of the phrase "under God," the use of which in the pledge was ruled to be unconstitutional by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in California.

That decision is now under appeal to the United States Supreme Court, which is expected to reach a decision sometime this spring. The Sun will publish the results of its poll in a later edition.

Meanwhile, feel free to register your feelings in the poll.

Simply put a check mark in the box of your choice — "Yes" to retain the phrase "under God"; or "No" to eliminate the phrase "under God" from the pledge — and send it to

3 Quincy Science Teachers Win Environmental Awards

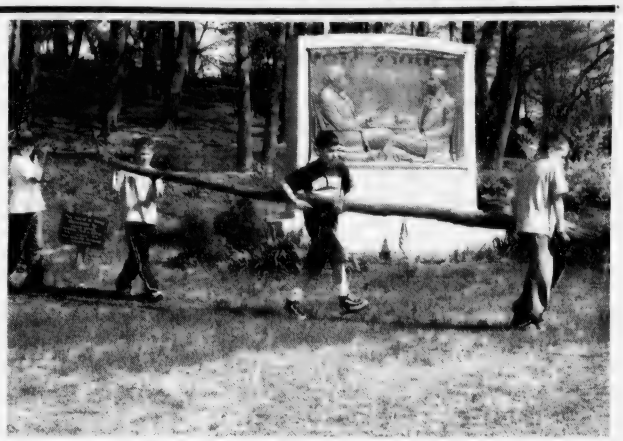
Three teachers have been announced as winners of the Quincy Environmental Network's second annual Quincy Environmental Teacher of the Year awards.

They are:

• Nancy Barron, fourth grade science teacher at Beechwood Knoll School, winner of the elementary school prize her project "BKS Explorers" in which students undertook a nine-month field study of Sailor's Home Pond.

The project culminates when the students themselves guide informational tours of the pond as part of the Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures program.

• Diane Koestner, seventh grade science teacher at Central Middle School, winner of the middle school award for her teaching of air and water quality issues in the school and its environs and establishing the programs, "Central Litter Bug Club" and "Science Seekers."



• Pete Swanson, biology and environmental science teacher at Quincy High School, winner of the high school award for the project he and his students entered into this year's statewide Environthon Competition.

Students conducted organic gardening on school property, used hydroponic systems to grow plants outside the classroom, studied renewable sources of energy and built handicap accessible raised beds for elderly housing complexes.

Each teacher receives a $300 prize to be used for the purchase of science materials.

Honorable mention in the competition went to Ellen Pierce, a first grade teacher at the Squantum School, for her leadership in involving students in gardening and recycling at the school.

The awards were presented by Dr. John Warner, a Quincy Public Schools graduate, who has achieved prominence in the field of chemistry as head of the Chemistry Department at UMass-Boston.

Mosquito Spraying Starts May 24

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project will begin spraying a pesticide May 24 for mosquito control, the Quincy Health Department announces.

Applications will occur on Thursday morning from 2 to 6:30 a.m. and continue weekly until the week of September 30.

Not all areas of the city will be treated on a given date, according to the health department. If inclement weather occurs or equipment fails, the application will be added to the next scheduled day, the department said.

The pesticide sprayed is called Anvil, which will be applied in ultra low volume sprayer at the rate of one half ounce per acre of finished spray. Anvil is a combination of two ingredients, Sumithrin and Piperonyl Butoxide. Sumithrin is a synthetic pyrethroid which imitates the natural pesticides found in chrysanthemums. Sumithrin breaks down rapidly in the environment and is expected to pose little risk to humans when used at low concentrations for mosquito control, according to the EPA.

For more information contact the Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project at 781-762-3681 or the project's website, http://www.massnrc.org/ncmcp.

Law Day Awards Presented At Quincy District Court

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The rule of law ruled the day at the city's annual Law Day ceremonies held last week at Quincy District Court.

Quincy Police Officer Robert Tapper, the hero of a Boston gun battle with a holdup man, received the Robert P. Dana Distinguished Service Award for Law Enforcement from William Keating, Norfolk County District Attorney. Tapper was cited for playing a key role in the apprehension of a man who held up the Burger King in Quincy Point and fled to Boston via the expressway.

The chase ended when the suspect's car flipped over in Boston. He emerged from the wreck firing a weapon at police. He was shot and apprehended by police.

Keating called Tapper's conduct an "amazing display of heroism."

Quincy Police Officer Steven Kelly will also receive a Dana Award for his part in the chase and subsequent shootout, according to David Traub, spokesperson in Keating's office.

Kelly was nominated by Police Chief William Falco and accepted by Keating, said Traub. Although he was not listed in the Law Day agenda, Kelly will soon receive the award, according to Traub.

The Dana awards are named for the 29-year old Metropolitan police officer killed in the line of duty 20 years ago.

Policemen from other towns honored with Dana Awards included:

Officers Brendan McLaughlin and Donal Curtin from Braintree; Officers Jeanine Matott and Keysha Bowen from Holbrook; and Lt. Richard Grimes, Officers Scott Harrington, Matthew Tinlin and Robert Winer from Weymouth.

HUBIE JONES, former Dean of Boston University School of Social Work, gives the keynote address during last week's Law Day ceremony, held at Quincy District Court.

Other awards were won by:

Assistant District Attorney E. David Levy received the Timothy J. Spillane Outstanding District Court Prosecutor Award.

State Trooper Sgt. Stephen J. Long was given the Mark S. Charbonnier Award.

Mayor William Phelan received the Alfred P. Malaney Award as the Quincy Bar Association's Man of the Year.

Robert H. Quinn, former state Attorney General and Speaker of the House, received the James S. McIntyre Humanitarian Award.

Maralin Manning, director of the Quincy Business Association, was given the Quincy Court Jason Feldman Outstanding Citizen Award for her contributions to the City of Quincy.

Meredith Morris, Quincy resident and student at Archbishop Williams High School, received the Dennis F. Ryan Essay Contest Award.

This year, Judge Mark Coven, presiding justice at Quincy District Court, added a new award on behalf of Rabbi Jacob Mann, who dedicated 60 years of his life to the Beth Israel Synagogue in Quincy. The award, called the Rabbi Jacob Mann Social Justice Award, was given to Rev. William McCarthy, or Father Bill, as many know him.

For the past several months, Rabbi Mann, 95, has been living in Jerusalem where he was born and ordained.

In a letter to Judge Coven, Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin and First Asst. Clerk Magistrate Robert Bloom, Mann wrote: "I was profoundly honored and touched" when informed of the award in his name.

And he said Father McCarthy is well deserving of the award.

"The choice of Father McCarthy as the recipient of the first award is a good and appropriate one as he is an institution in himself who always showed concern and compassion for the citizens of Quincy," Mann wrote.

The law day address was delivered by Hubie Jones, former Dean of Boston University School of Social Work.

During his speech, Jones stressed the importance of the Constitution and Bill of Rights, saying they bring restraint to the nation, he said.

"Laws are the bedrock of our nation," he told those in attendance. "Without restraint there would be chaos and anarchy."

He said new laws usually reflect a changing society, and pointed to the recent struggle over gay marriage as one such example. He also stressed the importance of the courts and how they have paved the way for social justice.

The Law Day ceremonies closed with a standing ovation for 18 area servicemen who returned home after serving overseas in Operation: Iraqi Freedom.

Rev. McCarthy gave the invocation and Rev. Richard Brondyke of the Fort Square Presbyterian Church delivered the benediction.

SGT. STEPHEN LONG (second from left), a 26-year veteran of the State Police, receives the Mark S. Charbonnier Award. Pictured with him are, from the left, State Trooper and Charbonnier's partner Kenneth Halloran, Sgt. Long, Lt. Bryan Greeley and Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin.

MARALIN MANNING (left), director of the Quincy Business Association, receives the Quincy Court Jason Feldman Outstanding Citizen Award for her contributions to the City of Quincy. ## Meredith Morris Receives Essay Award At Law Day

Meredith Morris of Quincy, a junior at Archbishop Williams High School, received the Dennis F. Ryan Student Essay Contest Award at this year's Law Day, held at Quincy District Court.

Her essay addressed a theme of Law Day, "Equality by Law, Brown vs. Board of Education," in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the landmark case that outlawed segregation in public schools. The award was presented to her by Michael Ryan, son of the late Dennis F. Ryan.

"I thought segregation ended with the Civil War, but I realized that this case was only 50 years ago, and it was still going on then, and still is in some ways with some inner city schools," said Morris.

MEREDITH MORRIS of Quincy, student at Archbishop Williams High School, won the essay contest in memory of Dennis F. Ryan, former clerk of courts. Presenting the award to Morris is Ryan's son, Dennis Michael Ryan.

RABBI JACOB MANN is shown in Jerusalem receiving the letter informing him that the Rabbi Jacob Mann Social Justice Award has been established in his honor as an annual Law Day award at Quincy District Court. The letter was hand delivered by Mrs. Anita Raymond who lives in Israel and is the sister of First Assistant Clerk Magistrate Robert Bloom who sent it to her. The letter was from Judge Mark Covan, presiding justice; Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin and Bloom. Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John's Church, was the first recipient at last week's ceremonies. Mrs. Raymond, who is now here, is bringing back mementos of the Law Day ceremonies to Rabbi Mann who served six decades at Beth Israel Synagogue and is now living in Jerusalem.

Which Is Best For Building A Deck?

Pressure Treated Or Regular Lumber?

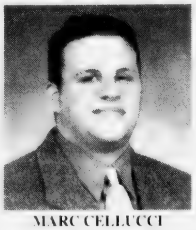
ON THE HOUSE
BY PAUL O'MALLEY

Question: I'm planning to build a deck. Should I use pressure treated or regular lumber?

Answer: If I'm not mistaken our city code would call for pressure treated (PT) for the structural part of the deck like the joists, girders, if any, and posts. In other words, all structural elements under the decking material.

Other than that I personally don't see the need for any other PT material. I would strongly suggest pine for any trimwork. Painted or stained, it will hold up just as good as PT.

I would also suggest 1 x 4 douglas fir for the decking material. I installed mahogony on my rear deck. I find it swells when it gets wet and splinters. I plan on replacing it with douglas fir someday soon.



If maintained properly like any deck requires, fir can hold up and age better than PT. PT over time can shrink and check (small vein-like cracks). Fir will maintain its original shape. It's a really elegant but tough wood. It may be a little pricier than PT per foot but it's worth the investment.

If you plan on using lattice along the bottom of the deck, I would recommend installing the plastic kind. This usually comes in white or dark green but I don't see why you couldn't paint it any color you want with an exterior latex paint or Krylon's new plastic furniture spray paint.

For posts, railings and ballasters, red cedar is nice and durable. Painting it can be a challange because it contains an oil called tannin. With the proper primer it can be sealed to prevent bleeding through any paint or stain you wish to use.

Floor Coverings To Suit Taste, Budget

(NAPS)—When describing floor coverings, the key word today is choice. Consumers have a wide range of styles and options to choose from—each with its own [illegible] and [illegible].

[illegible] a [illegible] often be helpful to consult a professional.

To help you rise above the surface and find a path towards underfoot enlightenment, the World Floor Covering Association has prepared the following tips to ease the process.

It's always best to begin the process by doing a little homework. Books, magazines and related Web sites will reveal that flooring is broken down into just six categories: woods, ceramics, stones, laminates, resilients and carpeting. Learning the basics about each one—such as its durability, compatibility, price and color range—can help guide your search for the floor covering that best suits your lifestyle and budget.

There's no doubt that new floor coverings represent a significant and costly purchase. Keep in mind, however, studies show that if they are chosen well, not only can they last for years, but they will increase the resale value of your home.

Wood floors add warmth and character to almost any room and are available in many different styles, colors and prices. When shopping for a wood floor, you'll find that there is a wide range of varieties—from solid wood, to engineered planks, to bamboo. There are advantages to each type, depending upon the room, your budget and your home's subfloors.

Ceramic flooring, which has been around for centuries, is available today in a wide variety of designs and finishes. It's durable, easy-to-care-for, environmentally friendly, fire resistant and very versatile. It's also scratch and water resistant.

Marble and stone floors are another popular choice that can help create a natural and elegant look. Varieties include limestone, marble and travertine—all of which are available in an array of finishes and come in either slabs or tiles. This flooring variety works well in high-traffic areas, as it is extremely durable and easy to care for. Note that all types of stone floors require a strong sub-floor.

For exceptional durability, laminate floors should be a key consideration. They are similar in construction to the laminate countertops found in kitchens with added performance features. Laminate flooring can visually replicate a wide variety of other types of flooring, including wood, tile and stone. It's relatively easy to install, extremely durable and completely stain resistant.

Resilient floors are well recognized for their high performance, wide assortment of stylish options and for being a tremendous value. They are often used in kitchens and baths because of the variety of colors and styles available, as well as their resistance to moisture. This category includes linoleum, vinyl, rubber and cork.

Finally, for warmth, comfort and ease of installation, carpeting remains a standalone favorite. Carpeting comes in a wide variety of colors, patterns and textures and can be a wise choice if noise is a consideration.

Protecting Your Home From Future Flood Damage

As cleanup continues in the aftermath of the heavy rains and flooding that struck Massachusetts during April, state and federal officials urge disaster victims to take measures to prevent the damage from happening again.

Since the April 22 presidential declaration, many residents of the five declared counties (Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk, Suffolk and Worcester) have registered for disaster assistance by calling the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) at 1-800-FEMA (3362) or 1-800-462-7585 (TTY).

There are simple, inexpensive ways to prevent or reduce future flood damage. FEMA calls such actions hazard mitigation.

While some mitigation measures such as acquisition of structure or elevation of buildings are costly, long-term projects, there are simple home improvements that residents of flood-prone areas can make to help themselves.

"It's safer, cheaper, and ultimately much easier to limit future destruction than to repair it afterward," Federal Coordinating Officers James Russo said. "The rebuilding phase of a disaster is the ideal time to consider ways to limit future damage."

"Although many recommended measures require employing a contractor, some can be accomplished by a competent do-it-yourselfer," said State Coordinating Officer Cristine McCombs, acting state director of the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA). "It is important, however, to talk to your local building officials before you start any work. They can provide information on local standards and building codes."

Several suggestions to keep damages from happening are:

• Relocate or elevate water heaters, furnaces, and major appliances. Water heaters, furnaces and appliances such as washers and dryers in the basement can be elevated on a masonry or pressure-treated wood base at least 12 inches above the previous high-water mark or the base flood elevation. Appliances can also be moved to the first or second floor. Some heating systems can be suspended from the basement ceiling.

• Elevate or relocate electrical systems. Electrical panel boxes, circuit breakers, wall switches, and wall outlets should be relocated at least 12 inches above flood level or even moved to a higher floor. A licensed electrician familiar with local codes should be hired to do this work. An uninterrupted electrical supply will allow the homeowner to move back to the home more quickly after a flood.

• Install a septic backflow valve. Flooded septic systems can force sewage back into the home. Not only is this an unpleasant experience, it also presents a health risk. Backflow valves can be installed inside or outside the structure but must conform to local building codes.

• Build interior and exterior floodwalls. A watertight masonry floodwall can be constructed to enclose furnaces, utilities, and appliances on the lowest floor of the building. On the outside, a similar wall could be constructed around the perimeter of the basement opening to keep water from entering.

• Anchor your fuel tank. Fuel tanks, either inside or outside the home, should be anchored to prevent them from overturning or breaking loose in a flood. Metal straps and bolts should be non-corrosive, and wood structural supports should be pressure treated.

Funding for hazard mitigation projects may be available by victims of the recent floods who qualify for U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) low-interest loans. SBA may increase a disaster recovery loan by up to 20 percent if the funds are used for mitigation projects to protect the house from future flood damage.

For more information about hazard mitigation, visit the FEMA Web site at www.fema.gov or call the National Flood Association (NFIP) toll-free line, 1-888-CALL-FLOOD.

On March 1, 2003, FEMA became part of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. FEMA's continuing mission within the new department is to lead the effort to prepare the national for all hazards and effectively manage federal response and recovery efforts following any national incident.

Parking Fee Hikes Are On The Way

tion hours of the lots to 11 p.m. Currently, the lots close at 8 p.m., allowing motorists to park all day and leave after 8 p.m. without paying.

The committee voted 6-1 in favor of the fee hikes, with Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi dissenting. Councillor John Keenan and Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro were not present.

The city council is expected to approve the proposal at next week's meeting, but some councillors and representatives from downtown businesses expressed the need for the city to come up with a validation system for motorists who utilize downtown shops.

Although a validation system is not contained in the current plan, Lamotte said, "we could consider the option."

Lamotte said a validation system would require support from local merchants and business owners in the downtown area.

Maralin Manning, director of the Quincy Business Association, said such a system would be beneficial to seniors and regular customers in the downtown area. She called the free two-hour parking a "disaster" for the city.

Dean Rizzo, executive director of Quincy 2000 Collaborative, agreed that the city should take a look at providing some sort of validation system.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin proposed giving discounts to seniors and veterans.

"Carving out some exemptions is a legitimate thing to do," said Councillor Joe Finn. "One of the fears is that the elderly who are on fixed incomes will look at these fee hikes as a disincentive to coming to the downtown area – we have to consider that."

Finn suggested that city officials meet with members of the business community to come up with an appropriate plan for validating parking.

In other news, the committee debated and ultimately tabled a city proposal to overhaul the residential parking permit program.

Lamotte presented a rough draft of an ordinance that calls for the creation of residential parking zones near the city's major traffic generators, such as schools, retail centers and MBTA stops.

Residents on these streets would be required to purchase a parking permit, at a cost of $10 annually. Under the draft proposal, two parking permits would be allowed for each dwelling. Each resident issued a parking permit would be allowed to have two visitor permits to accommodate visitors to the dwelling.

Parking stickers would be color-coded to distinguish between neighborhoods, said Lamotte. The streets covered by the permits would be also printed on the stickers.

Most councillors found Lamotte's proposal to be complex and agreed to take up the matter at a later date.

Council President Frank McCauley described it as a "bureaucratic nightmare."

Finn suggested the plan was "mere window dressing."

But most councillors agreed that there is a critical need to address the city's residential parking situation.

Phelan Vows 'Leaner' Budget

get," said Phelan.

Since taking office, Phelan said the administration has downsized the number of city employees by 120 positions, or 13 percent.

The mayor is also proposing to consolidate the motor vehicle repair shops at various city departments, such as the police, DPW and Park Department.

Phelan also wants to combine the city's 911 emergency system, which is currently located at the police and fire departments. His proposal would combine the system and have it centrally located at the police department.

"This move will allow us to downsize in both the police and fire departments without any impact to public safety," he said. "We are taking a comprehensive look at the entire budget to continuously see how we can best provide services in the most cost efficient manner."

SPRING CAR CARE

Maintaining A Vehicle's 'Lifeblood'

Fluids in a car are the vehicles' lifeblood. Checking them is a vital service procedure. Ignoring them can cause major problems, breakdowns and costly repairs.

Joel Burrows, a.k.a. "The Car Doctor" and vice president of training/R&D at Precision Tune Auto Care (PTAC), provides the following information.

Automatic Transmission Fluid is an amazing fluid," explains Burrows. "It transfers the power for your engine to the drive shaft(s) that ultimately drive the wheels of your vehicle. In addition it must lubricate, cool, clean and protect vital transmission components from corrosion. This remarkable fluid is under severe stress as the vehicle shifts thousands of times a week." With each shift, the fluid gradually loses the ability to perform its vital function. Many transmission problems are a direct result of nothing more than the fluid being what some automobile manufacturers term..."worn out." Regular servicing will prolong transmission component life and maintain proper transmission operation and shift quality. If short trips, stop and go driving, extreme temperature conditions (hot and cold) or towing a trailer are in your future, then servicing your transmission once a year or every 15,000 miles is just what the doctor orders.

Brake Fluid is the hydraulic fluid that allows the pressure from your foot to ultimately stop the vehicle," Burrows notes. Brake fluid lubricates and protects vital braking system components from corrosion. However, brake fluid does absorb moisture and becomes contaminated with small metal particles. Brake fluid should be tested by your automotive service professional at each oil change to determine if servicing is needed. Some manufacturers recommend a brake fluid change every two years or 24,000 miles.

Coolant/Anti-Freeze removes and transfers heat while lubricating and protecting cooling system components from corrosion," Burrows said. "There is a rainbow of coolant colors (green, red, orange and gold) to confuse today's consumer. However, they can be regrouped into two categories....long life (red, orange and gold) and conventional coolants (green). Regardless of which type is used in your vehicle, two tests should be performed to check the coolant/antifreeze ability to function properly." The concentration or mixture should be 50.50 for most vehicles. This allows for proper freeze protection while preventing your vehicle from overheating. In addition, proper heat transfer allows your vehicle's engine to run at the correct temperature.

Engine Oil operates in a very hostile environment. Additives, included in all motor oil chemistry, are necessary to allow the oil to withstand severe operating conditions. These additives do wear out and engine oil does break down. How quickly this happens depends on your driving habits. Short trips, frequent starts and stops and periods of slow speed or idle operation prevent the engine from operating at optimum temperatures. If you operate your vehicle in this manner, your oil should be changed at 3,000 to 5,000 intervals.

Power Steering Fluid has recently become a topic of interest as a fluid service. Today's modern vehicle often incorporates electronic control components in the power steering system. System designs are placing a tremendous strain on the power steering fluid. This fluid becomes contaminated with particles as components wear. While automotive manufacturers have no recommendations for power steering fluid service intervals, the aftermarket finds that regular serving prolongs the life of power steering system components. We recommend that the power steering fluid be replaced once a year or ever 15,000 miles.

Strength Machines vs. Free Weights

Q: My current resistance-training routine consists of using strength machines. I have always wanted to try using free weights, but my friend tells me that free weights will cause me to "bulk up." Is that true? — *T. Murphy, Englewood, N.J.

A: The notion that using free weights will cause you to bulk up has been around for many years. If you pump free weights, the idea goes, you will end up with huge muscles, a disappearing neckline and large, muscular thighs. Sadly, this notion has prevented many people from adding a beneficial form of exercise to their resistance-training routine.

An increase in muscle mass is not solely the result of using free weights — or even resistance machines, for that matter. The frequency, intensity and type of exercise all play a major role in gaining muscle mass, along with gender, genetic predisposition and nutrition.

It is important to understand that gaining lean muscle mass is a positive result of all resistance training. Women sometimes panic when they hear the phrase "gaining muscle mass," due to the perception that muscle gain is equivalent to huge muscles. The terms "toning" and "firming" have become more accepted, but these terms shouldn't limit your variety when choosing types of exercises.

The benefit of increased lean muscle mass through resistance training goes beyond having a sculpted body. It also helps burn calories throughout the day, promoting body-fat loss, and increases bone strength, which can aid in the prevention of certain conditions such as osteoporosis.

A well-rounded exercise program can include both free weights and machines. Before beginning the use of free weights, however, it is recommended that you consult a fitness professional for proper lifting techniques, selecting exercises to fit your personal fitness goals and determining the appropriate resistance, sets and reps for each exercise.

With free weights, there is a greater need to learn proper lifting techniques to prevent injury. Knowing how to lift free weights is more important than how much weight you lift.

'Look Good, Feel Better' Session June 7 At Oncology Center

The American Cancer Society will offer a "Look Good...Feel Better" session Monday, June 7 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the South Suburban Oncology Center, 700 Congress St., Quincy.

The program is designed to help patients maintain their personal appearance while undergoing treatment for cancer. The free program features cosmetologists leading group sessions, providing tips and practical techniques for coping with hair loss and changes in the skin that often results from chemotherapy or radiation therapy.

Registration is required. To RSVP, call Colleen Whitehouse at 617-376-6435.

For more information, call the American Cancer Society at 1-800-ACS-2345.

Look Good...Feel Better offers free, one-time beauty consultations with a licensed cosmetologist or aesthetician to women who are currently undergoing cancer treatment.

"Being able to look your best makes a world of difference to someone going through treatment for cancer," said Gail Bork, American Cancer Society Community Executive for Cancer Control. "Sometimes simple changes in makeup or an attractive way of tying a head scarf can create a turnaround in a woman's outlook and bring back her optimism."

New cancer treatments are saving more lives, but they are not without side effects. Some women experience total or partial hair loss, changes in the skin tone and texture and weakened fingernails.

The American Cancer Society estimates that approximately 658,800 American women will develop some form of cancer this year. However, because of advances in medicine, the five-year relative survival rate of all cancers is 62 percent.

A variety of patient services, support programs and comprehensive cancer information are available through the Society's toll free 1-800-ACS-2345 number, which operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, in both English and Spanish and its Web site at www.cancer.org.

The American Cancer Society is dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by saving lives, diminishing suffering, and preventing cancer through research, education, advocacy and service.

Red Sox License Plates Support The Jimmy Fund

As with every year for the past 85, this could be the year for the Boston Red Sox. So, what can fans do to support the hometown team during the 2004 season and the annual quest for a pennant?

One way is to get licensed — licensed with the Jimmy Fund/Red Sox Massachusetts license plate for cars, that is.

Featuring both of the well-known Red Sox and Jimmy Fund logos, the license plate lets everyone on the road know that those sporting the plate are behind the Red Sox. Just like the Red Sox have been behind the Jimmy Fund and the fight against cancer since 1953.

An added benefit is the plate supports cancer research and care at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through its Jimmy Fund. The initial cost of the plate is $40, with $28 of the purchase price going directly to the Jimmy Fund. At renewal time (every two years), the entire $40 goes to the Jimmy Fund.

To order a Red Sox/Jimmy Fund license plate, go to the Registry of Motor Vehicles Web site (www.state.ma.us/rmv/express/plates.htm) and follow the online instructions.

A BLEEDING SHAME
If the average person were bleeding from any other part of the body, he or she would seek immediate attention, however, many people experience bleeding gums and don't give it a second thought. The fact is that your gums are not supposed to bleed any more than your nose is. Bleeding gums are a warning sign of periodontal (gum) disease, which, if it remains untreated and unchecked, can lead to tooth (and bone) loss. One of the surest ways to prevent gum disease is to floss regularly (at least once a day). As you have probably heard before, flossing gets to the plaque buildup between teeth that brushing cannot reach. If flossing seems inconvenient, think about eating without your teeth.
Do your gums bleed? Always feel free to discuss your dental concerns with us anytime. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we practice modern dentistry. Our concern is your comfort and confidence; our goal is to help you preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. Rest assured that you can trust the health of your teeth to our extensive experience and training. We offer the services of anesthesiology on site with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.
P.S. To be thorough, tooth brushing should last at least three minutes.

Volunteers 'Thrilled' Babe Ruth World Series Returning To Quincy

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

The Quincy Babe Ruth League celebrated the return of the Babe Ruth World Series for 14-year-olds to Adams Field in Quincy in August 2005 with a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy last Friday night.

President Ronald Tellefsen, International Board Member George R. Lally, Jr. and Vice President of Planning and Development Debra Horn of Babe Ruth League, Inc. attended to sign the contract that bring the series back to Quincy.

"They saw what went on here (in 2003) and were very appreciative," said Dick Lombardi, president of the Quincy Babe Ruth League who headed the push to bring the series back to Quincy. "I think they realized if they came back again it would be first class like it was here last time."

Lally said the board chose Quincy because of its first-rate facilities at Adams Field, the press boxes, the lighting. But he also said he was impressed by the people of Quincy and the sacrifices they made to host the series, which included taking in players from other states and Italy.

"Quincy did a superb job . . . but the people from Quincy made it happen, people helping people," Lally said.

The volunteers, many of whom attended last Friday night's event, said they were thrilled the series was coming back to Quincy. They said the series was not only fun for the children, but for the parents and volunteers. They said it gave them the opportunity to meet new people and renew old friendships.

"Every day was like Christmas for 10 days," said John Norton, Quincy Babe Ruth board member.

Norton said some of the parents from New Jersey invited the parents from Quincy, who hosted their children during the 2003 series, to visit over Columbus Day weekend. He said he keeps in touch with Tim Whiteside, a coach from Alabama, through e-mail. He even sent him a New England Patriots hat this winter after they won the Super Bowl.

Norton said the work of Lombardi and his wife, Connie, was instrumental to the success of the of 2003 series and to bringing it back in 2005.

"He's been outstanding," Norton said. "He does it for the kids and for the pride of the city."

But Lombardi demurred.

"The volunteers are the reason it's coming back to he city," he said.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, who attended the event, said the World Series would be great for Quincy.

"I think this is another great opportunity for the city to receive national exposure," he said. "It will attract other events into the city as well — a magnetic effect."

He said the $10 million bond the city used part of to improve Adams Field was well spent.

"It's investment coming full circle," he said.

Lombardi said he hoped the Italian team, sponsored by the Sons of Italy, would participate again this year. He said the contributions of Harold DiMattio, financial secretary, and other members of the Sons of Italy were essential to the success of last year's series.

But with the contract signed, the volunteers eager to help and the city poised for another event that promises national exposure, one matter of business remains unsolved.

"I just hope we get the same good weather we had last year," Lombardi said.

QUINCY BABE RUTH and the National Babe Ruth League signed a contract last Friday which will bring the 14-year-old Babe Ruth World Series to Quincy in August, 2005. Ronald Tellefsen, president and CEO of the Babe Ruth League, signs the contract as Debra Horn, vice president of Planning and Development of the Babe Ruth League, and Dick Lombardi, president and CEO of the Quincy Babe Ruth League, look on. # Beechwood Knoll Wins George Dunn Recreation Basketball Tourney

Beechwood Knoll captured the Quincy Recreation Department's George Dunn Basketball Tournament championship with a recent 50-37 victory over Snug Harbor.

Supervised by the department for more than 40 years, the tourney was named for Dunn by the Park and Recreation Board in 1977 in recognition of his longtime service as a member of the staff.

He was also a member of the High School Basketball Officials Association and Youth Sports Coaches in Quincy for more than 20 years.

Dunn died in 1998. However, he did present the first Dunn Trophy to 1998 champion Parker School.

Beechwood Knoll was coached by Brian Buckley, who coached with Dunn at the high school and college level for many years.

Presidents Rout Randolph For Fifth Straight Victory

BASEBALL

Something contagious has hit the Quincy High School baseball team the past couple of weeks -- a lethal offense.

On Monday afternoon, the Presidents routed Randolph, 15-2, on the road for its fifth straight victory.

Quincy has had solid pitching all season, but during the winning streak it has pumped up its offense, averaging eight runs per game and outscoring its opponents 40-8.

"We're getting a little bit of everything," said head coach Mike Draicchio. "Right now we're hitting and that's been the key. A lot of the guys are starting to come around. Everyone has been getting involved and that's been nice."

Quincy (8-4 overall, 5-4 Atlantic Coast League) traveled to Plymouth North Wednesday and will host Brighton today (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m. at Adams Field.

Junior John Folino shut down the Blue Devils, giving up one earned run on five hits and striking out six in a complete-game performance.

Offensively, Quincy pushed across five runs in the second inning and erupted for seven more in the fifth to put the game away.

In the second, senior tri-captain Paul Copson (3-for-5, three RBI) lined a two-run double that scored senior tri-captain Dan Cosgrove (hit by a pitch) and senior Scott Flaherty (fielder's choice).

Senior tri-captain Joe Priscella (4-for-5, RBI) followed with a single, junior Steve Sullivan (3-for-5, four RBI) had an RBI single and junior Ray Marchand stroked a two-run double to cap the inning.

In the fifth, Sullivan blasted a two-run double that plated junior Steve Priscella and Joe Priscella, who both singled. Sullivan scored when Marchand, Folino and Cosgove all reached on errors to load the bases. Senior Ian Jorgensen (2-for-3) cleared them with a triple and junior John Santon added an RBI single.

Last Friday, Quincy avenged a loss to Sandwich earlier in the season with a 9-1 pounding this time around at Adams Field.

Santon struck out 11 and allowed three hits in six innings. Jorgensen lined a two-run single in the fourth inning and Copson ripped a bases-loaded double in the sixth. Sullivan went 2-for-3 with an RBI.

Last Thursday, Quincy traveled to Nauset and beat the Warriors for the first time, 6-0. In his first start of the season, Sullivan tossed a four-hit shutout and fanned five. Joe Priscella went 3-for-4 with a three-run homer in the fourth inning and senior Chris Kirschner went 2-for-3 with an RBI.

Last Wednesday, Quincy defeated Dennis-Yarmouth for the second time this season with a 5-1 victory at Adams Field.

Jorgensen (2-for-3) snapped a 1-1 tie in the fourth inning when he blasted a three-run shot that Draicchio said traveled an estimated 450 feet. Folino (2-for-3) notched the win, allowing four hits while punching out 11 and walking none.

Quincy Win Streak At 6

SOFTBALL

Since dropping a pair of games to powerhouse Cardinal Spellman last month, the Quincy High School softball team has become a powerhouse itself.

The Presidents extended their winning streak to six games Monday afternoon with an easy 7-1 victory over Randolph at Pageant Field.

"We're just playing great defense," said head coach Mike Sedar. "We're getting great pitching and we've been pounding out a lot of hits."

Quincy (8-3 overall, 7-0 Atlantic Coast League) hosted Plymouth North Wednesday and will battle league rival Whitman-Hanson Monday afternoon at 3:30 at Pageant Field.

Junior quad-captain Rebi Sorensen stymied the Blue Devils, allowing no earned runs and five hits while striking out six and walking just one — her first walk in four games. She came into the game with a 1.87 ERA, second in the league.

"Rebi is the best pitcher in the ACL," Sedar said. "She's throwing the ball phenomenally. She's really pitching, hitting her spots. And Rose Bell has been great behind the plate, calling all of the pitches."

Randolph scored an unearned run in the second inning before the Presidents, batting .356 as a team, exploded for all seven runs in the fifth.

Junior quad-captain Alysia DiMuzio, the ACL's leading hitting with a .520 average, went 2-for-3 with two RBI.

Sophomore Courtney Hall (3-for-4, RBI), sophomore Kim Lebel (2-for-4, RBI), junior quad-captain Katie Walsh (2-for-3, RBI) and sophomore Leanna Lam (2-for-4) also powered the offense.

Last Friday, Quincy knocked off Sandwich, 8-5, on the road. Sorensen allowed no earned runs and struck out eight and also went 2-for-4 with two RBI. Bell went a perfect 4-for-4 and DiMuzio went 3-for-4 to spark the offense.

Last Thursday, Sorensen tossed a two-hitter to lead the Presidents to a 5-1 win over Nauset at home.

Last Wednesday, Quincy routed Dennis-Yarmouth, 15-0, on the road as Sorensen fired a three-hit shutout with seven strikeouts.

QUIT SMOKING

When white smoke comes out of the tailpipe, it is evidence of burning oil. The smoke is due to oil leaking into the cylinders around worn valve guides and/or worn oil rings. If a puff of smoke appears when the engine is first started after the vehicle has been sitting for a prolonged period, the problem is likely worn valve guides. As the vehicle has been sitting, oil lying on the cylinder heads has leaked into the cylinders. Since the engine is not running, the oil accumulates in sufficient amounts to make smoke visible for a moment when the engine is started. When an engine produces white smoke in this manner, the time for a complete engine rebuild is near.

Is your car smoking? Bring it to us? If you have any questions about anything related to your car, don't hesitate to ask any questions when you bring it into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing. We have modern test equipment, the right parts and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area. Let's get acquainted at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). HINT: When a tailpipe begins belching white smoke, it's past time for an engine overhaul.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This is a good week to look at healing bruised feelings and re-establishing weakened relationships. It's also a good week to start new projects and make new job-linked contacts.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Music and art dominate the week, giving the sensual Bovine a lot to appreciate. On the practical side, deal firmly, but fairly, with those who might try to undermine your work efforts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Good feelings continue to flow from your recent efforts to reconnect with family and friends. But be ready to defuse a dispute before it can disrupt all that peace and harmony.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A practical view of a romanticized situation could help to clarify some of its more confusing aspects before you make a decision that could be tough to undo later on.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Pay more attention to what a recent spate of workplace criticism might say about your performance and not what you think it implies about you personally. Some flexibility might be called for.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) With new information, and new promises of support (not to mention growing self-confidence), this could be a good time to restart a project you couldn't quite handle before.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Before you decide to close down a problem-loaded project and make a fresh start with someone else, try once more to reach a compromise with your balky partner. He or she might surprise you.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) While you continue earning points for your sharp negotiating skills, be alert for an attempt to undercut your efforts. You'll need to provide solid facts and figures to stay in the game.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A minor health problem might cause you to ease up on your usually busy schedule. But you'll soon be back in the saddle and ready to pick up the reins and charge ahead.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The adventurous Sea Goat might be eager to take on a new challenge. But before you do, you might want to take some time to check out previously overlooked factors.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A feeling of being overwhelmed by all that you have to do can be eased by setting priorities. Deal with the most urgent and time-sensitive situations first, and then work down the line.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Creating a calm, peaceful place for yourself in the middle of a roiling emotional whirlpool this week starts when you, and no one else, decide how to make decisions about your life.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your determination to stick with your principals wins the admiration of everyone who knows you.

First Quincy-North Game Today

The Quincy and North Quincy high school boys' lacrosse teams will square off against each other for the first time ever today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. at Teal Field.

A co-operative team the past two years, it was able to form separate squads this season as the program saw a jump in the number of players.

The Red Raiders (2-10) enter today's game having won two straight games – their first victories of the season.

"Our record is not as good as I would like, but we've scheduled some pretty good teams that have been playing lacrosse for a while," said head coach Mark Nutley.

BOYS' LACROSSE

A young team, North Quincy is led by junior tri-captains Paul Graham, Rob Gardner and Pat Casper.

On Monday, it defeated Cambridge Rindge & Latin, 8-4. Senior Billy Cox scored three goals and junior Tim Kennedy had a goal and two assists. Casper made 30 saves in net.

Last Friday, the Red Raiders edged Dartmouth High, 5-4, to break into the win column. Graham netted four goals including the game-winner with an assist from Gardner with 1:30 left to play.

Senior Ben Kelleher added the other goal and two assists. Freshman goalie Nash Winters made 27 saves and Casper played a great defensive game.

Quincy, meanwhile, comes into the game with an 0-8 record (3-9-1 if include scrimmages).

"It's a learning process," said head coach Kevin Orcutt. "We only have four kids that have played lacrosse before. We just don't have any experience.

"We do some good things but then we make some mistakes to give the other teams great chances. But we're learning and we keep getting better and better."

Led by senior quad-captains Dan Clark, Jonathan Mendez, Steve Ohlson and Angelo Venturin, the Presidents are also a young team with 10 sophomores and two juniors on the roster.

Quincy Police Join 'Click It Or Ticket' Campaign

Armed with a $12,000 state grant, the Quincy Police plan to join 260 Massachusetts law enforcement departments in support of the May Mobilization of the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau's "Click It or Ticket" campaign.

The campaign, which runs from May 10 to June 6, encourages motorists to drive sober and well-rested, obey the posted speed limits and make sure everyone in the car is properly buckled up in seat belts.

"We are serious about saving lives by vigorously enforcing all our traffic laws, particularly those involving safety belts and child safety seats," said Quincy Police Chief William Falco.

The Click It or Ticket campaign is made possible by a federal grant to the state's and combines traffic enforcement, public information, media outreach and community education.

WILLIAM FALCO

Safety Secretary Edward A. Flynn.

Since the campaign's inception in November, 2002, seat belt use in the state has increased by 11 percent between 2002 and 2003 to 62 percent, the highest ever recorded.

During the May Mobilization in 2003 there were four vehicle-related fatalities reported over the Memorial Day weekend as compared to seven during the holiday weekend in 2002.

Chief Falco and the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau noted that:

• Safety belts reduce the risk of death or serious injury in a motor vehicle crash by half, yet a 2003 survey found that only 62 percent of front seat occupants wear safety belts in Massachusetts.

• Of the 331 automobile and light truck occupants killed on Massachusetts roads in 2002, some 76 percent were unbuckled or their use of restraint was unknown.

• Massachusetts law requires that all drivers and passengers be properly restrained in a safety belt, booster seat or child safety seat. There is a $25 fine per unbuckled occupant.

• Children 12 years of age and younger, especially those riding in rear-facing child safety seats, should always ride restrained in the back seat away from an air bag.

• State law requires that children under 5 and weighing 40 pounds or less ride properly secured in a child safety seat. Children 5 and older and weighing more than 40 pounds must wear a safety belt.

• For maximum safety, children 40 to 80 pounds should ride in a booster seat. Children over 80 pounds and taller than 4-foot-9 are ready for an adult safety belt.

Blessed Sacrament On Closing List A Shock

"I was confirmed and married and my kids were baptized in that church," she said. "It's a disgrace to see it closed. It was here even in my dad's time. We have a good turnout. We're self-sustaining. The men volunteer to do the work on the church.

"I don't want to leave Houghs Neck to go to church so I tell people that I'm going across the street to the Houghs Neck Congregational Church. I'm only kidding them, of course.

"But I can't worry over it. There are too many other things."

In all there are four Quincy churches that face possible closure May 25, when Archbishop O'Malley will notify the pastors themselves in the morning and then hold a news conference at 1 p.m. to announce closures to the general public.

The four churches are Star of the Sea in Squantum, the smallest in average Mass attendance; St. John the Baptist in Quincy Center, Most Blessed Sacrament and St. Elizabeth Ann Seton, created in 1999 by the merger of Our Lady of Good Counsel in Merrymount and St. Boniface in Germantown.

However, all four are not expected to be closed since it would leave a large section of the city uncovered.

If the four were closed it would leave only four still open to serve Quincy's Catholics — Sacred Heart in North Quincy, St. Mary's in West Quincy, St. Joseph's in Quincy Point and St. Ann's in Wollaston.

Retiree Reprises 40-Year Role As Fore River Bridge Closes

By TOM HENSHAW

They called 82-year-old Bernie McCourt out of retirement for a command performance in the role he filled so well for 40 years.

McCourt, who opened and closed the drawbridge over the Fore River from 1946 to 1986, presided over the final opening of the bridge Tuesday morning.

He was joined in the ceremony by Transportation Secretary Daniel A. Grabauskas, Highway Commissioner John Cogliano and local officials.

BERNIE McCOURT, retired for, lo, these 18 years, reenacts his role he filled for 40 years as head lock and draw operator during ceremonies for the final opening of the 68-year-old Fore River Bridge.

The bridge, built in 1936 for $2,500,000, has been replaced by a temporary span, constructed in 2003 for $53 million, until a permanent one can be put in place.

"This was quite a thing for me to be the last operator," said McCourt, who is the father of Skip McCourt, the MassHighway District 5 director.

"This was my life. It was good."

Also in attendance at the closing ceremony were Mayor William Phelan, State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Ron Mariano.

"Today," said Grabauskas, "we remember the past of the Fore River Bridge but we also look forward to the future.

"We are dedicated to working with the people of Quincy and Weymouth to develop the best option for a new permanent crossing at this location."

The old bridge was built during the Depression with federal funds from the Public Works Administration, one of the few remaining public works bearing a dedication plaque from Gov. James Michael Curley.

It replaced a turn-of-the-century "swing" bridge that rode so low to the water that it had to be opened even for small pleasure boats, tying up motor vehicle traffic for long periods.

The first Fore River Bridge was not constructed until 1812 by the then-Quincy and Hingham Turnpike Company that connected Quincy and the South Shore along the coast.

Proposes $3M More For Schools, Consolidation Of Some Services

Phelan Submits $213.1M Budget To City Council

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan Monday night presented his proposed fiscal 2005 budget, a $213.1 million blueprint that contains a consolidation of some city services, a reduction in the number of municipal employees through attrition, and a five percent increase in the school budget.

Operating under "considerable and significant" fiscal obstacles, Phelan outlined a plan that he described as keeping a tight lock on spending while preserving city services in a cost-efficient manner. Although the city continues to face a tough uphill climb, Phelan said Quincy has "weathered the financial storm better than most" communities.

He said the city has faced the challenges without layoffs or reductions in services, even though other communities have closed fire stations, raided stabilization funds and voted to override Proposition 2 1/2.

"We have begun to address past unpaid bills, and an inadequate stabilization account has been somewhat fortified, but decreased revenues and cuts to our state and remain obstacles that we must collectively overcome," he told the council.

Overall, the mayor's budget hikes spending by $8.5 million over last year's budget, or a 4.1 percent increase. Nearly $6 million of that in

17 Same-Sex Couples Apply For Marriage Licenses

Seventeen same-sex couples applied for marriage licenses early this week, according to City Clerk Joseph Shea.

On Monday, 17 same-sex couples applied for licenses and two heterosexual couples applied, said Shea. That number would be the most ever in such a short period of time, he said. Since taking office in 1992, Shea said he could not remember more than 11 couples applying for a license in a single day.

Monday's rush had turned much quieter by Tuesday afternoon, as Shea said he had not received one request for a marriage license from a same-sex couple.

The city clerk's office began issuing new marriage applications Monday morning to comply with a Massachusetts Supreme Court ruling that allows same-sex couples to get married.

Massachusetts became the focus of nationwide debate after the state Supreme Judicial Court ruled 4-3 on Nov. 17 that gays and lesbians have a right under the state constitution to wed.

Under state law, [illegible] cants must wait three days before obtaining a marriage license unless they are granted a waiver from a judge.

Firefighters' Union Ratifies Contract

The Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792 ratified a new contract with the city that extends to 2006.

On a 82-36 vote, the membership approved two agreements - a three-year deal and a one-year contract that is retroactive from Nov. 1, 2002 and extends to June 30, 2006.

Tom Bowes, union president called the contracts a good deal" for the city.

"It's a good deal for everyone, the firefighters, the city and the taxpayers of Quincy," he told The Sun.

Bowes would not [illegible] rate on the details of the agreements [illegible] they are [illegible] Quincy [illegible] contract.

Deposit Mooring Fees Into Waterways Fund, Says Morrissey

Sen. Michael Morrissey wants cities and towns with mooring fees to deposit said fees into a fund specifically designed for the benefit of boaters.

Morrissey, a boater himself, filed an amendment to the state's fiscal 2005 budget that mandates cities and towns to deposit all mooring fees into a "Municipal Waterways Improvement and Maintenance Fund."

MICHAEL MORRISSEY

Last year, the Phelan administration tried to institute a mooring fee but was met with strong opposition from the boating community. The city council eventually nixed the proposal.

Morrissey said funds from a mooring fee should be specifically earmarked to benefit the boating community.

"More and more communities are looking at mooring fees as a source of revenue," said Morrissey. "But if a city or town is going to institute a fee they have a duty to the boating public to inform them of the uses of the fee and how it will improve boating and safety on water.

"Otherwise, it looks like a money grab by the city," he said.

Morrissey also wants the state to study those cities and towns that have already established mooring fees and determine where the funds are going. The amendment would set up a special commission to conduct the study.

"Currently, Quincy isn't even putting half the boat excise tax into the fund so this commission will explore that," said Morrissey. "I think both of these issues are important enough to bring up to my colleagues who represent seacoast communities and those with navigable rivers and lakes."

The Senate is expected to consider these amendments during debate of its version of the state's fiscal 2005 budget, he said.

Phelan's E911 Merger Draws Questions

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan's proposal to consolidate the city's 911 response system is receiving a cool response from the firefighters' union and some city councillors who maintain the move may prove to be a potential safety threat.

Phelan's proposed 2005 budget includes a plan that merges the city's two 911 monitoring locations into a single dispatch center at police headquarters.

The mayor said the merger would save about $500,000 for taxpayers without jeopardizing public safety. He framed the 911 proposal as one part of a tight budget plan that has sustained millions of dollars in local aid cuts in recent years.

"I know this is a controversial issue," Phelan said as he presented his plan Monday night. "I have to say that I have not heard one valid public safety reason why we need this at two locations. If there is a public safety reason that I don't know about that would change my mind. I'm all ears."

Phelan said consolidating the city's 911 system is not the equivalent of removing a fire engine from service.

"We don't want to remove an engine from the Wollaston station, or the Squantum fire station or any other station - that's a public safety issue," he said.

Calls placed to Fire Chief Paul O'Connell were not returned.

Currently, two police officers and two firefighters monitor 911 calls at both their respective locations at all times.

Under the mayor's plan, one firefighter, one police officer and several civilian workers would be on duty at the 911 dispatch center.

The current system allows firefighters to monitor calls and decide which ones are appropriate for them.

Tom Bowes, president of the Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792, described Phelan's proposal as a threat to public safety and the lives of firefighters. He said the mayor has never discussed the issue with him.

"The only thing I see that this will cost is lives, and I don't see the cost savings at all," said Bowes. "There is no doubt in my mind that this will diminish public safety but also the safety of Quincy's firefighters."

The union president said the work associated with transferring equipment and revamping the system at one location will be costly.

He said trimming the number of employees would make it difficult for those who remain to perform all their duties.

"We have had situations where firefighters had to administer instructions or first aid over the phone - those will be tough tasks to do if there is only one firefighter there," said Bowes. "There are a multitude of tasks that need to be performed at the 911 locations. If we go from two operators to one operator it will be impossible to do things like this."

Bowes said over the years the call center at the police station has been knocked out of commission at various times over the years. During the April Fool's Day blizzard in 1997, the police station's call center was interrupted for approximately 30 minutes, leaving the fire station with all the calls, he said. Having the 911 call center at both locations prevented a tragedy, he said.

Councillor John Keenan, chairman of the finance committee, said the 911 merger would be one of the most scrutinized issues during upcoming budget meetings.

"We have to take a close look at the consolidation plan and make sure it strikes the correct balance," said Keenan. "Is there a cost savings here that is worth merging the two locations? We have to determine that."

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi, chairman of the public safety committee, said he would schedule a meeting asking fire, police and city hall officials to explain the impact of the proposal.

"The system has worked very well since it was instituted," said Raymondi. "If you talk to firefighters you will hear them say that it has saved lives. I haven't heard any compelling reason why it should be changed."

Raymondi also questioned the mayor's cost savings estimate.

"It is my understanding that the cost to make the change would be quiet expensive, somewhere in the vicinity of $700,000, so I'm very skeptical," he said. "In

Joseph Duca Named To Head Inspectional Services Dept.

Mayor William Phelan has appointed Joseph "Jay" Duca as the director of Inspectional Services.

Duca had been serving as acting director since February.

"Jay Duca has done a great job leading his department and I am proud to name him director of Inspectional Services," said Phelan Tuesday.

"I believe he bring a well-rounded background and an understanding of customer service to the position. He served admirably in my administration and is most deserving of this appointment."

Duca was first hired by the city of Quincy in 2000 as a plans examiner in the Inspectional Services Department. He has earned his Massachusetts Construction Supervisors License and a ICE Certification in Legal and Administration as a City Government/Certified Building Official.

He is certified by the Massachusetts Board of Building Regulations and Standards as Commissioner/Inspector of Buildings and as a Local Building Inspector. He is also a BOAC certified Plans Examiner. Duca has over 25 years in construction and management experience.

Duca and his wife, Gloria, have been married for 26 years. They have two children, Jay and Annette, and are new grandparents.

Phelan announced that he has named J. Michael Ryan as Director of Buildings and Construction and Sanford Hampton as Operations Manager in the Department of Public Works.

Ryan has over 20 years of management experience in plumbing, heating and construction. Most recently, he was employed as a Divisions Manager for JF Plumbing Company. He has previously served as Vice President of Construction for Hamel and McAllister Mechanical Contractors.

Ryan and his wife, Nancy, have been married 26 years. They have two children, Jason and Laureen.

Hampton has more than 10 years of management experience and a proven track record of leadership and customer relations skills. He was previously employed as an Operations Manager for the RCN Corporation.

Prior to that he served six years as General Manager for Boston Exterior Works, a company that restored architectural stone, brick and wood in metropolitan Boston.

Hampton was a staff sergeant in the United States Marine Corps where he helped train other Marines in the transportation of nuclear weapons.

Hampton and his wife, Andrea Neil, have three children, Carly, Talia and Ellis.

"Throughout my administration I have been committed to bringing in the best available personnel to serve our city," Phelan said.

"I believe that we have hired three solid individuals with a wealth of professional experience and knowledge. I am pleased to announce their appointments and I look forward to working with them in our efforts to serve the people of Quincy."

The Power Of A Woman

Never underestimate the power or influence of a woman.

Especially that of a mother.

Even when it comes to volleyball.

Volleyball?

Well, that seemed to be the case Friday when the City Celebs and the Senior Olympians squared off during the 22nd annual Quincy Senior Olympics.

Mayor Bill Phelan captained the Celebs and Warren Kirkland the Olympians.

Phelan's team was mostly out of City Hall and young. The Olympians are mostly in their 60s-70s but Kirkland is 91.

No pushovers, though, the Olympians. They play a couple of times a week and keep getting better. They were ready for those young Celebs.

And that was before their secret weapon arrived.

"Let's play!" someone said.

But as the two teams were lining up in the Beechwood Community Life Center gym (the Olympians home court), someone noticed something important missing.

Jim Rendle, North Quincy High School girls volleyball coach, serving as referee, couldn't start the game. No ball.

"Where's the ball!" came shouts from the crowd.

And then, the closed gym door swung open and in came Terry Phelan, the mayor's mother, bouncing the ball with all the confidence and nonchalance of a Harlem Globetrotter as the crowd chanted "Ter-ry! Ter-ry!"

That fired up the already up-and-at-them Olympians.

His Honor had his back turned at the time, apparently giving his team a pep talk.

When he turned around, there was Mom -- a member of the opposition. Mom, who had raised him, loved him and campaigned for him.

And, as Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals announced over the P.A. system: "Terry has taught Mayor Bill all he knows."

And now, there she was -- on the other side with the opposition.

"He looked a little stunned," one observer thought.

And when she moved to the sideline as honorary coach and cheerleader for her team another onlooker noted: "I think it kind of threw him off his game."

But he gave it his all -- just like it was an election campaign. Playing intensely and, at one point, intensely enough to land on the floor. So did his executive secretary, Tom Largey. But both went down smiling.

It was, however, to be the Senior Olympians day. Obviously in tip top form (and maybe a little home court advantage) the Olympians took two out of three games for the championship and the coveted trophy.

MAYOR WILLIAM PHELAN and his mother, Terry Phelan, with the Senior Olympics volleyball championship trophy. Her team got to keep it.

So, hail to the champs:

Kristen Johnson, Joan Kierman, Virginia Lindsay, Barbara McConagy, Joseph Hendry, Jim Lynch, Edward Kelly, Robert Carlson, Robert Kravetz, Patrick O'Toole, and of course, Captain Kirkland -- and Terry Phelan.

And to the Celebs, nice try but like the Red Sox, wait'll next year:

Jay Davis, Dave McCarthy, Ron Donovan, Lori Connolly, Liz Fitzpatrick, Sanford Hampton, Kristen Keohane, Peter Racicot, Bob Crowley and His Honor and his executive secretary.

Phelan got to at least hold the trophy. That was when he presented it to the Senior Olympians including his mother.

Someone thought they heard her trying to lessen the agony of defeat.

Something like: "It really was a good game."

And, a fun day.

IRS Warns Of E-Mail Scheme To Steal Taxpayer's Identity

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is warning taxpayers of an e-mail-based scheme that is aimed at tricking them into revealing such personal information as social security and credit card numbers.

The unsuspecting marks receive an e-mail claiming they are under investigation for tax fraud and are subject to prosecution. They can "help" the investigation by revealing "real" information.

They are directed to an official-looking Web site, http://deptreas.org/irs/7634// , where detailed personal information must be provided to dispute the charge.

The identity thieves then use the individual's personal data to take over their financial accounts, run up charges on their credit cards, apply for loans or credit cards in the victim's name and file fraudulent tax returns.

At the request of the IRS, the internet service provider that was host the Web site has shut the site down. However, new versions of the scam could surface in the future.

Remember, the IRS does not use e-mail to contact taxpayers about issues related to their accounts. Offical taxpayer contact usually includes a letter on IRS stationery and a contact phone number.

Taxpayers who believe they have received suspect communication are urged to call the Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration (TIGTA) on the toll-free fraud referral hotline, 1-800-366-4484.

They can also contact the IRS at 1-800-829-1040 and a representative will verify the taxpayer's account status and determine whether a communication is legitimate.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 postcard view of the Purity Lunch that was located at 73 East Howard St. across the street from the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy Point. Claus Samuelson, shown here with his wife Lavina, operated this lunch counter restaurant for almost 20 years. Although it doesn't look big enough, inside there were three long lunch counters with over 40 stools. The store also sold confectionaries, personal items and tobacco products such as cigars and chewing tobacco. The clientele were the rank and file shipyard workers. Samuelson was forced to close his business in the middle 1930s when the government widened the street and had to demolish the building. He then became a sexton at the Faith Lutheran Church on Granite Street until he died in the early 1950s. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Judge Rules For Incinerator Foes

This Week
42 Years Ago

Superior Court Judge Edward O. Gourdin upheld a petition by 80 Quincy residents that would, in effect, prevent the city from constructing an incinerator in the Hardwick Quarry area.

Judge Gourdin ruled invalid an action by the City Council to change the zoning of the land from Residence B to a category known as "city property." The judge said there is no such category.

The residents had brought the suit after the city announced plans to build an incinerator on the quarry site, a plan that was endorsed by voters by a big margin in the last election.

Ralph H. Colson, state director of physical education and safety, told a Quincy Lions Club luncheon that the Russians have a six-year lead over the United States in the field of physical education.

Colson said he had an idea that would close the gap in six months.

"Send them 20 million of our television sets and give them to Russian children," he said. "I'm not talking politics. We have watched our country go to pot."

Ex-Prisoners Of War Commander Speaks Out On Mistreatment

The possibility that Iraqi detainees in a prison outside Baghdad may have been mistreated by American troops is abhorrent to the American Ex-Prisoner of War organization.

We, who ourselves were the victims of brutality during our captivity, most strongly request that charges be brought against those implicated in these crimes and that measures be taken immediately to prevent the recurrence of any such acts in the future. We feel that all those who serve honorably in our military are tarnished by this kind of callous behavior.

When American POWs returned from the horrors of German and Japanese prison camps at the end of Word War II, ill from starvation, untreated wounds, unsanitary living conditions, and physical and psychological abuse, they were surprised to learn that German POWs in the United States lived as well as our own military. They enjoyed good meals, clean beds and clothing, excellent medical care, PX and library privileges and even movies.

While we were not upset by the humane treatment of the German POWs, in providing them with life's necessities, we did find it incredible that beer was available for their enjoyment and, adding insult to injury, American girls were brought in to dance with them at weekend parties. This was far beyond the mandates of the Geneva Conventions for the treatment of POWs, but we would rather have seen the Germans overindulged, than have them suffer the same atrocities that we did at the hands of our captors.

No Place For Hate Means No Place For Traditional Values

The Quincy Human Rights Commission is anti family, pro gay and anti traditional values. The recent "debate" hosted on same sex marriage was not a debate but a platform for the Commission to again push its liberal agenda.

This was demonstrated by the shameful treatment of Mr. Keating and the Rev. Brondyke by several members of the audience and the moderator's failure to control the audience. At one point the moderator even joined the pro gay panelist in grilling Mr. Keating and Rev. Brondyke, who represented the opposition to same sex marriage.

The Quincy Human Rights Commission, the same group that called the students of North Quincy High School "racist" because of the Yakoo mascot, has done precious little for the Asian community save a video which, while laudable will have little impact overall.

There has been little advocacy for the Asian community in the City of Quincy, except by the Christian community, a community the Quincy Human Rights Commission seems to disparage.

"No Place for Hate" is a liberal code word for intolerance of traditional values of marriage between one man and one woman, patriotism and the American way.

We can do well without the "No Place for Hate" sign at City Hall and without the Quincy Human Rights Commission.

17 Same-Sex Couples Apply For Marriage Licenses

at a probate or district court. Same-sex couples will be able to marry today (Thursday).

On the "Notice of Intention of Marriage," the words "Bride" and "Groom" have been replaced with "Party A" and "Party B." A question also asks non-Massachusetts residents where they intend to reside.

Quincy residents Stephen Coady, 40, and his partner, James Hahn, 36, applied for a marriage license on Monday and encountered "cordial" and "respectful" employees in the clerk's office.

"We were just like everyone else filing for a marriage license," said Coady. "Everyone was very cordial, respectful and helpful. As we came out of City Hall, we saw other supporters outside, it was a good feeling."

Together for eight years, Coady and Hahn are expected to take their vows today (Thursday) by a Justice of the Peace in Quincy.

"We really wanted to do this in Quincy, our hometown," he said. "We live in Quincy and we think Quincy has been a very fair-minded place. We are not looking for special rights, just the same rights as everyone else."

Shea said he does not plan on issuing a license to non-Massachusetts residents unless they intend on residing in the Bay State. If non-residents apply, he said he would make them aware that no other state allows same-sex marriage.

Gov. Mitt Romney, an opponent of gay marriage, warned recently that he would strictly enforce a 1913 law he says forbids out-of-state gay couples from marrying in Massachusetts unless they intend on moving to the Bay State.

Under state law, knowingly violating the 1913 statute could carry a fine of between $100 and $500 or up to a year in prison or both.

Clerks in some communities – Cambridge, Provincetown and Worcester – have challenged Romney's directive, saying they would plan on issuing licenses to same-sex couples in other states.

Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating told The Sun his office would not prosecute anyone who issues a marriage license to out-of-state couples.

"We've done our research in anticipation of this issue," said Keating, "and it is our view that the 1913 law no longer applies - it is non-functional at this point."

Keating said a 1967 U.S. Supreme Court case, Loving v. The State of Virginia, nullified the 1913 law.

"Our job is to enforce the law and the U.S. Supreme Court case supercedes the 1913 law," he said. "That's our opinion and we feel very comfortable with that."

Attorneys general in Rhode Island and Connecticut were scheduled to issue opinions on whether gay marriages performed in Masssachusetts will be valid in their states.

The coming of the bridge was credited with rejuvenating Quincy Point and North Weymouth as the thriving commercial districts they are today.

Construction of the 1,445-foot temporary bridge, with a 216-foot lift span began in September, 1999, with two lanes of each of north and south traffic and a pedestrian sidewalk. It opened for traffic last November.

Committee Named To Direct 'Planting Pride In Quincy'

Mayor William Phelan's campaign "Planting Pride in Quincy" took a big step forward with the appointment of a committee to supervise beautification efforts around the city.

The committee held its first meeting the other day and is scheduled to meet again today (Thursday) at 3 p.m. at the Richard J. Koch Park and Recreation Complex, one Merrymount Parkway.

Up for discussion will be the existing "Adopt-an-Island" program, development of an "Adopt-a-Sidewalk" program, more aggressive litter removal and landscape improvements to the city's gateways.

Members of the committee include:

David Murphy, director of operations for Mayor Phelan.

Thomas P. Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry & Cemetery Departments.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele.

Public Works Commissioner Jay Fink.

Peter O'Connell, Lynne Houghton and Dean Rizzo, business representatives.

Henry Bosworth and Elizabeth Campbell, press representatives.

Jo Costello, Wollaston Garden Club; Sally Erickson, Squantum Garden Club; Kathy McIntosh and Attorney Jack Garland, citizen representatives.

"My goal is to transform Quincy into one of the most beautiful cities in America," said Phelan, when he announced plans for the Planting Pride in Quincy campaign.

If there is a deadline for the campaign, it is July 26-27 when judges from America in Bloom will be in Quincy to rate the city in a national contest for the most beautiful city among its size in America.

Topics discussed at the first committee meeting included a letter to new homeowners detailing the importance of keeping their properties neat and clean and a PR campaign emphasizing awareness.

Members also discussed letters to absentee landlords from the Health Department and ways to encourage license holders to maintain properties and speaking to owners of problem buildings.

MAYOR WILLIAM PHELAN gets an update from Park Department Manager Paul Franz on the progress of the Mitchell/McCoy Softball Complex reconstruction while Park Director Tom Koch (center) looks on. The facility, exclusively for female use, is the second major project in the Mayor's Park Improvement Plan.

Over 1,000 Elders Homeless In Massachusetts, Census Reveals

On the night of Feb. 18, 2004, 1077 elders were homeless in Massachusetts, an increase of 9 percent over the same study conducted in 2000.

A census conducted by the Massachusetts Housing and Shelter Alliance and the Elders Living at Home Program counted these elders living in emergency shelters, transitional programs, and hospitals across the state. Countless more are believed to have spent that night on the street or otherwise without proper shelter.

"This happens at a time when the Elder Residential Assessment and Placement Program (ERAPP), a program that specifically targets homeless and at-risk elders to keep them off the streets, is being threatened with elimination from the state budget" said Joseph Finn, executive director of the Massachusetts Housing and Shelter Alliance and former director of Fr. Bill's Place in Quincy.

JOSEPH FINN

The 9 percent increase represents a disturbing trend to homeless providers.

"The results are not at all surprising, based on what we've been seeing in the shelters and other programs, but they are still difficult to accept," said Ellen O'Brien, director of the Elders Living at Home Program in Boston. "This census shows how badly we are failing the seniors of the Commonwealth.

"What is especially troubling," O'Brien said, " is that right now programs like ERAPP, which have proved effective at lifting these people out of homelessness quickly and permanently, are struggling to survive due to cuts in state funding."

The Census revealed that:

- 38% of all homeless elders are veterans
- 24% were over age 62; 7% were over age 70
- 17% of homeless elders were women
- 64% had some kind of physical disability
- 51% suffered from a mental illness or disability

"Surely, we can do better for elders than homeless shelters," Finn said.

"We need to expend every effort to ensure that no one's 'golden years' have to be spent within the dependence and impoverishment of a homeless shelter.

"The models to appropriately house these homeless elders exist. Let's just do what it will take to make it happen."

Legion Fundraiser To Provide Phone Cards For Servicemen

Quincy American Legion Post 95 will sponsor a benefit concert tomorrow (Friday) to raise money to purchase telephone cards for an estimated 90 Quincy military men and women on active duty around the world.

The event, featuring a performance by The Drifters, who gained fame as a rock 'n roll group in the '60s, will take place starting at 7 p.m. in the hall at the Marriott Hotel in West Quincy. Tickets are $25 per person.

The aim is to provide a pre-paid telephone card with $50 worth of calls to every serviceman or woman or to their folks back home, whichever they prefer. The cards are being supplied by the card companies at a discount.

John "Jake" Comer, former national commander of the American Legion, and Robert Loughran, post commander and a Vietnam veteran, will headline a brief speaking period.

Kelly Makes Plea For Ward 1 Parishes

LEO KELLY

Calling its impact a "major loss" to the community, Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly is calling on Archbishop Sean O'Malley to save the Ward 1 parishes slated for possible closure.

Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Houghs Neck was recently added to a list of some 100 parishes targeted for possible closure by the Archdiocese of Boston. St. Elizabeth Ann Seton, also located in Ward 1, is on the list as well. That parish is the result of a 1999 merger of Our Lady of Good Counsel in Merrymount and St. Boniface in Germantown.

Two other churches, St. John the Baptist in Quincy Center and Star of the Sea in Squantum are also slated for possible closure.

In a letter to Archbishop O'Malley, Kelly explained the importance of the Ward 1 churches, saying they have combined to give residents nearly 200 years of service.

"The neighborhood church is a lifeline, serving neighbors, friends, family, social functions and all quality of life issues," Kelly wrote to O'Malley. "The churches in my Ward are the only Catholic Churches for five miles. That may not appear to be a great distance, but we live on a peninsula, and many have no transportation to take them the five miles needed."

Kelly said he is particularly concerned about the fate of Most Blessed Sacrament.

"My family has been a strong member and supporter of the parish for more than 75 years," he wrote. "I cannot remember a time that Most Blessed Sacrament has not been an important part of my life."

The church "has done more for the entire Houghs Neck community than any other person, place or thing," Kelly wrote. "It has been a focal point of the Houghs Neck community.

"All the parishes of Ward 1 are of equal importance in that all three churches fill a void in a sometimes not so pleasant world," he said. "It would be a major loss for the community to close one parish. Closing all of them would be a tragic loss for all residents and neighbors."

Phelan Submits $213.1M Budget To Council

creases is dedicated to fixed costs, such as health insurance and retirement contributions, he said. Much of the rest of the increase can be attributed to the school budget, which is jumping nearly $8 million, he said.

According to the budget, 44 percent of expenditures are dedicated to fixed costs, a $6 million increase over last year's number. The police and fire departments budgets total $34.8 million, or 16 percent of the plan. The school department's budget will amount to $66.7 million.

Phelan outlined a five-point plan to help ease the tax burden on homeowners. He wants to aggressively collect outstanding fees and taxes owed to the city, attract more businesses and new growth through a series of initiatives, increase worker productivity, raise certain city fees, whittle the municipal workforce and upgrade various software systems to make city government run more efficiently.

The mayor called the budget a "good start" and said he is open to suggestions on how to improve it.

A number of "disturbing" factors – increased property values, diminished state aid and decreasing commercial property values – have placed a greater burden on homeowners who pay property taxes, he said.

If the city had received level funding in local aid since fiscal 2002, more than $17 million would have been in Quincy's coffers to date, he said.

"That's an extraordinary figure to overcome," said Phelan. "Those tax increases would not have occurred if that didn't happen."

Phelan also suggested that Gov. Mitt Romney put off his tax cut idea and instead give the money back to the cities and towns as a property tax cut.

The city council's finance committee will review the budget over five sessions in the next few weeks. By law, the council cannot increase the mayor's budget, only approve or cut.

Some highlights of Phelan's budget include:

• Five percent increase in the school department's budget;

• Reduction in the number of city employees through attrition, from 873 to 857;

• Consolidate E911 system;

• Merge Equipment Maintenance Department to come under the direction of the Park Department;

• Create the position of Chief Financial Officer;

• Institute mooring fees for boaters;

"No one likes to raise fees but some user fees could be considered luxury fees," said Phelan. "I believe it's a fair assessment, especially if they can relieve the overburdened taxpayer."

• Implement new financial management software;

• Propose change in FICA benefit for part-time municipal employees;

Councillor Joseph Finn said he is concerned with a number of Phelan's budget proposals that require legislative action, such as the chief financial officer and a merging of the equipment maintenance department.

"The budget is out there with a host of legislative items that haven't been presented to the council yet – it is very problematic," said Finn. "These are very complicated issues and we need the time necessary to determine whether they are in the best interests of the city."

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro said he is concerned with the impact of the mayor's budget on residential homeowners, who were recently hit with 18 percent property tax increases.

"My eye is towards how this will impact the residential taxpayer," said Gutro. "I'm looking at this budget through the narrow lens of the residential taxpayer, the ability of the city to do more with less and to continue to do the little things that make the City of Quincy such a wonderful place to live."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin agreed, saying councillors will pay particular attention to expenditures and how it affects homeowners.

"We will hear the echoes in our mind of the voices of the taxpayers who wants us to remember the nexus between the budget bottom line and the property taxes that are paid," said Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin. "We need to keep that in mind during the process."

Coughlin said he was pleased to learn that Engine 4 in Wollaston will not be taken out of service. The apparatus is located in Coughlin's Ward.

"I am certainly pleased to hear the mayor's commitment to maintaining Engine 4," said Coughlin. "That's reassuring to me."

Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner said it is the responsibility of the council to go over the budget with a fine toothcomb.

"We have to do our job and make sure this is a lean budget like the mayor says," said Gardner.

The mayor has scheduled a public hearing on his budget for 7 p.m. tonight (Thursday) at the Thomas Crane Public Library. He said the hearing will give residents the opportunity to ask questions and learn more about the budget.

Finance Committee Schedules Meetings On 2005 Budget

The city council's finance committee has scheduled five meetings to address Mayor William Phelan's proposed 2005 budget.

The schedule is as follows: May 24, June 1, June 3, June 9 and June 14. Each meeting starts at 6:30 p.m. and ends no later than 10 p.m., according to Finance Committee Chairman John Keenan.

The May 24 meeting is expected to address such subjects as the mayor's office, the city clerk's office, the auditor's budget and the council president's office.

Dependable Cleaners Sponsoring Sixth Annual 'Read To Ride' Program

Dependable Cleaners is giving area children another reason to hit the books this summer, with its sixth annual Read to Ride reading incentive program.

Children, ages 6-15, have the chance to win a bike and helmet (retail value up to $275) for every book they complete within the seven weeks of the program.

Entry forms will be available at all 17 Dependable Cleaners locations and participating bike shops from May 28 to July 16.

More than 30,000 entry forms were also distributed to 63 area schools, 15 libraries and 10 youth organizations throughout the South Shore and Boston.

Children may enter once for each book they read. A parent or guardian must sign the entry form, verifying that the book was completed.

Entry forms will begin being accepted Friday, May 28. Three winners' names will be drawn every Monday for seven consecutive weeks, from June 7 until July 19.

Read to Ride promotes literacy by encouraging children to read during the summer months, with the opportunity to win exciting prizes.

Since the program began in 1999, area children have read 25,884 books. In addition, more than 100 winning students have pedaled away on brand new bicycles as a reward for their educational efforts.

"The success of this program relies heavily on the cooperation of area schools, their directors and superintendents, as well as the overwhelming number of parents who encourage their children to read during the summer months," said Christa Hagearty, president of Dependable Cleaners and a mother of three young children.

"Many parents have reported that our Read to Ride program instilled a positive reading habit in their children.

"Children who develop a love of reading at an early age are often more successful in school, and in life," Hagearty said. "We're proud of the success of Read to Ride and we're happy to continue offering this program."

Read to Ride 2004 is sponsored by Dependable Cleaners in conjunction with The Patriot Ledger, Radio Disney, WBZ News Radio 1030AM, Farina's Bicycle Center in Watertown, Anderson Bicycle in Quincy, Storybook Cove in Hanover and Buttonwood Books in Cohasset.

For more information about Read to Ride 2004, call Dependable Cleaners at 617-471-1900.

Former Boston Patriots Football Player

A memorial service for James Michael Colclough, 68, of Brewster, formerly of Quincy, a former Boston Patriots football player, will be held today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

He died Sunday at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston after a long battle with hepatitis C.

Mr. Colclough played nine seasons, catching 283 passes for 5,001 yards and 39 touchdowns. He is still fifth in team history in receiving yards and third in average yards per catch.

He was inducted into the Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame and the Boston College Football Hall of Fame.

He owned the Bachelor's III sports bar in Boston with former Bruin Derek Sanderson.

Following his football career, Mr. Colclough earned a master's degree in education from Boston State College. He was the head football coach at Boston State College for two years and led the team to the 1978-79 league championship.

He later sold insurance for Bay State Financial, retiring in 1998.

Born in Medford, he was raised in Quincy and lived in the city before moving to Brewster five years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Sally Andreola; five sons, Michael Colclough of Weymouth, Steven Colclough of Whitman, Sean Colclough of San Diego, Calif., and William Colclough and Patrick Colclough, both of Naples, Fla.; three brothers, William Colclough of Quincy, Jack Colclough of Brockton and Tom Colclough of Holbrook; and six grandchildren.

SPRING CAR CARE

Tips For Saving Money On Gas, Ensuring A Trouble-Free Trip

Memorial Day Driving Tips

There is nothing worse than taking off for a driving vacation and two hours out on the road you encounter car problems.

According to the Car Care Council, "Tow truck operators in resort areas or along Interstate highways see all too many travelers forced to return home ahead of schedule due to car trouble. This situation usually means more than just a repair bill. It can involve towing charges, lodging and possibly a rental car. Add to that the cost of extra phone calls, meals and general inconvenience and the ordeal becomes expensive."

So, if spiraling gas prices have not discouraged you from hitting the road this Memorial Day weekend, take heed before you take off. The Car Doctor at Precision Tune Auto Care has 10 timely tips for saving money on gas and for ensuring a trouble-free trip.

1. Closely inspect your tires. At highway speeds, a blow-out with the vehicle fully loaded with family and luggage could spell disaster. Check for balding, bumps, nails, proper inflation. Don't forget your spare tires. Is it inflated? Do you have a jack and all needed tools for changing a tire? Check tires when cool. Tire pressure will change after extended highway speeds.

2. Have breaks and brake fluid inspected. If fluid is low, do not just top it off. There's a reason it is low. Check brake pads and shoes for wear.

3. Visually check all brake lights, turn signals and head lamps — including high beams — to ensure they are working and properly focused.

4. Have cooling system examined by a trained professional for the following: leaks; sound hoses; coolant level and mixture ratio (a 50/50 coolant to water ratio is the most common ratio as recommended by manufacturers); radiator cap (Does it tighten securely? Are seals intact?); cooling fan to make sure it is operating properly (the fan affects both engine cooling and the air conditioner); pH level of coolant (it should be around 9.5 or 10 for green type coolant).

5. Make sure your technician checks your A/C system for proper freon level and condition of belts. To help conserve gasoline, use your air conditioner on the road rather than keeping windows down. Open windows create wind drag, straining the engine.

6. Change engine oil and filters if you haven't done that in the last three months or 3,000 miles.

7. Check the condition of the windshield wiper blades and have them changed if they do not provide adequate visibility, and top off the windshield wiper solution (do not use plain water).

8. Use cruise control to maintain a steady speed and save gas.

9. Use only the fuel octane recommended for your car. Higher octane gas, which produces less energy, not only costs more, it also yields lower miles per gallon.

10. Every time you stop for gas, check oil level and inspect tires, and clean the windshield. Do not check coolant level when engine is hot, except to visually inspect the overflow (or recovery) bottle. If you are just making a quick pit stop (five minutes or less), do not cut the engine; let the car idle for a few minutes.

53rd Annual Flag Day Parade Set For June 12

The 53rd annual Quincy Flag Day Parade and Celebration will be held Saturday evening, June 12.

The event, including the parade, flag raising ceremony and fireworks display, is sponsored by the city of Quincy, the Quincy Partnership and the Koch Club.

The parade steps off on Coddington Street in Quincy Center at 7 p.m. and will proceed down Hancock Street and disband at Pageant Field in Merrymount Park. Featured participants will include marching bands, drum corps, color guards, military vehicles and, the perennial highlight, more than 1,500 flag-waving youngsters.

"The city is proud to sponsor such a fine family-oriented event that gives our residents the chance to celebrate our country, a privilege that is so important to exercise considering the involvement of our military, especially our own residents who are serving in our armed forces," said Mayor William Phelan.

"The wonderful turnout this event receives never ceases to amaze me and I personally look forward to participating in the parade and celebration."

The parade originated 52 years ago and was started by the late Richard J. Koch and the Koch Club and focused on honoring our flag and teaching youngsters to take pride in our country.

"Even in its 53rd year the basic foundation this event was built upon, instilling patriotism and pride in our youngsters and honoring Old Glory, continue to endure," said Thomas P. Koch, Flag Day Committee chairman.

"Flag Day will always remain unique in Quincy because of the many families who come out each year to watch the parade and participate in the celebration and that's what makes it such a success."

The parade culminates into a celebration at Pageant Field in Merrymount Park which will include the raising of a massive 30-foot by 60-foot American flag, patriotic music provided by the Quincy Symphony Orchestra, a howitzer salute by the 102nd Battalion of the Army National Guard concluded by a dazzling fireworks display.

Any youth groups interested in participating in the Quincy Flag Day Parade and Celebration or those who would like more information should contact the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1251.

REAL ESTATE

BILL FURNESS

DAVID KELLEY

Bill Furness, David Kelley Top Conway Producers

Jack Conway & Co. announces Bill Furness and David Kelley were the top producers in the company's Quincy office during April.

Furness was the top seller and Kelley the top lister for the month.

"We're very proud of these agents and their accomplishments," said Conway President Richard Cahill. "They are involved in their communities and give quality service to buyers and sellers in the city of Quincy and surrounding towns."

Founded in 1956, Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co. is the largest independent real estate firm in Massachusetts.

Flood Insurance: You May Be Required To Have It

Of this you can be certain if your area flooded during the April heavy rainfall, it's likely to flood again. And many have learned too late that an ordinary homeowner's policy does not cover flood damage, disaster recovery officials said.

Fortunately, affordable flood insurance is available to homeowners, renters and business owners in communities that participate in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), whether or not they are located in high-risk portions of the floodplain known as Special Flood Hazard Areas. Participating communities are those that have agreed to adopt and enforce sound floodplain management practices to reduce future flood damage.

"Any agent licensed to sell property and casualty insurance can write a federally backed flood insurance policy," said State Coordinating Officer Cristine McCombs. "The NFIP sets flood insurance rates nationally, but premiums will vary depending on different levels of flood risk."

Federal Coordinating Officer James N. Russo noted that when a disaster strikes, taxpayers are willing to help pay the bill. "But," he said, "individuals must face up to recurring losses themselves, and flood insurance appears to be the only answer."

Certain categories of people who must purchase and maintain flood insurance or risk being ineligible for disaster assistance in the future include the following:

• Homeowners/renters who receive state and federal Individuals and Households Program (IHP) disaster assistance and who live in the floodplain. As part of the IHP, the state and FEMA will purchase flood insurance for the homeowner/renter for a period of three years. After that, the insured parties are required to renew the policy at their own expense.

• Homeowners/renters/business owners who receive SBA loans for disaster-related damages to properties in floodplains. These individuals must purchase flood insurance as a condition of the loan.

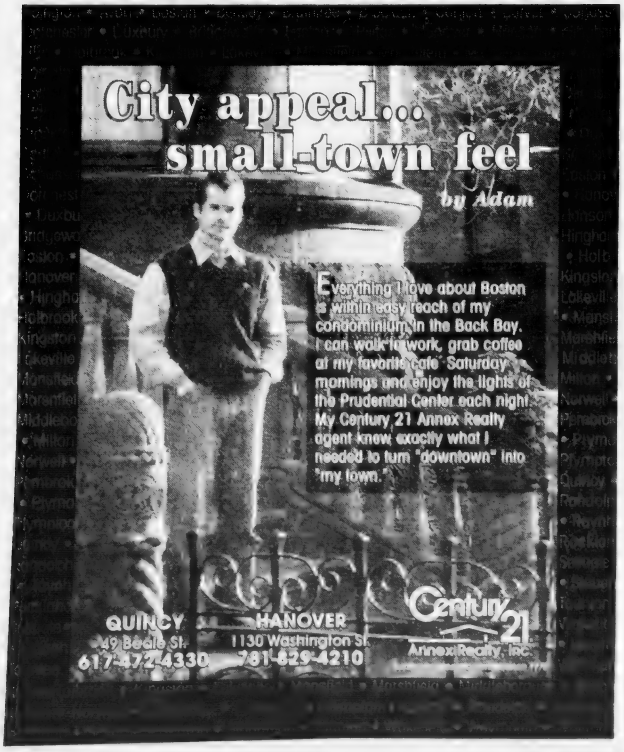
• Renters who receive grants to replace disaster-related contents losses. Renters must maintain flood insurance as long as they occupy the dwelling for which the grant was made.

• Purchasers of property on which the seller is already required to maintain flood insurance. The seller must inform the buyer of the requirement to maintain coverage.

• People who obtain mortgage loans from federally regulated lenders. These individuals must also maintain flood insurance for the life of the loans.

"Another strong reason for purchasing flood insurance is that it provides coverage for most flood-related events, not just the 10 percent that are presidentially declared," Russo said. "As long as you have a valid policy on your home and/or its contents, when the floods come, you will be covered."

NFIP coverage is available from Massachusetts insurance agents licensed to sell property and casualty insurance. For more information, call NFIP at 1-800-427-4661, contact your local insurance agent, or visit the FEMA Web site (www.fema.gov).



Massachusetts residents and business owners with losses related to the April flooding who have not yet registered for assistance are urged to do so immediately by calling FEMA at 1-800-621-3362 or 1-800-462-7585 (TTY) for the hearing and speech impaired. The lines are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, until further notice.

On March 1, 2003, FEMA became part of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. FEMA's continuing mission within the new department is to lead the effort to prepare the nation for all hazards and effectively manage federal response and recovery efforts following any national incident. FEMA also initiates proactive mitigation activities, trains first responders, and manages Citizen Corps, the NFIP and the U.S. Fire Administration.

Look For A Mortgage Before Finding A House

Getting The Right Mortgage

(NAPS) — As more and more people are waking up to the possibilities of realizing the American dream of homeownership, a few facts are becoming clear.

One fact many prospective homeowners should know, for instance, is that the best time to look for a mortgage is before you look for a home. This way you'll know exactly how much you can borrow and maximize your negotiating power.

Remember, while the minimum down payment required depends on the mortgage program you select, at least 3 percent of the purchase price is usually required.

If you are concerned about having enough money to purchase a home, you may want to consider rolling your closing costs into either your interest rate or your loan amount. You will still need to come up with money for your down payment but this will help reduce the amount of additional money that you will need to bring to close.

You should also understand how credit is calculated. The annual percentage rate (APR) is a measure of the cost of credit, expressed as a yearly rate. To determine the APR, lenders consider the interest rate on your mortgage loan, the term of the loan and other loan fees such as closing costs, points and so forth. When comparing loan programs based on APR make sure you ask each lender the criteria for determining the APR.

Your monthly payment is calculated based on the mortgage note rate, not the APR. The APR will be higher than your interest rate, especially if you are paying any points.

Points are a percentage of the loan amount paid at closing that affect your interest rate. For instance, on a $90,000 loan, one point equals 1 percent or $900. How it works is that if you pay points, you buy down the rate. Alternatively, in exchange for a higher rate, the lender pays points to offset your closing costs. Those are considered negative points. Negative points may be a wise option if you have limited funds to use at closing.

Presidents Make History In Win Over Red Raiders

BOYS' LACROSSE

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School boys' lacrosse team made history last Thursday afternoon at Teal Field.

Not only did the Presidents emerge victorious in the first-ever Quincy-North Quincy showdown, but the 7-6 triumph also marked the program's first win in its inaugural season.

"It was a huge win for us," said Quincy head coach Kevin Orcutt. "The boys played real well. It was just a matter of pride. I have a lot of football players on the team who have never lost to North before so I knew it was going to be competitive. The kids just wanted it a bit more."

Quincy and North Quincy were a co-operative team the past two years, but they were able to split into separate squads this year with an increase in the number of players.

North Quincy (2-13), which has more players on the roster with a lacrosse background, entered the anticipated match-up having won its previous two games — also the program's first victories.

"It was a great game," said North Quincy head coach Mark Nutley. "Both teams played hard. No one quite. My guys might have taken them a little too lightly. You have to give Quincy credit for battling back.

Quincy (1-8) kept pace with its cross-town rivals for most of the game — eventually erupting with four straight goals in the fourth period to erase a two-goal deficit en route to the win.

"In lacrosse that happens," Orcutt said of the offensive outburst. "That was our best stretch this season, but we're not an offensive juggernaut quite yet."

Deadlocked at 3-3 entering the fourth, North Quincy struck twice in the quarter to regain control with a 5-3 advantage with less than six minutes remaining. Junior tri-captain Paul Graham and senior Bill Cox scored to put the Red Raiders on top.

The Presidents quickly turned things around, netting the next four goals in less than three minutes.

Freshman Jonathan Conso started the rally with his second goal of the game with an assist by senior quad-captain Jonathan Mendez. Junior Jeff Ruggeiro followed with the equalizer, firing a shot past North Quincy goalie Pat Casper (17 saves) from the top of the box.

Senior Jake McQuinn scored the go-ahead goal with an assist from sophomore Steve Bythrow and Conso trickled a shot past Casper in front for his third goal of the game, which turned out to be the game-winner.

Graham tallied a late goal with an assist from senior Ben Kelleher to make it 7-6, but the Red Raiders ran out of time in their comeback attempt.

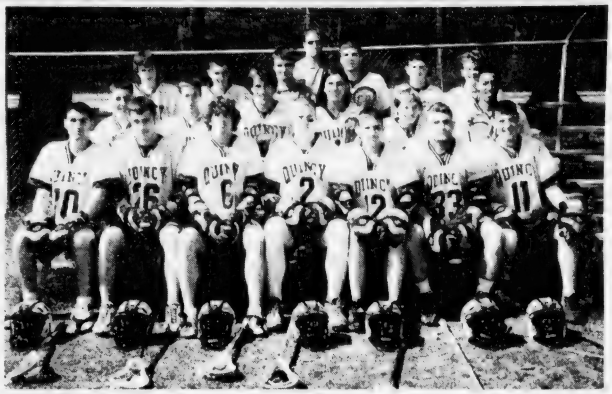
"We turned it around and did a nice job of dictating the tempo of the game," Orcutt said. "Every thing worked out for us. We were just patient. I was afraid we were just going to go after the cage, and not work the ball around and relax."

North Quincy opened the scoring in the first quarter when senior Michael Boucher beat Quincy goalie Chris Ryan-MacDonald.

Quincy evened the score when Mendez, wide open in front, deposited Bythrow's feed from behind the net.

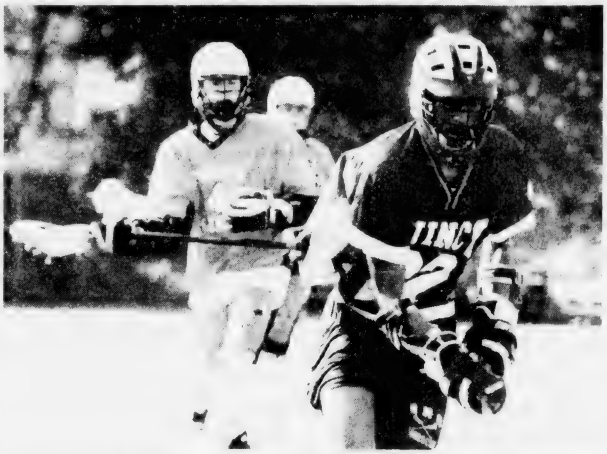
In the second, Quincy quickly worked the ball up the field, setting up Conso, who sent a shot from the left side past Casper for a 2-1 lead.

The Red Raiders answered when they stole the ball in Quincy's zone and senior Rob Gardner (four assists) fed Cox in front for the equalizer.



Less than a minute later, Cox almost put North Quincy on top but he took a hit from a Quincy defender and his off-balance shot ricocheted off the top of the crossbar.

Late in the half, Ruggeiro circled left to right and fired a shot from the top of the box that skipped into the net for a 3-2 advantage. Ryan-MacDonald (14 saves) preserved the lead, robbing Graham with a great save before the horn sounded.



"Their goalie, Chris Ryan-MacDonald, played phenomenally," Nutley said. "He had some big saves to keep them in the game. But a lot of our shots also missed the net from in close."

The Red Raiders dominated the third quarter. Graham, who hit the left post early in the frame, netted the tying goal about midway through.

QUINCY'S JEFF RUGGEIRO gathers control of the ball with North Quincy's Rob Gardner (4) looking on during last Thursday's first game between the two schools at Teal Field. The Presidents rallied in the fourth quarter for a 7-6 victory. Ruggeiro had two goals and Gardner tallied four assists.

You Auto Know

by Bill Starkie and Kevin McGroarty

GIVING IN TO PRESSURE

One-fourth of all cars and one-third of all light trucks have at least one substantially under-inflated tire. At your auto shop, keep in mind that appearances can be deceiving where under-inflated tires are concerned. A tire can lose up to half its air pressure and not appear to be flat. On the other hand, over-inflation puts unnecessary pressure on tires, which can result in irregular tread wear. Check your tires, therefore, (including the spare) with an accurate gauge at least once a month for proper inflation and tread wear. Check tires before setting out on a drive. The friction of driving heats up tire temperatures and expands air inside the tire to give an inaccurate reading.

Is your gas mileage dropping? It may be something as simple as [illegible] fine-tune-up can also help greatly. At LEO'S & WALT'S SUNOCO [illegible] professional, ASE Certified service staff here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Give us a try. We'll earn your trust.

HINT: For proper tire inflation, refer to your owner's manual, or the label on the driver's side door edge or in the glove compartment. The number molded on the sidewall of the tire is the tire's maximum, not recommended, inflation.

Quincy Football Standouts Receive Full Scholarships

Quincy High School seniors J.J. Niamkey and Ian Jorgensen signed letters of intent for full football scholarships to Stonehill College and UMass-Amherst, respectively.

Both were members of the Quincy High football team, which shared the Atlantic Coast League championship and participated in the MIAA Super Bowl Tournament for the first time in the school's history this past season.

Niamkey, a two-time ACL all-star, rushed for over 1,200 yards and 16 touchdowns his senior year. He was named a Patriot Ledger, Boston Globe and Boston Herald All-Scholastic. Niamkey will also take part in the Shriners All-Star Football Game June 18 at Bentley College.

In two and a half years as a starter, Niamkey ran for more than 2,500 yards and scored 30 touchdowns. He also intercepted nine passes as a defensive back. He's projected to play defensive back at the college level.

Jorgensen, a first-year starter at wide receiver and middle linebacker, was selected as an ACL all-star and Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic for his outstanding senior season.

The 6-foot-4-inch, 225-pound Jorgensen caught 25 passes for over 500 yards and five touchdowns. At linebacker, he recorded 10 sacks and numerous tackles for lost yardage. He's projected as a tight end by the UMass coaching staff.

Head coach Bob Noble said: "I am very proud of both these young men for what they have accomplished. They epitomize everything we believe in here at Quincy High School: respect, loyalty, honesty and determination.

"They also represent just the tip of the iceberg, if you will. Many of our senior players are continuing their education. All four of our captains are going on to college careers. John Banks at Wentworth, Ed DeWitt at St. Anslems, Steve Ohlson at Curry and Niamkey at Stonehill. We are very proud of all of them."

Motivated North Quincy Blanks Plymouth South

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy High School baseball team had plenty of motivation heading into Monday afternoon's game against Plymouth South at Adams Field.

Not only did the Red Raiders suffer an 11-1 drubbing in the first meeting April 28, but they were missing one of their teammates, junior Zack Brown.

Head coach Rick Beach said Brown was in the hospital with a broken pelvic bone after being hit by a car last Friday night trying to cross Route 93.

"He's in the hospital so I told the boys let's win this one for him," Beach said.

And North Quincy played one of its best games of the season with a 3-0 victory over the Panthers.

Senior right-hander and tri-captain Steve Reardon notched with win, tossing a three-hit shutout with six strikeouts and one walk.

North Quincy (5-11 overall, 4-9 Old Colony League) traveled to Marshfield Wednesday and will square off against city rival Quincy tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30 at Adams Field looking to rebound from a 5-3 loss in the first meeting.

The Red Raiders' performance was also an encouraging sign for the future. Only three seniors were in the lineup, while four sophomores and three juniors received starts.

"We played a lot of young kids today and we won," Beach said. "That was the future and it looked good."

Reardon no-hit the Panthers through the first four innings before the leadoff man in the fifth lined a single just past his glove and up the middle.

The defense quickly erased the base runner when junior second baseman and tri-captain John Fitzgerald snared a one-hopper, flipped the ball to sophomore shortstop Paul Doolan who fired to sophomore first baseman Joe Ceurvels for the double play. Reardon fanned the next hitter to end the inning.

"When we decide to play defense, we play great baseball," Beach said.

In the sixth inning, Plymouth South threatened with a walk and a single but Reardon punched out the No. 2 and 3 hitters to get out of the mini-jam.

North Quincy scored all three of its runs in the first inning. After Reardon popped up, Fitzgerald had a base hit and senior catcher and tri-captain Andy McAllister (2-for-3) ripped a single to left field. They advanced to second and third on a wild pitch before Ceurvels walked to load the bases.

Doolan smashed a ball to the shortstop, who was screened by McAllister running to third base and bobbled the ball, allowing Fitzgerald to score the first run.

Junior Dave Djerf stroked an RBI single for a 2-0 lead. Sophomore third baseman John Allen (2-for-2) followed with another single to left field that scored Ceurvels. Doolan tried to score from second on the play but was gunned down at home plate.

North's Shauna Kelly Wins Javelin At Coaches Invitational

GIRLS' TRACK

Shauna Kelly, a junior on the North Quincy High School girls' track team, won the javelin at the prestigious MSTCA Coaches Invitational last Saturday at Plymouth South High School.

Kelly's winning throw of 117 feet, 8 inches was 8 feet beyond her previous personal best turned in April 27 at Taunton.

Two of her Old Colony League opponents, Megan Driscoll of Bridgewater-Raynham and Alison Hayes of Silver Lake, both placed in the top six at Plymouth and came in with better performances.

Head coach Geoff Hennessy said he knew Kelly was ready for a big throw based on some adjustments they made in practice.

"We've had a tough time with the weather," he said. "Rain has forced us indoors numerous days. Make-up lacrosse games have moved us onto the football field so we can't throw hard or far there either because there are 120 North Quincy and Quincy kids plus all the Central Middle School kids running every which way.

"We finally have a consistent approach. We're working with the heavier men's javelin and doing a lot of medicine ball work. We also noticed a release flaw which caused her throws to land prematurely. I knew once she fixed that, the throws were going to take off. We really don't try to throw far, but rather perfectly. Adrenaline will take care of the rest on meet day."

Kelly joins some elite talent on the school's all-time list, moving ahead of Lauren Sleeth into fifth place. Eileen Crehan (class of 1984) is first at 164'3" followed by Georgia Traficante ('85) at 146'11", Julia Killion ('87) at 133'7" and Kerry Ginty ('95) at 122'05".

Quincy-North Softball, Baseball Teams Battle Friday

The Quincy and North Quincy high school softball and baseball teams will face off tomorrow (Friday) for the second time this season.

The softball game will be held at 3:30 p.m. at Pageant Field. The Presidents shut out the Red Raiders, 7-0, in the first game April 29.

Quincy (9-4 overall, 8-1 Atlantic Coast League) snapped its seven-game winning streak Monday with a tough 3-2 loss to league rival Whitman-Hanson in eight innings.

North Quincy (2-12 overall) traveled to Plymouth South Monday and hosted Marshfield Wednesday.

The baseball game will start at 6:30 at Adams Field. In the first meeting, Quincy thwarted a seventh-inning North Quincy rally for a 5-3 win.

The Presidents (9-6 overall) missed a chance to clinch a berth in the tournament Monday when they dropped a 3-2 decision at Whitman-Hanson. They hosted Nauset Wednesday.

Houghs Neck Downs Fire, Police

Houghs Neck knocked off Fire Department, 9-3, in recent Quincy Youth Baseball Babe Ruth action at Adams Field.

Glenn Misho notched the win, giving up three runs and five hits in a complete-game effort. Jay Lewis had an outstanding defensive game with seven assists and three putouts.

Brian Sullivan went 4-for-4 to spark the offense and is 11-for-12 at the plate this season. Charles Fawell, Rich Bjork and Lewis added two hits apiece.

For Fire Department, Mike Jay and Joe Matos each had a pair of hits.

HN 14, Police 3

Brian Sullivan led Houghs Neck's offensive attack with four hits, including two triples and four RBI. Joe Garland and Glenn Misho each had three hits and Anthony Alibrandi and Rich Bjork had two apiece. Lammy Papalambros pitched a complete game, allowing three runs on eight hits and two walks while striking out six.

For Police, Cosgrove and Rinala each had two hits.

Masons Defeat Spillane Law

The Quincy Masons defeated Spillane Law, 17-14 in recent Quincy Youth Baseball Cal Ripken Minors league action at Quarry Hills fields.

Katie Alsip went a perfect 5-for-5. Ben O'Brien belted a home run, Jeff Alsip, Tim Alsip and Michael Whittemore each had multiple-hit games. Walter Hannon added a double.

Summer Basketball Camps At ENC

Eastern Nazarene College will host three basketball camps this summer.

Impact Basketball Camp for boys ages 7-13 will run for two different weeks: June 22-26 and July 26-30. The camp day will begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at 2:30 p.m.

Corey Zink, who completed his second season as ENC men's basketball coach, will direct the camp.

Prior to ENC, he was as an assistant coach at Olivet Nazarene University, helping them to three conference championships and three NAIA national tournament appearances in four years.

Planing and organizing summer basketball camps were one of Zink's responsibilities as an assistant at Olivet. He also played there, where he twice was named NAIA All-American.

Victory Basketball Camp for girls entering grades 4 through 8 will be held July 19-23. The camp day will begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at 2:30 p.m.

Ken Hardee, ENC women's basketball coach, will direct the camp for the fourth straight year. Current and future ENC women's basketball players will work as counselors and coaches.

Hardee has worked summer basketball camps at Oral Roberts University, Southern Illinois University and University of Connecticut.

Each camp will feature personal attention for each participant. The staff to camper ratio will be low enough to assure that every boy and girl will receive instruction in individual skills and team concepts. The daily schedule for both camps will include a variety of activities in individual skills, contests and team scrimmages.

Quincy Seniors '70' Team Wins Silver Medal

The Quincy Seniors "70" team recently captured a silver medal for the second straight year at the annual Seniors Hockey Tournament held at Hogan Rink in Auburn.

In the first of three games, Quincy tied Western Mass. Speed Limits, 2-2. Thanks to goalie Bill Parseley, Quincy trailed by only a goal late in the game. And with less than 50 seconds left, captain Dick Lyons netted the equalizer with an assist from Fred Cashman and Ted Rouillard.

In the second contest, Quincy suffered a 3-1 loss to eventual champion The Boston Moby Dicks. Behind the goaltending of Bill Bradey, Quincy stayed in the game despite the territorial advantage of the speedy Boston team. Dan Hall scored the lone goal with an assist from his younger brother, Manson. Quincy committed four penalties, which led to two Boston goals.

In the last game, Quincy pounded the Auburn Rusty Blades, 10-0, to earn the silver medal as it scored more goals than the Speed Limits in a tie-breaker. Quincy outshot and out-skated the Rusty Blades. Goalie Bill Pero only had to make 10 saves thanks to a strong defense. Lyons scored a hat trick and Manson Hall and Dave Bell each scored a pair of goals. Paul Reynolds, Neil Donovan and Dave Egan also scored.

Manson Hall led the tourney in scoring with six points (two goals, four assists) and Lyons led it in goals scored with four. Donovan tallied a goal with three assists. Rouillard led the defense with two assists, while Cashman and Jim Yancey each had one. Art Boyle and Dan Hall also scored.

Quincy was coached by John Chambers who was assisted by Bill Bailey. Some on the team played college hockey, most played in high school and some took up the game later in life.

The Quincy Seniors team is sponsored by Quincy Youth Arena, The Egg and I restaurant of Quincy and Hamlin Cabinets of Norfolk.

CASSANDRA BRIFFET shoots and scores from the left side of the 8 meter arc as Victoria Barney (37) looks on during the Quincy Youth Lacrosse Under 13 girls team's 7-3 win over Marshfield last week at Varsity Field. The goal tied the score at 2-2 and was the first of two straight goals by Briffet.

Youth Lacrosse Girls Teams Split With Marshfield

The Quincy Youth Lacrosse girls teams split a pair of home games last week against Marshfield at Varsity Field.

The Under 13 girls team played a close first half before breaking the game open in the second half en route to a 7-3 win.

Quincy took a 1-0 lead with a goal by Nicole Forbes. Marshfield scored two quick goals before Cassandra Briffet responded with two goals to put Quincy back in front, 3-2. Marshfield tied it again before Kristina Reid put Quincy ahead for good.

Quincy played a very strong second half with goals by Brenna Morrissey, Julia Nee and another one by Reid. Goalkeeper Kerry Turok was outstanding, shutting out Marshfield in the second half.

The Under 15 girls team dropped a 5-2 decision after playing a strong game against a fast and deep Marshfield squad.

Goalkeeper Tara McFarland stood up to the powerful Marshfield attack, stopping many shots. Her efforts kept Quincy in striking distance as the half ended with a 4-0 Marshfield lead.

Quincy came back and outscored Marshfield 2-1 in the second half. Mary Kate Nelson, who plays on the Under 13 team, scored as she was not intimidated by the older players. Alexandra Nee scored the other goal.

Patrick Jaehnig On Westfield Baseball Team

Sophomore Patrick Jaehnig of North Quincy is a member of the Westfield State College baseball team that posted its first winning season in 20 years with a 21-17 record.

Westfield missed an automatic bid to the NCAA Division 3 tournament, dropping a double-header to Bridgewater State College in last Saturday's Massachusetts State College Athletic Conference championship.

Jaehnig had a single in the 11-5 loss in the first game and two singles in the 8-4 loss in the second game.

In the first round of the conference playoffs, Jaehnig went 2-for-5 in a 7-5 victory over Bridgewater and in the second round he stroked an RBI single in a 14-1 rout of Worcester.

The Owls qualified for the conference playoffs for the first time since 1995 with a 2-1 extra-inning win over Salem State. Jaehnig lined a game-tying RBI single in the bottom of the sixth to send the game into overtime.

A 2002 Archbishop Williams High School graduate, Jaehnig started 31 of 33 games at designated hitter or first base, handling 166 chances without an error. Among starters, he was first on the team in doubles (7), second in batting average (.351) and hits (34), and fourth in RBI (13).

Jaehnig was nominated for MASCAC Player of the Week honors (March 23-29) when he went 3-for-3 with a game-winning RBI in a 3-2 victory over Mass Maritime.

The 6-3, 215-pound Jaehnig played eight years in Quincy Youth Baseball and four years for the Quincy American Legion baseball team.

Infinity Mortgage Stays Undefeated With Win Over Feenan

Tone Your Arms for Summer Exposure

Q. After losing 20 pounds through exercise and proper nutrition, I am eager to wear sleeveless shirts again. However, after losing the weight, my arms continue to appear flabby and untoned. With summer just around the corner, how can I tone my arms to show them off? — *C.A., Alexandria, Va.

A. Congratulations on your weight loss! Staying committed to a balanced nutritional plan and structured exercise program can provide great rewards such as you have experienced. Now, let's explore a few options that can push you closer to the toned arms you desire.

To begin with, you need to understand the area of the body you want to change and then adapt your workout accordingly. You say you want to better "tone" your arms. My guess is that you're interested in the shoulders (deltoids), biceps (front of arm) and triceps (back of arm).

All of these muscles have different functions, which means that different exercises are needed to work them. An easy way to remember is: shoulders – lifting; biceps—pulling/curling; triceps—pushing/extending.

Next, we must evaluate your current exercise routine. Cardiovascular training AND strength training are both integral parts in creating a balanced exercise program. Each type of training serves a different purpose, and it is important to make time for each within your exercise routine. Are you incorporating both into your workout?

Then you should focus on those exercises that use the arm muscles you want to become leaner and toned. Depending on your level of fitness and experience, start with exercises without resistance to learn proper technique. Exercises you can try at home include:

• Side raises (shoulder): With your palms facing down, lift straight arms from your sides to shoulder height, then return to side.

• Bicep curls: With your palms facing forward, arms at your sides and wrists straight, bend your elbows, bringing the lower arm toward your shoulder. Contract the front of your arm and then return to the starting position.

• Push-ups: Begin from a kneeling position, and progress to performing these exercises on your toes.

Once you're comfortable with the technique, begin adding light resistance through medicine balls, resistance bands, dumbbells, etc.

By maximizing your fitness through a combination of cardio and resistance training, and then concentrating on exercises that work your arms, it won't be long before you'll be showing off your toned arms in your favorite sleeveless shirts!

Keeping Your Medicine Chest, Family Organized

(NAPS) — As most parents juggle full-time careers, household chores, social events and their children's extra-curricular activities, today's families have become increasingly busy. One of the many things that tend to be overlooked, as a result of these hectic schedules, is the medicine chest.

In many households, medicine chests have become a gathering point for the old and unwanted — used razor blades, makeup in shades that are two or three seasons old, expired prescription medications and the forgotten hotel toiletries accumulated on business trips and family vacations.

An organized medicine cabinet is even more important for families with children, and experts recommend that attention to the contents of medicine chests become a regular part of the spring cleaning regimen.

Following are some tips for families cleaning out the medicine chest this spring and year-round:

• Pare down the number of products you store to include only what you use daily, including toothpaste, deodorant, face wash, lotion and contact lenses.

• Consider using individually wrapped products for cleansing. Benzoyl peroxide, one of the most commonly used and effective acne fighting medications, now comes in an individually wrapped pad formulation called Triaz Pads. Such products can be kept five or 10 at a time and replenished as needed.

• Avoid buying in bulk, particularly products such as vitamins and over-the-counter medications, which have expiration dates, and discard all expired medications — even full bottles. Also throw out any left-over prescription medications from previous illnesses. Consult your local pharmacist on how to dispose of them safely.

• Keep medicine in the kitchen. Although it's called a medicine chest this cabinet is housed in a warm, humid environment that's typical to most bathrooms and can cause drugs to deteriorate. People are typically instructed to store medications in a cool, dry place such as the kitchen pantry. In some instances, as with certain antibiotics, medications must be refrigerated.

• Keep emergency supplies in a first aid box that is convenient to find and to reach.

'GOOD POSTURE MONTH' has been proclaimed in Quincy by Mayor William Phelan who presented the proclamation to Dr. Gabrielle Freedman of The Family Practice of Chiropractic, 112 McGrath Highway, Quincy. In celebration of this observance, Dr. Freedman is offering free posture analysis because she says "your good posture is the key to a healthy lifestyle." The proclamation states the importance of a healthy spine and proper posture. Correct posture not only enables physical and mental accomplishments but also productivity and emotional outlook on life.

Sweet, Easy Ways To Weigh Less

(NAPS) — There could be good news for many Americans who think they don't have a fat chance of becoming slim. Often a few simple steps can make all the difference.

As long as you really take those steps. According to the Department of Health and Human Services, more than 60 percent of Americans do not get enough physical activity and more than 25 percent get no physical activity at all.

Yet Secretary of Health and Human Services, Tommy Thompson and the Surgeon General of the United States, Dr. Richard Carmona, agree that physical activity is an important component in preventing and decreasing overweight and obesity.

To help you win by losing, Dr. Kristine Clark, Director of Sports Nutrition for Penn State University's Athletic Department, assistant professor in the Department of Nutrition and nutrition advisor to the Women's Olympic Soccer Team, suggests some small changes that can help you lead a healthier life:

Exercise ingenuity: Getting in 60 minutes of exercise every day needn't be difficult if you manage your time. Break up the day and do 15 minutes between lunch and quitting time and then 30 minutes before going home or while dinner is cooking.

Be prepared: Keep athletic shoes handy both at work and at home. Bring small hand weights — five, seven or 10 pounds — to the office. When you're teleconferencing, you can do biceps curls and triceps kick-backs. When you're standing either on the telephone or waiting for the traffic light, do calf raises. Do sit-ups or leg raises when watching television.

Manage food portions: There's no need to deny yourself your favorite foods. Just eat a little less of them. Don't neglect breakfast. Make a small breakfast a regular part of your daily menu.

For example, try a cup of strawberries with a teaspoon of sugar. Sugar, you may be pleased to learn, has only 15 calories and 4 carb grams per teaspoon and can be part of a healthy diet and lifestyle. Eat plenty of vegetables and whole grains; they can fill you up without filling you out.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

YOUR SMILE

Patients often have a pure white "Hollywood smile" in mind when considering a cosmetic whitening procedure. The dentist, however, makes aesthetic decisions based on the size of the teeth in relation to those surrounding them, their surface texture, contour, shape, and color. Where color is concerned, people often have the misperception that teeth are all white. In actuality, they are also comprised of yellows, blues, grays, greens, and oranges. Thus, unless a patient has his or her heart set on a career in the movies, lighter teeth that mimic enamel's subtle range of hues would be a better choice than pure white teeth. And, veneering material must be given texture if it is to avoid the look of artificiality.

Are you interested in professional dentistry? We ensure you that we use all of the available tools to make and keep your mouth healthy. All of our patients are individuals, and will receive care specifically geared to their needs. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we invite you to have all your dental needs cared for. Please call 617-479-6220 if you would like more information or to schedule a checkup. ### A Thought For The Week

The dictionary defines the word 'creed' as "any system of belief or of opinion."

The value of any creed lies in its use, not in its possession. What we believe is important, but the diligence with which we give ourselves to the keeping of any creed may have is vastly more important. The world is interested not so much in the creed we profess as in the creed we live by. The creed we leave at the church door or at home will not do us nor the world much good. The question is not only, Do you have a creed?, but, Do you have it with you? . . .

Someone once said that Ralph Waldo Emerson had a short creed, but he took it with him. . . The same thing was said of a certain business man. His creed might have been summed up in the word "honesty." It was short, but from the time he awoke in the morning until he went to bed at night, he carried it with him; and everyone recognized this . . .

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Untangling personal problems might take more time than the impatient Lamb expected. But it's important to hang in there until all those knotty situations are straightened out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You still need to work out last-minute snags in your dealings with a rival. Hold your ground despite a perceived lack of support. Things should turn around before you know it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Best not to delay preparing for that upcoming family event. The sooner you get things started, the better chance you have of finding potential problems and making needed changes.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The romantic Moon Child might be reluctant to see the reality behind that "ideal" situation. But by midweek, the practical Crab emerges to help clear away the moonbeams.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Although the Big Cat might be receptive to more "purrsuasion" to get you to agree to a workplace change, make sure you can distinguish the fine line between facts and flattery.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your positive attitude in the workplace helps to get you noticed by the right people. Now go ahead and use some of that new self-confidence to help shore up a personal relationship.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Although you might still have to work out some problems with a business partner, things go more smoothly on the home front. An investment opportunity might need more study.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Don't be reluctant to act on your suspicion. Even if others see nothing wrong, the astute Scorpio could sense an underlying problem that isn't always obvious on the surface.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A new opportunity presents some obstacles that need to be dealt with as soon as possible. Delaying action in hopes that the problems will go away could be counterproductive.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A friend or family member's request might carry some hidden factors that could later create problems. Be sure you know all the facts before you make your decision.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A setback in implementing a plan could turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Use the downtime to rework your original concepts and see where changes could be made.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might not be consciously fishing for compliments, but admit it — won't you feel great when your efforts are noticed? So accept the praise gracefully. You earned it.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your love of beauty in your personal life extends to your efforts to protect and preserve the natural world around you.

Phelan's E911 Merger Draws Questions

this post-911 world, we should be seeking alternatives to increase response times, not decrease them."

Council President Frank McCauley said he is keeping an open mind about the proposal.

"I've always thought it worked out pretty well as is, but the mayor has another view, so let's listen to what he has to say," said McCauley.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro said it is important for other councillors to be aware of how the city's dual 911 service came into existence. A woman suffered a stroke at Tobin Towers, but emergency crews were mistakenly sent to O'Brien Towers. Gutro said the mistake was due to the caller ID system misidentifying the location of the call. As a result, it took emergency crews about 25 minutes to attend to the woman. She died five days later, Gutro said.

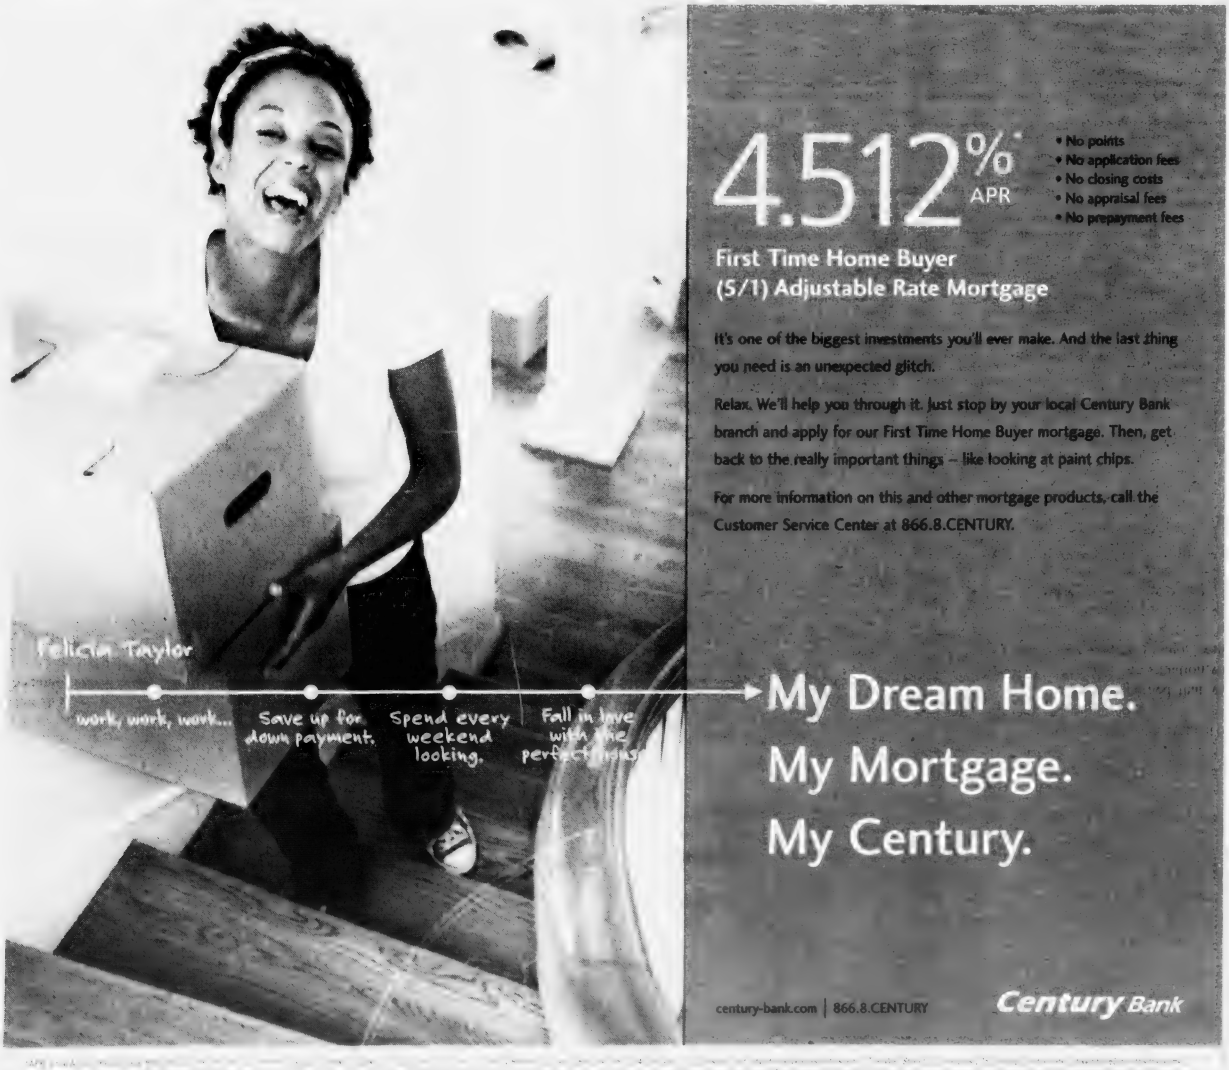
In 1997, the city was the last in Massachusetts to adopt a mandated 911 upgrade that allowed dispatchers to see a caller's address on a computer screen. The city council passed special legislation creating the fire department 911 listening site. Quincy became the first in the state to install the dual 911 system after months of political wrangling in 1998.

In 2002, the state passed legislation allowing other cities and towns to follow suit.

"The existing system was created in reaction to an emergency that transpired at 80 Clay St.," said Gutro. "Is this just a cut-and-run or are we going to phase this out in a thoughtful, methodical and intelligent manner?"

Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner said the mayor must convince councillors that the merger will not sacrifice public safety. "I haven't been convinced of that, yet," she said.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin also referred to the Clay St. incident, saying the city does not want a repeat of that situation.



"I'm concerned that we don't have the situation we had a few years ago," said Coughlin. "We don't want to see history repeating itself. That image remains in my mind."

By TOM HENSHAW

Only one of the four Catholic churches in Quincy that were threatened with closure survived the cut made by Archbishop Sean O'Malley Tuesday as the Boston archdiocese tightened its belt.

Star of the Sea Church in Squantum was closed. Most Blessed Sacrament in Houghs Neck and St. Elizabeth Seton in Merrymount Germantown were closed but merged into a new parish, and St. John the Baptist [illegible] open.

"It's sad," said Eileen Feeney, a member of the parish [illegible] Star of the Sea Church, "but it's pushing me to [illegible] a building, [illegible] without God."

Feeney, a retired principal of North Quincy High School, is also a CCD teacher and lector at the church in Squantum, where she has lived since 1966. She said she'll probably attend Sacred Heart Church, a couple of miles away in North Quincy.

"It's like losing a member of the family," she said, "but I feel as if I need to be obedient and do what I have to."

The Rev. Frederick Barr, pastor of Star of the Sea for nearly four years, was sad over the closing of his parish but resigned to the necessity.

"It's sad for us," he said. "This is a wonderful parish. But times are changing. We all have to pull together."

Father Barr received official word of his church's closing via FedEx from the archdiocese office Tuesday morning. He didn't need to announce it to his parishioners.

"We have a network that sent out the word," he said. "It spread like grass fire."

"It's pretty upsetting," said Mary Collins, "crooked in real estate. "My daughter had her first communion [illegible] was married there. It's [illegible] losing [illegible] neighborhood school."

[illegible] closed [illegible] Doggett [illegible] [illegible] Her old [illegible] Mass [illegible] Sunday.

[illegible] parish [illegible] her [illegible] merged [illegible] the today. Thursday [illegible] John Paul in Weston [illegible] the closing process.

The parishes that are to close will be given a closing date in the next week or so, as will those parishes that are due to receive new territory and people.

The merger of Most Blessed Sacrament and St. Elizabeth Seton parishes was a complicated maneuver, finally involving three churches.

Most Blessed Sacrament opened in 1898, and St. Elizabeth Seton, formed in 1999 by the merger of St. Boniface in Germantown and Our Lady [illegible] Counsel in Merrymount.

State Proposes Solution For QSD Homeowners' Land Problems

The state Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) has proposed a solution for homeowners on Quincy Shore Drive who have lost portions of land as a result of the $5.8 million sewer replacement project.

Under the proposal, the state would grant the City of Quincy a sewer easement for the land in question and then allow the city to maintain the restored encroachment areas either directly or through agreements with abutters, according to DCR Commissioner Katherine Abbott.

The state would continue to own the land in question, but the proposal allows the city and homeowners to maintain the land. As a result, homeowners may be able to replace fences, walls and other plantings that were removed due to the controversy.

"On its face the issue is simple, public land must be protected and the encroachments must be reversed, however the mitigating circumstances of protecting the Quincy sewer and water structures and maintenance of the restored property complicate the situation," Abbott wrote to Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro and Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner.

In addition, Abbott wants the city to file a five-year maintenance plan subject to DCR approval.

If approved by DCR, "the city would be free to enter into agreements with abutters for maintenance of the property in question with the condition that consistency be maintained along Quincy Shore Drive," Abbott wrote.

Gutro was pleased with the proposal, calling it a practical solution to a complicated issue.

"This results in the kind of common-sense, practical solution that is in the best interests of the homeowners, the city and state," Gutro said. "It will erase the ambiguity around who maintains what and it will allow for the uniform appearance from the end of the sidewalk towards residential properties."

Pearl Harbor Survivor Memorial Day Speaker

Earl J. Kuja, 88, of Quincy who was present as a young soldier when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor on the date that lives in infamy, will be the main speaker at Quincy's Memorial Day ceremonies Monday at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Kuja, a retired electrician and son of Finnish immigrants, joined the U. S. Army July 8, 1941 and was deployed at Schofield Barracks, Pearl Harbor, on Dec. 7, the day the Japanese attacked.

EARL KUJA

He spent the next four years in the South Pacific, participating in five campaigns, including the invasions of Saipan and Tinian, where the Enola Gay took off for Hiroshima with the world's first atom bomb.

He returned home in April, 1945, and married his wife, Gertrude, a marriage that lasted 49 years and produced two daughters, Esther and Judy, two grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Kuja will speak about 12 noon Monday at the Memorial Day services to be held at the World War II Podium in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Marching units in the parade will assemble no later than 10 a.m. on School Street and march down School, Hancock, Coddington and Sea Streets to the cemetery, pausing to place wreaths on the tombs of John Adams and John Quincy Adams in United First Parish Church.

Parade Marshal Stephen Fowles, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council (QVC), and honored guests will review the parade from a stand across Sea Street from the cemetery entrance.

After the services, the parade will disband and the veterans will retire to their respective posts.

John Raeke, chaplain of the QVC, will open the ceremonies with the invocation followed by the introduction of invited guests by the master of ceremonies, Irving Isaacson.

Commander Fowles, Mayor William Phelan, City Council President Frank McCauley and Henry Bradley, director of Veterans Services, will deliver greetings and remarks.

Vincent Dolan, junior vice commander of the QVC, will read General Logan's Order creating the first Memorial Day; and Robert Loughran, senior vice commander of the QVC, will read Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

Earl Kuja, a Pearl Harbor survivor, will give the main address.

Thomas Stansbury of the Quincy Veterans Services Department will extend greetings and remarks, an adjutant will call the roll of deceased comrades, the Memorial Day prayer will be delivered by Edwin Boland.

The National Anthem will be played as Robert LaFleur, the chief of staff, raises the colors to full staff. Joseph Brooker, assistant chaplain of the QVC, will give the benediction and the troops will be dismissed by the officer of the day.

The parade formation, which is subject to change depending on which posts, colors and guests report, will be led by the Quincy Police Honor Guard and the Quincy Veterans Council Colors.

They will be followed by Morrisette American Legion Post 294 and Auxiliary; Stephen Fowles, commander of the QVC; Robert Loughran, senior vice commander of the QVC; Vincent Dolan, junior vice commander of the QVC; the mayor, city and state officials.

Calls It Potential Safety Threat; Questions Cost Savings

Fire Chief Opposes E-911 Merger

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Calling it a potential safety threat that may not save taxpayers money, Fire Chief Paul O'Connell has come out strongly against Mayor William Phelan's proposal to merge the city's 911 emergency response system.

"I see no reason to make the change," O'Connell told The Sun. "I don't think it is in the best interests of the fire department or the citizens of Quincy. The current system works very well.

"I'm not taking any sides here, but I will always take the side of life safety. I still believe my job is to protect the lives of others, including the firefighters and the residents of Quincy," said O'Connell.

When told of the chief's comments, Phelan said, "I have yet to hear any arguments that would change my mind, but I'm still listening."

The fire chief's reaction comes just one week after Phelan unveiled his proposed 2005 budget containing a consolidation plan for the city's 911 system. Currently, two police officers and two firefighters monitor 911 calls at their respective locations at all times. The current system allows firefighters to monitor calls and decide which ones are appropriate for them.

Under Phelan's plan, the dispatch centers would be merged and located at police headquarters. One firefighter, one police officer and several civilian workers would be on duty at the 911 dispatch center, according to the mayor's plan.

The mayor said revamping the current system would save taxpayers $500,000 without jeopardizing public safety.

At last week's city council meeting, Phelan called the proposal "controversial," but said he has yet to discover a reason why it should not be done.

"If there is a public safety reason that I don't know about that would change my mind, I'm all ears," Phelan told the council.

The mayor's proposal was met with a cool response from the city council, although some councillors maintain they want more information before forming an opinion about the issue. The council has the authority to cut or approve the mayor's budget; it cannot add to the budget.

O'Connell said he has met with the mayor several times and expressed his rationale for not changing the current system.

"We are a nation at war," said O'Connell. "We are on heightened alert right now and it's not the time to be playing with this system. I don't think it's a good idea, but it's the mayor's prerogative.

"The big reason for not doing this is called delay. With public safety you are dealing with seconds here. This is about time, and delay can lead to tragedy."

Although there are slow periods, O'Connell said the hectic times make it necessary to staff the E-911 dispatch center with two firefighters.

"You need two firefighters there at all times," said O'Connell. "It's a fallacy to think there is redundancy there."

O'Connell said the mayor is looking at the proposal strictly as a cost savings measure.

"I want him to look beyond the money," O'Connell said of Phelan. "I'm not sure the savings is there, and if it is there I don't think it's worth it."

The fire chief said the department's dispatch center is wired to approximately 1,100 fire alarm boxes throughout the city. Rewiring the alarm system and other work associated with merging the dispatch centers could cost upwards of $700,000, said O'Connell.

In addition, the police dispatch system has gone out of commission at various times

15% Pay Raises Over Four Years

City, Firefighters' Union Finalize Contract

The City of Quincy and the Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792 finalized a four-year agreement that gives pay raises totaling 15 percent for firefighters during the life of the contact.

Last week, city officials and the firefighters' union signed the four-year contract, which runs from July 1, 2002 to June 30, 2006.

The retroactive portion of the agreement gives more than 3 percent raises over a staggered period ending June 30, 2004.

Under the contract, firefighters are scheduled to receive an additional four percent raise later this year and again in 2005. The last year of the agreement gives a three percent raise.

At the contract signing, Mayor William Phelan praised the work of firefighters and said they deserved the "healthy pay raises."

"I don't regret a single penny of it and I know citizens will get their money's worth," Phelan told representatives from the firefighters' union.

A new provision negotiated into the agreement seeks to curb overtime. Under the new terms of the contract, firefighters can be hired for overtime only if they have completed one full tour of scheduled duty after returning from sick or injury leave.

Dick Dale Still Surfing

Quincy's Dick Dale, credited with creating the surf music sound back in the 1960s, is still going strong with a large loyal following of fans.

And many from his hometown will be among those making their way to Cambridge Saturday where he will make a return concert appearance (10 p.m.) at the Middle East Club on Mass Ave.

DALE

He grew up in Quincy Point as Richard Monsour but the family moved to El Segundo, Calif. in 1954 where he became Dick Dale and "King of the Surf Guitar."

He was in his junior year at Quincy High School when the family moved. One of his classmates, Zaida Hassan Shaw, secretary for the Islamic Center of New England in Quincy Point, remains a close friend and rabid fan.

"He was always a good kid and so talented," she recalls. "He also played the trumpet and other instruments."

If you think Dale is good, just wait, says Zaida. "Dick's son, Jim, who is 11, is going to be better than his father."

She plans to be at the concert Saturday. And attending with her will be Dale's No. 1 fan, his aunt, Helen Scurtis, of Southern Artery, Quincy Point.

She'll be a spry 90 June 2 and is looking forward to the concert. Not only for the music but because Dale, whenever performing locally, always brings her up onto the stage for an introduction and a bow. And she'll be ready Saturday night for an encore.

Dale finished high school in California and started entering talent contests after learning country guitar. After taking the name Dick Dale, as suggested by a disc jockey, he was winning fans as a country singer.

Dale had nine singles between 1959 and 1962 on the Deltone label which his father owned. The first was "Ooh-Whee-Marie."

Dale formed his own band, the Del-tones named after his father's label. "Let's Go Trippin'", which came out in 1961, is considered the first instrumental surf record and launched that musical craze. The Beach Boys first hit came later.

Dale says he created his guitar style to capture the feeling of surfing. And the waves are still rolling.

You might say he has also had a movie career. He had a small part in the Marilyn Monroe movie "Let's Make Love."

He also figured musically in those beach party movies starring Annette Funicello and Frankie Avalon in the 1960s.

In her autobiography, "A Dream Is A Wish Your Heart Makes," Funicello, who is battling multiple sclerosis, remembers Dale with fondness:

"One of my best buddies from the beach movie days was guitarist Dick Dale. No doubt our paths had crossed in the late 50s and early 60s since we both had hit records out then.

"But we really got to know each other while we were making the films. Dick and his group, the Del-Tones supplied a lot of the music and he also appeared as an extra in some scenes."

Funicello notes she also became good friends with Dale's sister, Shirley, while making the movies.

KENNEDY

You can now catch Dale and his guitar in TV commercials.

And Saturday night you can catch him in person, surfing in Cambridge.

SENATOR Edward Kennedy is the guest speaker at today's annual meeting luncheon of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

The 11:44 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. luncheon is at Lombardo's, Randolph.

Kennedy will be sharing the spotlight with Quincy insurance agency owner Tony Agnitti who will be honored as immediate past chairman of the Chamber.

Kennedy, who always packs them in at a Chamber breakfast or luncheon, no doubt will work in a few plugs for Sen. John Kerry's Presidential bid.

BUT ONE well-known Quincy lawyer won't be there. He's no Kerry fan.

A waitress in a restaurant on the Cape got the hint recently when he sat down at her table and found a Heinz ketchup bottle staring him in the face. "Please remove this," he said. She smiled and did.

(He's a staunch Republican.)

TOM GALVIN'S nostalgic postcards of old Quincy which appear weekly in The Sun's "Scenes From Yesterdays" continue to stir fond memories for many.

A recent one showing the view of the entrance to Taylor's Summer Ballroom on Sea St., Houghs Neck, in 1920 brought childhood memories back to Tricia Rhodes now of Arlington.

"My parents met at the ballroom," she recalls. "My mother often talked about dancing there with my father on a hot summer's night.

"It really warmed my heart to see exactly what the ballroom looked like. I remember my mother saying you would have to buy a ticket to go onto the dance floor. I can see from the picture what she was talking about. I can see where they stepped onto the dance floor and waltzed off from there. They used to have dance contests. The officials would chalk the heels of your shoes. My parents won many contests at Taylor's.

"My dad would waltz his daughters around the kitchen and into the dining room and around the dining table and back out to the kitchen. He would then take my mother and dance with her as us girls would smile with delight.

"Those were the days.

"Thanks for bringing back happy memories."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1941 POSTCARD is a view of the Abigail Adams Cairn at the top of Penn's Hill in South Quincy. The cairn marks the spot where Abigail and her eight year-old son, John Quincy Adams, watched the burning of Charlestown during the battle of Bunker Hill in 1776. The Adams chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution erected the cairn in 1896. The cairn is not just a pile of any old rocks. The cornerstone is a block of polished Quincy granite cut from an original sleeper of America's first railway that was built to carry granite from Quincy for the monument at Bunker Hill. Various patriotic societies of the time and other individuals contributed stones prized for their association with the Revolution. Included are stones from the Lexington and Concord battlefields, Dorchester Heights, the birthplace of Abigail in Weymouth, and from Salem, Hull and other historical sites in Massachusetts. The cairn is just off Franklin Street near Almquist's Flower Shop. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net

Graduates Protest Cap, Gown Ban

This Week
63 Years Ago

A storm of protest greeted a School Committee decision to override the wishes of seniors at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and ban the wearing of caps and gowns at their graduation. The Committee called it part of a trend toward simplicity.

An investigation was begun to find the source of rumors that the School Committee was pressured into the ruling by local clothing merchants who felt caps and gowns hurt their business.

School Committeeman John P. Flavin told his colleagues that a cap and gown cost graduates only $1.50, while the traditional coat and white flannel pants or skirt, which were rarely worn again, cost a minimum of $14.

CIVIL DEFENSE SPUTTERS

"Don't let people lull you to sleep by saying, 'It can't happen here.' They don't know what they're talking about," J. Wells Farley, chairman of the Massachusetts Public Safety Committee told a patriotic mass meeting of the Quincy Defense Council.

But apparently a lot of people were lulled to sleep for when the QDC issued a call for 500 volunteers to begin training immediately as auxiliary policemen and firefighters only 17 men between the ages of 18 and 50 stepped forward.

MERRYMOUNT MOVES ON PROBLEMS

Arthur N. Burke was elected president of the Merrymount Association, succeeding Henry E. Nilsen, and the new president immediately set about facing up to the area's thornest problems.

He named a committee of Ernest G. Healey, Edward E. Pearsley and Fred P. Chase to circulate a petition protesting a block of stores that had been proposed for the beachfront at the junction of Quincy Shore Drive and Furnace Brook Parkway.

Opposes Parking Fee Hikes

When I read my Quincy Sun and the page one story on raising the parking fees at both the Ross Parking garage and the Hancock Parking lot, I had to laugh. The city council's oversight committee approved parking fee hikes at both sites. Why?

City Traffic Engineer Roy Lamotte Jr. said the current parking fees are not competitive with other communities. What other communities? In Braintree, parking is free at the South Shore Plaza. Does Weymouth charge parkers? How about Milton? What other communities is he talking about? Maybe, in the Neighborhood of Make Believe? Inquiring minds want to know the facts not the sound bites.

Lamotte also said up to 30 percent of the Hancock lot is folks parking for the courthouse. They usually stay less than two hours and never pay anything under the present free two-hour deal. How about working out a deal between City Hall and the Quincy courthouse for some financial arrangement? Folks, however, who go to the courthouse in Dedham have free parking, don't they?

Lamotte also says since both lots close at 8 p.m., many people just wait out the clock until the parking lot guys go home. What people are parking all day and waiting to beat out the parking attendants? Are we talking shoppers? What shoppers? Are we talking downtown workers? What workers are still downtown after 5 p.m.?

Maralin Manning, director of the Quincy Business Association, called the free two-hour parking a "disaster" for the city. Why is it a disaster?

Downtown Quincy ain't Kansas anymore. We need to encourage people to come into it rather than find ways to send them elsewhere. Wouldn't that be a disaster?

This isn't about free two-hour parking, courthouse traffic, people lurking outside the parking lots waiting for 8 p.m. to come. This sounds more like an excuse to take more money from more people. Revenue enhancement through higher parking fees and neighborhood parking stickers.

The real bottom line should be finding ways to improve the quality of life in downtown Quincy. The real bottom line should be welcoming folks into downtown Quincy. Anything we do that chases people away to competitive communities elsewhere is bad for Quincy. Quincy 2000 should know this. The Quincy Business Association should know this. And most importantly, Quincy City Hall should know this.

'Voices of Healing After 9/11' Reading, Reception At Library

The Organization of Chinese Americans-New England Chapter and the Thomas Crane Public Library will host a reading and reception to celebrate the recently published book, "Voices of Healing: Asian Americans and Pacific Islander Spirit and United After 9/11."

The event will be Thursday, June 10, at 7 p.m. at the Crane Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

"Voices of Healing" is a collection of moving stories of loss, survival and bravery; of poignant photographs and artworks; and of uplifting letters and poems from the Asian American and Pacific Islander communities.

In the aftermath of the Sept. 11 attacks, these communities shared in the impact felt by all Americans. Hundreds of Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders lost their lives.

Due to its proximity to Ground Zero, New York's Chinatown was devastated. Close to 8,000 residents of New York's Chinatown found themselves displaced, without work and without relief efforts to assist them. South Asian Americans, Sikh Americans and Muslim Americans suffered backlash in public places because they were perceived as foreigners. Despite these challenges, communities found strength and stood together to help the ongoing recovery and rebuilding efforts.

Admission to the reading and reception is free and copies of the book will be available for purchase. For more information, call 617-376-1301.

Half Door Restaurant Plans Outdoor Patio

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

If the License Board gives approval next week, the Half Door Restaurant at 1514-1516 Hancock St. will have an outdoor garden seasonal patio to offer patrons, the first in the city.

Atty. Caroline Conway presented an artists rendition of the temporary structure that can be taken down after the summer.

Conway said it will be landscaped and greatly improve the rear of the building , other businesses and its neighbors.

The patio will have a door man, a greet station and wait service to accommodate customers.

Conway said they hoped to seat some 50 patrons in the patio which will be decorated with a trellis, tables with umbrellas. There will also be an array of flowers and other plants.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said he thought the concept of an outdoor patio was a "great idea", but was concerned about the number of seats outside. He said he thought the maximum seating after reading the tentative drawing was for 40 seats.

Owners Kevin McGrath and Patrick O'Sullivan said the tables will seat two to four and when the other plans are submitted, the number of seats would be finalized.

Scheele said the patio would "dress up the rear of the parking lot," but said he had concerns about the emptying of the dumpsters. He said he needed a more detailed plan.

Conway said the outdoor patio will be about 1000 square feet, and be open from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell said he was concerned about the noise at night because of homes on Revere Road.

Conway said the owners plan to just have some background music.

Chairman Joseph Shea asked Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association her opinion on the patio.

Manning said it would be a "welcome entree to the city" as well as an "inviting as an exciting place to be." She said she hoped other businesses in the area would follow Half Door's plan .

Shea said parking isn't a problem as cars can go in an out of the area fairly easy.

Conway said the owners plan to open the patio from May to September weather permitting.

Shea said an on site meeting will be held this week at the Half Door for board members to view.

The meeting is continued until June 1.

Exclusively For Pet Owners

Gutro Wants City Dog Park

Pet owners should have a suitable location in the city where they can take their pets and enjoy the outdoors, according to Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro.

In a letter to Mayor William Phelan, Gutro asked whether the city could find a suitable outdoor location or park exclusively for pet owners.

"Most would agree that there has been a longstanding conflict between pet owners and those who use and maintain our city parks and beaches for other recreational purposes," said Gutro. "Responsible dog owners deserve a suitable outdoor location where they can take their pets in peace."

Gutro said many other communities, including Weymouth, have established similar parks.

"By creating a dog park, we will provide responsible pet owners with a designated location that they can enjoy in peace; one that doesn't interfere with other recreational activities; and reduce pet waste left behind in our city parks and beaches," he said.

A Warm Reception On A Cold Day:

Quincy College Graduates Nearly 350

The misty rain of Saturday morning dried to a nearly spring chill just in time for the Quincy College Spring Commencement Exercises held outdoors at Coddington Hall in Quincy Center.

Over 900 people celebrated the nearly 350 students who graduated with associate degrees in science, associate degrees in arts and program certificates.

College President Sean L. Barry who delivered his remarks with a folded umbrella at his side, said, "I was prepared for the rain that apparently my umbrella frightened away, but not the freezing cold. Maybe I should have brought up a snow shovel. This is May right?"

Despite the unexpected weather, hundreds of guests braved throughout the ceremony as the graduates lined.

Quincy residents Marie Sarro and Jessica DiBona, began the ceremony by posting the colors on the stage set below an oversized American flag adorning the front face of Coddington Hall. The two honor students represented their many fellow classmates from the city of Quincy.

Students earned degrees in liberal arts, business management, registered nursing, computer science, early childhood education, elementary education, fine arts, accounting, legal studies, criminal justice, and human services.

Though the largest percentage of graduates is from Quincy, graduates represented many communities across the South Shore and Greater Boston including Abington, Marshfield, Hyde Park, Hanover and Weymouth.

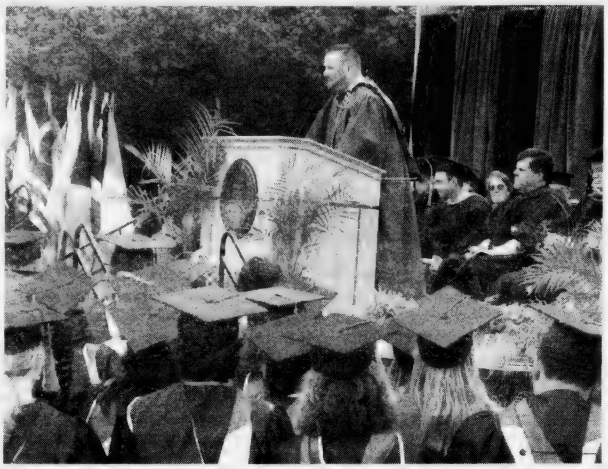
Theresa Lord-Pratelli, chairperson of the Quincy College Board of Governors, brought greeting on behalf of her fellow board members and applauded the graduates for their diligence and commitment to their education. She also asked the faculty to stand and be recognized for their work in the classroom shaping the students' experience at the College.

As a former Quincy College student and someone who continued her education as an adult, Lord-Pratelli encouraged the class of 2004 to never stop learning. Her advice was to remain lifelong learners and make Quincy College one of the first stops on an educational journey that might lead to a bachelor's, master's or doctoral degree.

Barry delivered the commencement address to the graduates. The audience laughed and applauded as he told them he brought this cold-weather abbreviated speech for the occasion. He reminded the students that not only were they becoming graduates, but also ambassadors for Quincy College. He explained, as they continued their education or entered the workforce far from the halls of Coddington, Saville or Temple they would forever represent Quincy College to the outside community.

Mary Lou Clark, an adjunct instructor at the College since 1989 in the fine arts and foreign languages received the Lorenz Adjunct Award for Excellence awarded each year at commencement. Endowed by fellow adjunct Dirk Lorenz and his wife Marian, the award recognizes the accomplishments of the college's part-time faculty who often bring real-world experience and instruction to the classroom. Mary Lou was distinguished for her efforts in helping create the visual arts curriculum leading to a Fine Arts degree.

Following the ceremony, Barry hosted a reception under a 100-foot tent for graduates and their guests. Warmed by clam chowder and barbecue, hundreds of students, families and friends gathered to bid farewell to their instructors and fellow graduates as college staff and administrators fired up the grills.



Entertainment for the event included a jazz quartet comprised of an administrator, two instructors and a student all affiliated with the College's growing Music Arts department.

"For many of our graduates, the road leading to today hasn't been easy," Barry said. "Juggling work, family and school is a challenge. We wanted our graduates to know how much we understand what they have endured and how proud we are of them for succeeding.

"This send off is just a small token of our appreciation."

'I was Just In Shock' Says $10,000 Winner

Lynne Johnston thought she was hearing things.

It happened at the recent "March Madness" dinner fund-raiser hosted by the St. Ann School PTO.

Her named was called as the big winner of the $10,000 raffle prize.

"I couldn't believe it." Johnston said. "I was just in shock. But what a great surprise!"

It was the first time the school had ever held this type of an event and found the response "tremendous."

The pre-determined number of tickets to be sold was 300. That gave each ticket holder at least a one in 300 chance of winning the $10,000 grand prize. There was also a $2,000 second prize and eight $150 third prizes.

"March Madness was a great night." said PTO President Nick Fisher. "We had more than 150 people at the school for the dinner. There was dancing and a great sense of excitement as we waited to draw the ticket of the big winner.

"We have already had people asking us to host the event again next year. And right now, I think we will."

St. Ann School is a primary and middle school for grades pre-kindergarten through grade 8 with an enrollment of nearly 400 students.

The school, located on St. Ann Road, Wollaston, is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

A series of open public meetings are planned to address the proposed construction of an 80 unit, five story structure at 206 Victory Rd., North Quincy.

Ward 6 Councillor Micela Gardner is sponsoring a community meeting on Wednesday, June 2 at 7 p.m. at Beechwood On The Bay, 140 East Squantum St.

The meeting will address a proposal by Marina Bay Management Services, LLC, to construct a single structure containing 80 residential housing units consisting of 40 one bedroom and 40 two bedroom units.

The proposed structure will be six stories high, comprised of five living levels over a first story parking garage. The garage will have 140 parking spaces, 48 of which will be covered spaces located in the level one garage, with an additional 20 on-site spaces and 72 spaces that will be designated for the project in the existing parking lot adjacent to the southern property line.

The one story block and steel building adjacent to the proposed site will be demolished and converted into a parking area.

The Planning Board will conduct an open public meeting regarding this proposal on Wednesday, June 9 at 7 p.m. in the 2nd floor conference room, City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St.

Also, the Zoning Board of Appeals will conduct its own public meeting regarding this issue on Tuesday, June 13 at 7:15 p.m. in the 2nd floor, Council Chambers of City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

Quincy Business Association's Summer Family Festival July 15-17

The Quincy Business Association (QBA) will hold its 34th annual Summer Family Festival on Hancock Street in Quincy Center Thursday through Saturday, July 15, 16 and 17.

Traditionally, the city closes Hancock Street in downtown Quincy to vehicular traffic for the festival to allow local vendors and crafters to display their wares in an outdoor venue.

Two very special dinner time programs will provide lively musical entertainment that annually proves to be a family favorite portion of the event.

Daily for the pleasure of the lunch crowd and visiting families there will be a short musical program. Interactive games will continue throughout all three days.

Some limited space is available for crafters and vendors not competing with members of the host Quincy Business Association.

For further information about participation in the Summer Family Festival call the QBA office at 617-471-3232.

Red Cross Seeks Instructors

The American Red Cross is seeking volunteers who are certified to teach life-saving courses and are available for a few hours, either week nights or Saturdays.

Scheduling is flexible and volunteers may determine the number and type of classes they wish to teach.

For further information, call 617-770-2600 between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Fire Chief Opposes E-911 Merger

due to weather-related circumstances, according to O'Connell. Therefore, the second location is needed to avoid any interruption in E-911 service, he said.

But Quincy Police Communications Lt. Jack Sullivan called the police dispatch center "very reliable" and said he could recall only one incident - the April Fool's Day blizzard in 1997 - when the dispatch center was put out of commission for a lengthy period of time. At that time, the police station lost power for 40 minutes and the department's backup generator failed to kick in, he said.

"The dispatch center has gone down a few times for a second, but nothing that has jeopardized transmission or safety," he told The Sun. The police dispatch center has six computer terminals so there is virtually no chance of having problems if one or two computers fail due to a software glitch, he said.

In 1997, the city was the last in the Bay State to adopt a mandated 911 upgrade that allowed dispatchers to see a caller's address on a computer screen.

The city council later passed special legislation created the fire department 911 listening site. Quincy became the first in the state to install the dual 911 system after months of political jockeying in 1998.

In 2002, the state passed legislation allowing other cities and towns to follow suit.

O'Connell also said seven firefighters are due to retire in July. He said six positions in the 2004 budget went unfilled, leaving the city short already. The city is in the process of hiring nine firefighters this summer, he said. After the new hires hit the street, the department will be down four firefighters through attrition, he said.

Last year, O'Connell said he was forced to place Rescue One - the city's most active piece of fire apparatus - on part-time status due to a lack of manpower. The vehicle continues to be used on an intermittent basis.

"I have made the cuts I needed to make here, but when something comes up that is not in the best interests of the fire department or life safety, I'm going to say so," said O'Connell.

According to Quincy firefighter Lt. Michael Granahan, the department averages about 10,000 runs a year, which include a number of different emergencies, such as heart attacks, automobile accidents or house fires. Of that number, approximately 6,000 calls come in from the 911 system, he said.

In fiscal 2003, he said, the department made 10,229 runs - 6,997 of which originated from 911.

Based on call estimates thus far, the department is facing similar numbers in fiscal 2004, he said.

United First Church Votes To Support Gay Marriage

United First Parish Church in Quincy has voted overwhelmingly to support same-sex marriage and urged the state legislature to abandon its efforts to amend the state constitution to forbid it.

The Congregation of the Unitarian-Universalist church, also known as the Church of the Presidents, at its annual meeting voted by a margin of 92 percent to adopt the resolution of support.

"This historic church, the congregation of John Adams, author of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, has a tradition of concern for individual rights and protection of the minority, extending from the early days of the Commonwealth through John Adams to the present day," said the church's announcement.

"Thus, while we cannot know Adams' opinion on the present matters, we are moved from that tradition to speak publicly on present efforts to amend the Constitution of the Commonwealth."

The resolution, said the announcement, was formed after five months of meetings and discussion by the congregation as a whole and went through many drafts before reaching its final form.

"The resolution reflects the historical commitment of the congregation of John Adams to the right of conscience and the use of the democratic process, individual rights, the protection of the minority, and 'the inherent worth and dignity of all human beings.'"

REV. SHELDON BENNETT

The text of the resolution:

"As thinking and caring people, we believe marriage is an important institution that supports loving couples, nurtures children, and deepens the bonds between families and their communities.

"As Unitarian Universalists, we believe in the inherent worth and dignity of all human beings, affirming the equal value of all people.

"We believe in the right of individual conscience and civil liberty, and when there is no objective public harm, government should protect those individual liberties.

"We believe justice and equity are best served by recognizing the right of marriage for same-sex couples.

"And, our compassion for same-sex couples and recognition of their current unfair treatment compels us to respond publicly to this issue.

"Therefore, this congregation resolves:

"To support the right of same sex couples to marry and receive all the rights and benefits of that civil institution under the laws of the Commonwealth.

"To urge the people and the government of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to abide by the decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court in Goodridge v. Board of Health; and

"To request that the legislature cease efforts to amend the Constitution, as the proposed amendment erodes the principles underlying the constitutions of both Massachusetts and the United States."

Presidents John and John Quincy Adams, neither of whom are known to have ever commented on same-sex marriage, were members of the First Parish Church and are buried with their wives in basement tombs.

Condos Sales Set Record

Bay State Home Sales, Prices Climb In 1st Quarter

Low mortgage rates, an improving economy, and mild winter weather kept home sales strong across the Bay State in the first quarter of 2004, driving up demand and triggering an early start to the spring home buying season, according to date recently released by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors® (MAR).

Condominium sales were especially brisk, setting a new first quarter record, while detached single-family home sales rose to their fifth highest level on record for a January March period. Home prices also rose steadily for a 43rd consecutive quarter as a result of the healthy sales pace.

The MAR report specifically shows that sales of detached single-family homes increased three percent during the first quarter, from 8,317 units sold in the first three months of 2003 to 8,566 in the same three-month period this year. This marks the third consecutive quarter that detached home sales have risen over the same quarter one year earlier. Additionally, condominium sales improved 7.5 percent in the opening quarter of the year, up from 2,868 units sold in the first quarter a year ago to 3,084 during the January March 2004. The 3,084 condos sold during the 2004 first quarter establishes a new first quarter sales volume record for the state, eclipsing the previous record of 3,024 units sold in the first quarter of 2002.

Regionally, in the first quarter, sales of detached single-family homes improved a modest 1-3 percent in greater Boston and western Massachusetts, while sales growth of 5-7 percent was observed on Cape Cod, in Worcester County (Central), and along the South Shore compared to year ago levels. Elsewhere, sales slid one percent in the Northeast region and fell 6.6 percent in southeastern Massachusetts due to a limited supply of entry-level homes. In the condo market, sales rose in four regions, with the sharpest gains occurring in southeastern Massachusetts (+38.7%) and greater Boston (+18%). Sales also increased from 5-7 percent in the Northeast and West regions, but fell modestly in the Cape Cod, Central and South Shore regions.

While condominiums continue to become an increasingly popular choice for entry-level buyers and empty-nesters seeking options to the higher priced detached home market, the brighter jobs forecast and rebound in the financial markets this past year has helped give prospective home buyers at all levels the confidence to move forward with a home purchase.

Notably, in January, the average rate for a 30-year, fixed mortgage in Massachusetts dropped below 6 percent for the first time since July 2003, and for the first quarter of 2004 the average rate was 5.76 percent, one quarter point below the 2003 first quarter 30-year fixed-rate average of 6.01 percent. As of last week, however, the rate had risen to 6.35 percent.

Another motivating factor attracting buyers into the market has been a more plentiful supply of homes for sale. In the first quarter of 2004, the inventory of detached homes and condos increased 7 percent, from a monthly average of 34,106 single-family listings in the first three months of 2003 to 36,459 listings in the same quarter this year. Notably, that represents 9.4 months of supply, a slight increase over the 9.1 months of supply available in the first quarter of 2003, and the healthiest the market has been in terms of supply since the first quarter of 1998 when there was 10.8 months of supply.

Significantly, the MAR reporter also contained good news for current homeowners, as selling prices continued to rise steadily in the first quarter. In the detached single-family home market, the statewide median selling prices continued to rise steadily in the first quarter. In the detached single-family home market, the statewide median selling price increased 8.6 percent, from a median price of $290,000 in the first three months of 2003 to $315,000 in the comparable period this year. Meanwhile, the statewide median selling price for condominiums rose 14.4 percent, from a median price of $203,500 in the first quarter last year to $232,740 in the opening quarter of 2004. Average selling prices showed similar gains, with the statewide average selling price for detached single-family homes up 8.3 percent this past year, from $349,855 in the first quarter of 2003 to $378,963 in the same quarter this year, and the statewide average selling price for condos climbing 12.3 percent, from $238,806 in the opening quarter a year ago to $268,295 in the three months from January-march 2004.

Every region of the state also reported positive price gains between the first quarters of 2003 and 2004. Median selling prices for detached single-family homes rose at a rate equal to or greater than the statewide rate of appreciation in the Cape Cod, Central, greater Boston, and West regions, but increased a more modest 3-6 percent elsewhere, including the greater Fall River-New Bedford area and the Northeast region, but increased a more modest 3-6 percent elsewhere, including the greater Fall River-New Bedford area and Northeast region, where sales were down from year ago levels. Similarly, in the condo market, strong demand produced double-digit increases in median selling prices in five of seven regional markets – Cape Cod, Worcester County, greater Boston, the South Shore and western Massachusetts – over the past 12 months.

Electrical Safety Tips

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission says there is an annual average of 165,380 electrical-related home structure fires, taking an average of more than 900 lives, injuring 7,000 people and causing nearly $1.7 billion in property damage.

To protect your loved ones and home, the Independent Insurance Agents & Brokers of America (IIABA) and the Electrical Safety Foundation International (ESFI) offer these electrical safety tips.

Outlets and Plugs

• Check for outlets that have loose-fitting plugs, which can overheat and lead to fire.

• Never remove the ground pin (the third prong) to make a three-prong plug fit a two-conductor outlet; this could lead to an electrical shock.

• Never force a plug into an outlet if it doesn't fit. Plugs should fit securely into outlets.

• Avoid overloading outlets with too many appliances.

• Replace any missing or broken wall plates.

• Make sure there are safety covers on all unused outlets that are accessible to children.

• Check for any hot or discolored outlet wall plates; this may indicate dangerous heat buildup at the connections.

Power Cords and Extension Cords

• Ensure all power cords and extension cords are in good condition, not frayed or cracked.

• Cords should never be nailed or stapled to the wall, baseboard or another subject.

• Do not place cords in high traffic areas or under carpets, rugs or furniture.

• Extension cords should only be used on a temporary basis; they are not intended as permanent household wiring.

Light Bulbs

• Check the wattage of all bulbs in lamps and light fixtures to ensure they are the correct wattage for the lamp or fixture.

• Replace bulbs that have higher wattage than recommended; if you don't know the correct wattage, check with the manufacturer.

• Make sure bulbs are screwed in securely – loose bulbs may overheat.

Circuit Breakers and Fuses

• Circuit breakers and fuses should be the correct size and rating for their circuit.

• If you do not know the correct size, have an electrician identify and label the size to be used.

• Always replace a fuse with the same size fuse.

• Create a circuit map that clearly identifies all outlets, fixtures and the major appliances each circuit serves.

Appliances

• Ensure all your appliances are all certified by an independent testing laboratory such as UL, CSA, ETL or MET Labs, and read and follow the manufacturer's instructions carefully.

GFCIs and AFCIs

• Ground fault circuit interrupters (GFCIs) prevent accidental electric shock and electrocution by shutting off a circuit when a "leak" of electric current is detected off the circuit. Required in homes since the early 1970s, homeowners should consider GFCIs on all general-purpose circuits. GFCIs should be tested monthly and after every major electrical storm.

• AFCIs help prevent fires that often result from problems with outlets, switches and frayed and cracked cords by sensing the particular signature of an arc – where electricity has to "jump a gap" – and, like GFCI, acts immediately to shut off the circuit, thus depriving the hazard the opportunity to start a fire. AFCIs are currently required in all new home construction in the bedroom circuit, but should be considered in all homes, particularly older homes, and on all general-purpose circuits.

Rejects Mayor's Pay Increase

Finance Committee Debates Pay Raises, Cuts In Budgets

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The finance committee began scrutinizing the mayor's proposed $213.1 million budget for fiscal 2005 by cutting Phelan's proposed salary increase but approving pay hikes for other city employees.

On a 5-4 vote, the committee scuttled a $3,770 pay increase that would eventually hike the mayor's salary from $95,000 to $98,770. But the committee approved pay raises for the mayor's Executive Secretary, Director of Operations and Assistant to the Mayor. Committee members trimmed pay raises for the position of Secretary and Receptionist in the mayor's office. Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro proved to be the swing vote; he voted against the mayor's pay increase but for pay hikes for Phelan's assistants.

JOHN KEENAN

The mayor's salary has not increased since Phelan took office in 2002.

The committee also trimmed a proposed pay raise for City Clerk Joseph Shea. The clerk's salary was increased from $81,635 to $84,084.

Overall, the committee made 13 budget cuts totaling approximately $50,000.

Phelan's proposed budget includes pay raises for most department heads. The pay increases range from 2 to 28 percent. For example, the mayor has proposed 6 percent pay raises for the Planning Director, City Solicitor, Director of Inspectional Services and City Engineer. Other positions, such as the Police Chief and Treasurer, are level-funded in the 2005 budget.

Phelan called the proposed pay raises a "matter of fairness."

"These employees deserve no less than union employees," said Phelan. "The pay raises are designed to mirror what all other city employees have already received. The appointed employees have waited nearly three years without a pay raise. During that time all the union employees' contracts have been signed, and with retroactive pay."

At Monday night's meeting, the proposed pay increases did not sit well with some councillors, who said the city should be curtailing spending at a time when taxpayers are getting hit with large tax increases.

"I was blindsided by this," said Raymondi. "This is bad policy at the wrong time. There are raises in this budget for people who have just been appointed." Raymondi's attempt to scuttle all proposed pay raises for department heads was defeated on a 6-3 vote. Councillor Joe Finn and Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin voted with Raymondi on the matter.

Committee Chairman John Keenan voted in favor of the pay hikes on Monday night's agenda, saying holding down pay for department heads sends the wrong message to those seeking employment in the city.

"If we don't start treating people with dignity and respect, this city is not going to function," said Keenan.

The committee axed $15,000 from the Harbormaster's budget and an additional $10,000 from the Furnace Brook Golf Club account, keeping it level funded from last year.

Council President Frank McCauley's attempt to cut $20,000 from the Celebrations line item failed on a close vote. The Celebrations budget includes funds for city events, such as the city's annual Christmas parade, the Flag Day event and Cleaner, Greener Quincy. McCauley said the proposed budget cut would not have affected any of the events, but Keenan said if the cut was enacted then "something would have to give."

Alan Cousin, president of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, called the committee's overall effort a "lost opportunity" to help the city's taxpayers.

"I thought the committee missed some great opportunities to show they really do put taxpayers' interests first," said Cousin. "Many councillors talk about their concern for the taxpayers, but very few have shown it so far. I don't think this bodes well for taxpayers," said Cousin.

He praised Raymondi, Coughlin and Finn for seeking deeper spending cuts.

Starbucks First Tenant At Munroe Place

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The first tenant for the new Munroe Place at 1205 Hancock St. will be Starbucks Coffee.

The License Board at Tuesday's meeting granted a request of Dan Brennan, a representative for Starbucks for a common victualer license pending approval from the building department, the health and fire departments.

The 24 seat cafe, located on the left corner near the bus line will open at 5 a.m. until midnight seven days a week.

Brennan said he will submit plans to the building department and following their meeting, construction is estimated to take six weeks. He said it is anticipated that the opening will be in about two months.

Conditional approval of the common victualer license was needed before construction could begin, Brennan said.

The 1600 square food cafe will be shared with an ATM cubicle.

Taking Off Those Extra Pounds

(NAPS) - If you're ever among the many Americans struggling to lose weight, here are some tips for slimming down:

• Adopt healthy eating patterns. It's not enough to limit calories - the calories you eat should come from a variety of nutrient-rich foods from all food groups. For instance, it's important to try to eat five servings of fruits and vegetables every day.

• Give up poor eating habits. Don't eat when you're not hungry, or eat more than you're hungry for. You should also try to be aware of what you're eating. In particular, limit sodium, saturated fat and empty calories.

• Exercise daily. Losing weight is about more than cutting calories. It is imperative that you add physical activity and cardiovascular exercise to your schedule. Exercise can give you more energy, increase well-being and help build and tone muscles as you lose weight. Weight exercises in particular can help increase skeletal muscle, which burns more calories than body fat even when you're at rest.

• Be satisfied with small steps. With any diet or exercise program, you'll probably lose weight very slowly at first. It's important to be patient and be satisfied with even small gains.

• Remember it's only food. Avoid thinking of foods or eating in general in moral terms. That way, a slip is less likely to lead you to give up entirely.

• Reward yourself. You may feel as though you're giving up a lot when you embark on a weight loss plan, so always remember to give yourself rewards as you make progress and achieve your goals.

• Try supplements. A supplement can be a major factor in weight loss. GNC's Total Lean, for example, has been scientifically proven to increase calorie burning by up to 60 percent in the hour after you exercise.

For more weight loss tips, go to www.gnc.com.

Hold Those Abs

Q. I have often heard that when doing abdominal exercises, I should "hold my abdominals in." I have tried to do this while exercising but am not sure I'm doing this correctly. How exactly do you "hold your abs in," and why is this important? — B.A., Newport News, Va.

A. Great question! I can't stress enough the importance of maintaining proper abdominal control and positioning during exercise. The craze for developing "six-pack" abs has overshadowed the true function of the abdominal region.

Proper activation of the transverse abdominis muscles protects your spine and the discs of the vertebrae and relieves stress. This relief of stress also prevents low back pain by allowing your back and abdominals to work together. (Low back pain occurs when your back muscles try to take over the job of your abs.)

The "holding in" maneuver is actually a drawing in of your lower abdominal muscles toward your spine while maintaining proper breathing. This technique may take time and practice to learn, but it is helpful not only while exercising, but also when completing everyday activities such as lifting groceries, sitting at your computer and even driving in your car.

To master the "drawing in" technique, practice the following form prior to adding it to any exercise:

• Sit with your back straight and shoulders back, with your head in a neutral position.

• Concentrate on pulling your belly button in toward your spine, contracting your lower abs.

• Don't hold your breath; rather, breathe using your diaphragm.

• If you begin to feel your shoulders rising or find it difficult to breathe normally, relax and try again. You should not feel tense. Concentrate on controlling the abdominal muscles.

• Once you have found this position, practice holding it for 10 seconds and then relaxing. Repeat. The more you practice this maneuver the more natural it will become over time.

Not only will drawing in your abdominals during exercise keep you safe from injury, you can get great fitness results by teaching your abs to function properly.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.
FEAR NOT!
More than an estimated 20 million Americans experience dental fear when visiting the dentist. This fear encompasses everything from moderate dental anxiety to odontophobia - major fear of all things dental. The key to overcoming this fear is to work with a dentist who is patient and sufficiently sympathetic to your situation to effectively address your situation. Dentist and patient must establish a trusting relationship in which the dentist explains all procedures in great detail and works no faster than the patient wishes. The first appointment(s) can be entirely devoted to sharing experiences and information. If necessary, the dentist can introduce inhalation, oral, or intravenous sedation to calm the patient's nerves during procedures.
We will help conquer your fears and we strive to make your dental experience relaxed. Take advantage and call us at 617-479-0220 for an appointment. Have your been putting off seeing a dentist? We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com. We provide cosmetic, functional, and preventive dental care for all ages. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist.

Comeback Win For Quincy Over North, 7-4

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy High School baseball team seemed inspired to win last Friday night's showdown with cross-town rival Quincy at Adams Field.

Junior Zack Brown, who broke his pelvic bone May 14 after being hit by a car, was out of the hospital and inside the Red Raiders' dugout on crutches to cheer for his teammates in the second go-around between the schools.

And when North Quincy began the game by spraying hits all over field to build leads of 3-0 and 4-1, it appeared the underdogs were going to catch the neighbors on an off-day and upset the tourney-bound Presidents.

That was the story early on. But the script changed when junior John Folino took the mound as a relief pitcher, holding North Quincy to one run on two hits over the final 5⅓ innings. The offense heated up during that time to pull out a come-from-behind 7-4 victory.

"It was a great game," said Quincy head coach Mike Draicchio. "We just never gave up. I had to make a pitching change and bring in my best in Folino. He suffered a very difficult loss on Monday (May 17) against Whitman-Hanson with a walk-off home run. For him to come back like that is unbelievable."

"The kids are playing hard and that's what I told them in the dugout," said North Quincy head coach Rick Beach. "I said, 'I couldn't be prouder. You guys never quit.' When we're down two or three runs, we always find ways to get guys on. There's always a tying run at the plate when the game is on the line. We haven't won many of those, but it's something to build on for next year."

Quincy (11-6 overall) clinched a berth in the state tournament for the second year in a row last Wednesday with a 7-3 home victory over Nauset. Quincy, which headed to Brighton Tuesday, hosts Archbishop Williams tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 and closes out the season Friday at Holbrook.

"We're in the tournament which is great," Draicchio said. "It's an unbelievable feeling for the kids and it's an unbelievable feeling for the school. We have three games to go against three teams we've beat. If we get the three wins, we might have a home game here which hasn't happened since 1994."

North Quincy (5-13) opened the scoring in the second inning. Senior Sean Sullivan lined an 0-2 pitch from junior starter John Santon up the middle and sophomore John Allen singled. Junior Dave Djerl grounded to the third baseman, who stepped on the base for the force out but threw wildly to first allowing Allen to score.

With two outs, sophomore Tom Power smashed an RBI double to the left-center gap and senior tri-captain Steve Reardon followed by punching an RBI single to right for a 3-0 advantage.

Junior tri-captain John Fitzgerald singled past the diving glove of junior second baseman Ray Marchand and senior tri-captain Andy McAllister walked to load the bases.

With junior cleanup hitter Mike Powers at the plate, Draicchio summoned Folino to relieve Santon. Powers lined to senior shortstop Ian Jorgensen, who made a tumbling catch up the middle to end the inning.

The Presidents got on the scoreboard in the second. Senior tri-captain Paul Copson reached on a dropped fly ball and scored when junior Steve Priscella ripped an RBI triple over the center fielder's head.

The Red Raiders took a 4-1 lead in the bottom half. Sullivan led off with a single, advanced to third on an errant pickoff throw and scored when Djerl reached on a fielder's choice.

In the fourth, Quincy touched Reardon for three runs on four hits to even the score. Marchand dumped a single to center field and scored on Folino's double to right-center. After senior tri-captain Dan Cosgrove's sacrifice fly, senior Chris Kirschner drove an RBI double down the left field line. With two outs, Steve Priscella blasted another RBI triple over the center fielder's head.

At this point, Folino found his groove. He retired the side in order in the bottom of the fourth – striking the first two hitters out on three pitches each – and went on to set down 11 straight before North Quincy's minor rally in the last inning.

"Folino didn't even get a lot of warm-ups before he went in," Draicchio said. "I had to put him in there on the spot. But he has done that before. He pitches a lot but he keeps his pitch count down. He did a tremendous job.

"He's the best pitcher in the league. He may not have the wins and losses because we lost a couple of close games, but his earned-run average is second to none. He just does the job. He's poised out there. He takes his

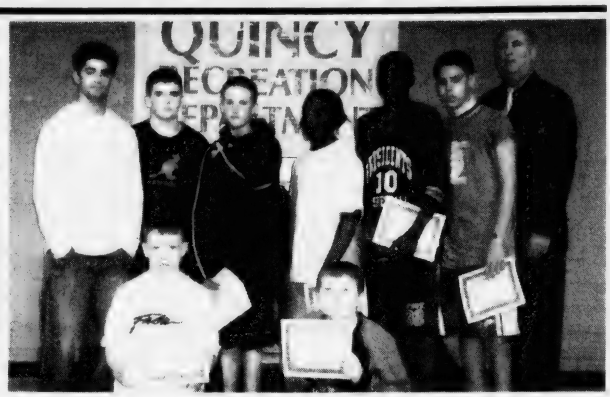
PUTTING YOUR FOOT DOWN

Antilock breaking systems (ABS) help avoid the skidding that may otherwise result from a slam-on-the-brakes panic stop or a short stop on a slippery wet road, in which the wheels lock and/or skid. By monitoring wheel speed during braking, the computerized system senses if a wheel is slowing too quickly. The system then activates a series of valves and pumps to adjust the brake pressure hundreds of times per second, thereby lowering the brake pressure and allowing the wheel to begin turning again. It's important for drivers to realize that, when in use, ABS will cause them to feel a pulsing vibration on the brake pedal. They should not react to this by pumping or lifting their foot off the pedal.



From a safety standpoint ABSs are great. However, they may take a little getting used to. If you are having any problems with most any of your car's systems depend on LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing. We have modern test equipment and the best ASE Certified service technicians in the area. Let's get acquainted at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree 781-843-1550. # Quincy Sweeps Series From North Quincy, 6-0

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy High School softball team not only had to take on a determined Quincy squad, but also an "angry" one last Friday afternoon at Pageant Field in round two of the city rivalry.

Not a good combination.

The Presidents (10-5 overall) blanked the Red Raiders (2-16), 6-0, to sweep the season series and qualify for the state tournament. The victory also ended a two-game slide that just about knocked them out of the Atlantic Coast League championship race.

"We had two tough losses in a row coming in, so we had some anger built up," said junior pitcher Rebi Sorensen. "It always feels awesome to beat North Quincy two times. This should get us back on track and kick butt in the tournament."

Earlier last week, Quincy dropped a pair of 3-2 games to league foes Whitman-Hanson and Nauset. The defeats left them with an 8-2 mark in the ACL, while Whitman-Hanson (11-1) has just one loss with one league game remaining. Quincy has two more league games.

"We qualified for the tournament so that's a good thing," said Quincy head coach Mike Sedar. "Now we're able to work on some things. I've never been a league championship guy. I'm a tournament guy. I like to see how deep we can get. I know it means a lot to the kids and they're disappointed about it. It's too bad."

Sorensen released her anger by firing a five-hit shutout — her second against North Quincy — and punching out 12 and walking none.

"She pitched phenomenal," Sedar said. "She has had a great year. I thought she was a little tired against Nauset. She was on today. She was snapping it. You could hear the ball cracking the glove. She was a pitcher."

"I'm extremely proud of the girls," said North Quincy head coach Bob Doyle. "They worked really hard. We played a top notch team and we showed we're competitive. We stayed right with them. Nothing to be ashamed about. Unfortunately, our hitting has plagued us all year."

North Quincy threatened to get on the scoreboard in the first inning. Senior quad-captain and leadoff hitter Michelle Boyd reached on a bunt single, stole second and moved to third on senior quad-captain Beth Goodrich's sacrifice bunt. Sorensen, though, retired the next two hitters.

In the second, Quincy touched up junior pitcher Deanna Iacobucci for three runs on four hits. Junior quad-captain Alyssa DiMuzio and Sorensen each singled and senior Rose Bell walked to load the bases.

Junior Rebecca Williams and sophomore Leanna Lam stroked RBI singles. Sophomore Kim Lebel reached on an error that allowed Bell to score the third run.

In the bottom half, the Red Raiders had runners on second and third with one out. Junior Amanda Saylor grounded back to Sorensen, who threw home in time to get sophomore Kelly Barden (two hits) out. Sorensen struck out the next batter to end the inning.

"We had some base runners on early and stuff, but unfortunately we couldn't get the timely hits," Doyle said. "But we kept it close. It was 3-0 for most of the game."

North Quincy displayed great defense in the fifth to prevent the Presidents for doing further damage. Junior quad-captain Katie Walsh singled off senior pitcher Kim Walsh (three scoreless innings of relief), but Goodrich gunned her down trying to steal second base. She threw out three runners in the game.

Sophomore Courtney Hall and DiMuzio followed with singles. Sorensen then hit a fly ball to right-center, but Saylor tracked it down from center field with a nice basket catch and threw to first to double up DiMuzio and end the inning.

"I was proud of our defense," Doyle said. "Beth Goodrich had an outstanding game behind the plate, throwing out runners and making a play at the plate too. Amanda Saylor made a nice play in center field.

In the sixth, Iacobucci (four innings pitched, three earned runs) entered the game. She walked the first two batters she faced before walking the next two batters to force in a run. She wound up crossing the plate on errors to put Quincy ahead 5-0. The Presidents tacked on the final run in the seventh inning.

"The Quincy-North game is a tough game for us to play anyway and it's that much tougher because they're a better team," Sedar said. "Bobby has done a great job over there. Their pitching is much better than last year. No doubt about it. He has done a nice job with them. Their defense is solid. They have some younger kids out there. They're a good ballclub."

Under 13 Girls Shut Out Southie

LACROSSE

The Quincy Youth Lacrosse Under 13 girls team blanked South Boston, 11-0, Sunday at Varsity Field.

Quincy's attack was well-balanced with nine different scorers. Cassandra Briffett opened the scoring on a direct shot after a South Boston foul inside the 8-meter arc.

A series of rapid passes from Mary Kate Nelson to Maria DiPietro to Leslie Campbell to Kerry Turok resulted in the second goal.

Campbell also made an assist to Patty Shea for the third goal. Katiann Ruck increased the lead to 4-0 with an assist from Nicole Forbes to end the half.

Quincy's defense never let Southie maintain an attack. Tori Smeglin, playing point, intercepted many passes and used speed and strong passing to clear the ball from Quincy's side of the field.

The goalkeepers, Nikki Haskins in the first half and Shea in the second, were outstanding in the first shutout of the season.

Haskins quickly made the transition to attack and scored the first goal of the second half. Victoria Barney scored the sixth goal. Haskins tallied the next two with assist from DiPietro and Forbes. Tara Sullivan, Nelson and Campbell scored Quincy's final three goals.

CAL RIPKEN MINOR BASEBALL

Josh Ferriera smashed two balls out of the park at Quarry Hills to lead Yellow Cab to a 22-6 win over Quincy Masons in recent Quincy Youth Baseball Cal Ripken Minor League play.

Ferriera's first blast was a ground-rule double to lead off the game and the second was a grand slam that put the game out of reach.

Chris Mariano added two hits and Josh Gerry's double highlighted a night where he reached base in all four at-bats.

For Quincy Masons, Michael Whittemore scored two runs. Jeff Alsip had two singles and Ben O'Brien one.

A Thought For The Week

Memorial Day is an occasion of inspiration and sorrow. We are inspired by the valor of those who placed our nation's safety above personal survival; saddened by the loss of bright and honorable lives. .

Whether the weather is sombre and stormy, or sunny and springlike, traditional parades, speeches, bugler sounded taps and neighborhood wreath-laying observances are seen everywhere on Memorial Day. American flags fly nearly everywhere in the world in memory of all our heroic dead who served their country in the time of need.

Americanism at its finest is seen in the scene of homage on this holiday. In the solemn tribute to our military dead, in recognition of their lives, dreams and hopes cut short, let us hope our prayers are heard for the deliverance from the horror of future wars. With God's help, each living generation must avoid situations of our young men and women ever again being put in harm's way. . .

single new church at a future date.

Details of the merger were not announced, but it was said that the facilities of two churches will be used and reopened under the new name with the parish clergy staying at one place.

Pastors of the four Quincy churches that had been on the possible closing list were notified of their official status by FedEx at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Then Archbishop O'Malley held a news conference at 1 p.m. at his headquarters in Brighton.

In all, he said, 60 churches in the archdiocese had been closed and there were 65 fewer parishes.

The move was brought about by the decrease in the number of active Catholics, financial losses, the high cost of needed repairs to church buildings and a shortage of priests.

More than one third of the parishes in the archdiocese were financially in the red, he said; it would cost more than $100 million to repair church property in Boston alone and some 130 pastors were over the age of 70.

The money saved by the closings, he said, will not be used to pay off the victims of clergy abuses; funds from the sale of church assets were used to pay for those settlements.

He urged members of the closed parishes to "lay aside your anger and disappointment. We need to support each other. This is no time for divisions. It's a challenge to all of us not to be parochial but catholic (universal)."

The letters from Archbishop O'Malley that were FedExed to pastors urged those whose churches were spared to welcome those members whose parishes were closed.

"Your leadership is essential at this time," he wrote. "The emotional relief you and your parishioners feel will be countered by the trauma of priests and people around you in closing parishes.

"I am asking that you be strong in helping your people to be sensitive and caring and that your parish put a great deal of energy into effectively welcoming those who seek to join your faith community."

Sheriff Bellotti Speaker At Ward 4 Seniors June 2

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Ward 4 Senior Citizens Social Group Wednesday, June 2, at 2 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

Bellotti will address the seniors' concerns and issues relating to safety TRIAD programs.

State Proposes Solution For QSD Homeowners' Land Problems

(Cont'd From Page 1)

Earlier this year, DCR informed Quincy Shore Drive residents that fences, walls, structures and plantings would be removed as part of the sewer project. The state discovered that some land used by homeowners was actually state-owned land.

Gutro said he is hopeful Mayor William Phelan will look favorably on the plan.

"It is my hope that the mayor will embrace the proposal and expedite any city efforts necessary to adopt it," said Gutro. "Katherine Abbott deserves an enormous amount of gratitude for identifying a practical, creative and desirable solution to a complex issue."

14-Month Ban Lifted

Sleepovers Resume Aboard USS Salem

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Sleepovers have resumed at the USS Salem after city officials recently lifted a 14-month ban on overnight stays at the shipbuilding museum.

About 120 individuals - a group of cub scouts and their parents - slept aboard the Salem on May 22 after Fire Chief Paul O'Connell lifted a ban on sleepovers, according to Michael Condon, executive director of the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum.

"We are extremely pleased - it lifts a pall that has been over the shipbuilding museum for the past year," said Condon.

O'Connell's decision to lift the ban ends a longstanding impasse between the city and Salem officials over safety issues on the Navy's decommissioned heavy cruiser. The Salem is in the process of obtaining an occupancy permit by the Department of Inspectional Services, according to Condon.

Removing the ban will help the museum to regain its financial footing, he said.

The U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum derives nearly 50 percent of its revenue from the sleepovers, he said. An estimated $250,000 has been lost due to the sleepover ban, he said.

"From a financial perspective it's been devastating," said Condon. "Most businesses would go out of business if they lost 50 percent of their revenue, but we hung in there. Things look much brighter now."

In the previous twelve months prior to the ban, approximately 6,000 people slept aboard the former flagship of the Navy's 6th Fleet, he said. The number of participants was cut to 2,000 due to the sleepover ban, he said. During the ban, Salem officials placed visitors in local hotels and paid for their stay.

Former Mayor James Sheets, chairman of the museum's board of directors, called the lifting of the ban a "big boost."

"We are back in business," said Sheets. "These kids want to see the ship but they want to sleep where the sailors slept."

O'Connell instituted a ban on sleepovers last year after deeming the ship unsafe due to a lack of sprinklers, poor ventilation and inadequate exits.

Salem officials appealed O'Connell's decision to the state Building Board of Appeals, which conducted a site visit to collect information on the matter.

In March, the appeals board issued a number of recommendations for Salem officials. Under the appeals board ruling, sleepovers could resume if Salem officials implemented all recommendations to the satisfac

Phelan To Work With State On Land Solution

The City of Quincy will begin working with the state Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) to hammer out a formal agreement that would allow Quincy Shore Drive residents the opportunity to maintain the properties affected by the ongoing sewer line construction project.

The development comes after DCR Commissioner Katherine Abbott last week proposed granting the city a sewer easement for the land in question that would allow the city to maintain the restored encroachment areas either directly or through agreements with abutters.

Originally, DCR stated that the land in front of the properties would be maintained by DCR and that any encroachments would be permanently displaced.

Mayor William Phelan said he was pleased with DCR's reversal.

"I am pleased that the DCR has changed course on this policy decision and will allow the Quincy Shore Drive residents the relief they deserve," said Phelan. "The residents have been inconvenienced significantly by this improvement project and I hope this decision provides them assurances that the land surrounding their properties will be properly maintained."

Phelan is in the process of contacting Sen. Michael Morrissey to facilitate a meeting between city officials and DCR according to the mayor's office. Phelan

Past, Present Veterans Remembered On Memorial Day

BY COURTNEY PAQUETTE

[illegible] and [illegible] Veterans and [illegible] Memorial [illegible] Mount Wollaston Cemetery [illegible] Memorial Day [illegible] ceremonies [illegible] Parade Marshal [illegible] Lawler, commander [illegible] Quincy Veterans Council, told the Memorial Day ceremonies.

He [illegible] casualty of war from Quincy, Sgt. Charles Todd Caldwell was remembered in a special way. A wreath was laid at his gravesite and the crowd stood for a moment of silence. Caldwell was killed in Iraq in September when his Humvee struck a roadside bomb.

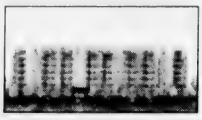
The ceremonies included a parade down Hancock, Coddington and Sea Streets to the cemetery where participants gathered at the World War II Podium to hear the main speaker, Earl Kuja, 88, of Quincy, a Pearl Harbor survivor.

Kuja was stationed at the U. S. Army's Schofield Barrack on Dec. 7, 1941, when the Japanese attack drew America into World War II. He described that day nearly 63 years ago.

"It was just as if (the American planes) were lined up for a parade," he said in a booming voice that echoed among the gravestones. "Then everyone of them was split in half."

Kuja said two Air Corps men, George Walsh and Ken Taylor, managed to get their planes in the air and tried to ward off the Japanese. Taylor ended up injured and Walsh got shot down.

But, said Kuja, neither received any recognition for their act because they conducted them without permission from higher authority.



Mayor William Phelan said the public can give thanks to the soldiers for the sacrifices they made by conducting ourselves with dignity every day and by respecting and attending to the needs of those veterans who are still with us.

"To their eternal credit and to our everlasting benefit, these soldiers didn't shirk their duty," he said.

City Council President Frank McCauley encouraged the crowd to remember not only the veterans who served in previous wars, but the soldiers and Marines currently serving in Iraq.

Debbi Riordan of Quincy caught the spirit of the day.

"It's not about a day off or cookouts or parties," said Debbi, who came with her husband, Ted, and brought their three daughters, Siobhan, Maeve and Fiona, to teach them, she said, the true meaning of Memorial Day — remembering veterans of past wars and soldiers of the present.

WWII Veterans Welcome Memorial 60 Years Later

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

Fran McMorrow joined the U. S. Army in 1968. He served in Vietnam and is now the director of the New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans.

His only memories of World War II are the stories told by his uncles, all of whom served, and the stories encouraged him to serve. The "greatest generation," he said, made quite an impression on him.

"Growing up, you always had your heroes," he said, between snapping pictures of each of the 156 veterans who received citations Saturday at Quincy's observance of the National World War II Memorial in Washington. "With me, they were World War II vets."

Nearly 400 people packed the hall at the George F. Bryan VFW Post to honor their heroes, parents, friends and wives of those who served in World War II.

The observance was sponsored by Quincy Veterans Services and the Quincy Veterans Council and included many World War II veterans dressed in uniforms that displayed the many honors they had received.

Two big television sets showed the observance in Washington, featuring former Sen. Bob Dale, a veteran of World War II. President George Bush and other dignitaries, who bestowed one more honor, "a tribute past due," as the observance was called.

ARMY NATIONAL GUARDSMAN Jim Curran of Quincy, who returned home from Iraq in March after serving there for 11 months, got together with Navy World War II veteran Daniel Dorley, the oldest veteran at Saturday's event.

"The greatest thing that ever happened to me in my 79 years," said Anthony Belmonte of Quincy, referring to the World War II Memorial. Belmonte served in the Marine Corps with his twin brother, Augustine. Two other Belmonte brothers, Peter and Paul, served in the Army.

The monument in the nation's capital, which opened April 29, covers 7.4 acres between the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial. It honors the 16 million who served in World War II and the 400,000 who died.

Lincoln Hancock Students Pitch In To Aid War Effort

Some Quincy kids will do their part to help in the war against terror today.

The Lincoln-Hancock School will hold an assembly at 1 or 1:30 p.m. to present the goods they have collected for the U. S. Marines in Iraq to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pettinelli.

The Pettinellis will accept the goods on behalf of their son, Lt. John Pettinelli, who had asked his parents for some items to make life a little bit easier for his men on the front lines in the war-torn Middle East.

The school heard about it and pitched in to help. As of May 19, the kids had collected more than 255 pounds of goods from diaper wipes to Q-Tips to lip balm to pens and paper and were still going strong.

One parent even took up a collection at work and raised enough to purchase almost $200 worth of supplies to add to the total.

The class that collects the weightiest amount of goods will receive a pizza party, courtesy of Balducci's in North Quincy, and every student will get a popsicle, courtesy of Roche Brothers supermarket.

• On May 31, 1759, lawmakers in Pennsylvania adopt a law forbidding the performance of plays. The law was adopted in response to pressure from religious groups, particularly Baptists, who found theatrical performances immoral.

• On June 4, 1919, the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, guaranteeing women the right to vote, is passed by Congress and sent to the states for ratification. The 19th Amendment became law on Aug. 26, 1920, after 36 states ratified the amendment.

• On June 6, 1944, Supreme Allied Commander General Dwight D. Eisenhower gives the go-ahead for largest amphibious military operation in history: Operation Overlord, code named D-Day, the Allied invasion of northern France. Before the day was over, 155,000 Allied troops would be in Normandy.

• On June 1, 1968, Helen Keller dies in Connecticut at the age of 87. A normal infant, she was stricken with an illness at 19 months, probably scarlet fever, which left her blind and deaf. Keller circumvented her disabilities to become a world-renowned writer and lecturer.

• On June 2, 1997, Timothy McVeigh, a former U.S. Army soldier, is convicted on 15 counts of murder and conspiracy for his role in the 1995 terrorist bombing of the Alfred P. ## Paul Harold Profile In Courage Award

Paul Harold has been gone nearly two years but certainly not forgotten.

A new honor in his memory is planned by a group of his close friends: The Paul D. Harold Profile In Courage Award.

HAROLD

It will be an annual award to an individual, group or association exemplifying that trait with the first to be presented in September at a reception at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Paul has had other recent honors. The Quincy Center Concourse bridge was dedicated in his name in April.

And a memorial road race and walk also in his name the same day raised funds to help keep his civic causes such as scholarships and sponsorship of youth sports teams alive.

He was also posthumously honored as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year in 2002 for "putting people first" during his distinguished 27 year public service career.

Now, the Paul D. Harold Profile In Courage Award.

Quite fitting and appropriate because Paul himself was a profile in courage during his political career as a state senator, city councillor and Norfolk County Register of Deeds.

He firmly stood his ground on issues, not matter how controversial. And when he took a stand he didn't first count how many votes he might win or lose on a particular issue. He stood on his beliefs. And was always there to help the little guy.

Paul died Aug. 12, 2002 after a long, courageous battle with cancer. He was only 53.

His early death ended an outstanding public service career during which to his many loyal followers, he was "the voice and champion of the people."

The group of friends has formed a non-profit corporation, Paul D. Harold Profile In Courage, Inc. to memorialize his life and public service. They include:

William Arienti, Quincy firefighter and former union president (chairman); Atty. Christine Cedrone, former school committee vice chairwoman (secretary); City Council President Frank McCauley, Norfolk County Register of Probate Patrick McDermott, Ann Knafelz, administrative assistant to Paul during his 14 years as senator; Mike Linnane, his long-time campaign coordinator; Joseph Harold, his nephew and this writer.

Details of the Profile In Courage Award will be announced at a press conference in McCauley's City Hall office Tuesday, June 8 at 11 a.m.

The group has not yet selected the first recipient of the award.

Someone like Paul Harold himself would be an ideal first choice.

WGBH's Ron Della Chiesa, who grew up in Quincy, and his wife are on their way to Normandy for the 60th anniversary of D-Day Sunday.

DELLA CHIESA

Della Chiesa plans to do a documentary of the music of World War II. That music was some of the most sentimental and patriotic ever written. His fans will look forward to the documentary.

Della Chiesa's father, Aldo, was a Ward 3 city councillor and his uncle, Amelio Della Chiesa, served 12 years as Plan E and Plan A mayor.

A fundraiser for Norfolk County Commissioner John Gillis is set for June 24, 7 p.m., at the Adams Inn Gazebo, Hancock St., 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

GILLIS

The event is being co-hosted by state senator Mike Morrissey, Sheriff Mike Bellotti, and state Reps. Bruce Ayers and Ron Mariano.

Suggested donation range: $50, $100, $200.

Gillis, former long-time city clerk and City Hall legend, is seeking his fourth term as commissioner.

Veterans' Flags Sought For Flag Day Parade

The Quincy Flag Day Parade Committee is seeking veterans' flags for display during the 53rd annual Flag Day Parade Saturday, June 12.

Families of deceased veterans may drop off their flags at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston, to be placed on the "Quincy Salutes in Veterans" float in the procession.

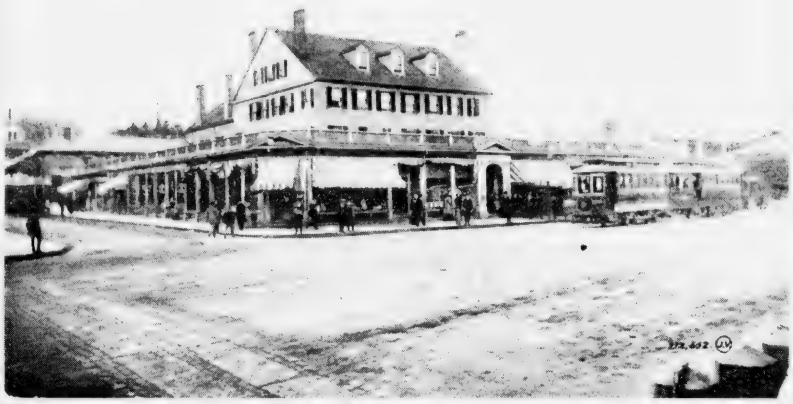
Edward J. Keohane, chairman of the Quincy Partnership, one of the sponsors of the parade, has assured that all flags lent for the display will be well cared for while in the committee's possession.

"Families who choose to display their loved one's flag in the parade give us all an opportunity to pay homage to their memory and the sacrifices they made to honor and protect the freedoms our flag represents," he said.

The Flag Day Parade will step off from Coddington Street in Quincy Center Saturday, June 12 at 7 p.m. and will proceed down Hancock Street to Merrymount Parkway and disband at Pageant Field in Merrymount Park.

There will be a flag-raising ceremony at Pageant Field, a flyover by the Massachusetts State Police Air Wing, a patriotic performance by the Quincy Symphony Orchestra, a howitzer salute and 30 minutes of fireworks over Black's Creek.

"With so many of Quincy's sons and daughters enlisted in the service and engaged in the conflict in Iraq it is essential to instill in our youngsters the importance of respecting and honoring their dedication to our country, all for the preservation of our freedoms," said Thomas Koch, chairman of the Flag Day Parade Committee.



"The veterans' flag display allows us to show our appreciation for the sacrifices of those who are no longer with us and reminds us that our freedom is a credit to their efforts."

Meeting Friday On Antenna Installation At 91 Clay St.

A neighborhood meeting has been scheduled for tomorrow (Friday) at 4 p.m. in the 1st floor meeting room at Wollaston Manor, 91 Clay St., regarding a presentation by a representative from Omnipoint Holdings about a proposal to install a canister antenna and associated equipment on the rooftop of 91 Clay St.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro is sponsoring the meeting to allow residents the opportunity to ask questions and express concerns before this matter comes before the Zoning Board of Appeals on Tuesday, June 8 at 7:15 p.m. on the 2nd floor in the Council Chambers at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1915 postcard view of what was known then as the Faxon Block on Hancock Street in Quincy Square. It was located between Depot and Saville Streets, both long gone along with the building; they have been replaced with Constitution Plaza and McIntyre Mall next to City Hall. The building in the center, built in 1837, was the Hancock House, a first class hotel and principal tavern in Quincy for many years. Daniel Webster frequented it on his way home to Marshfield from Boston. In the 1870's, Henry H. Faxon bought it and it became the boarding house for the students at the Adams Academy. When the school closed, the stores were built around the base. Those stores included McGilvary's Drug Store, Patterson's Florist Shop, Sandberg's Jewelry and Thompson's Restaurant, later the Waldorf. The Eastern Mass. Street Railway had its waiting room where the trolleys are parked. The Hancock House was demolished in 1920 but the stores survived until 1968 when they too were demolished to make room for the new Quincy Center Red Line station. The roof of the old Quincy railroad depot can be seen over the stores down Depot Street on the left. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net

Pruitt School Supt. At $18,000 Salary

This Week
1963
41 Years Ago

Robert E. Pruitt, 46, of Forest Park, Ill., associate director of the University of Chicago's Experimental Laboratory School, was named to the $18,000 a year post of superintendent of schools in Quincy.

Pruitt was to succeed Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard, who was retiring Aug. 1.

"I am very pleased," said Pruitt in a telephone interview from his Midwest home. "The professional way in which members of your school have handled this has impressed me. It is a very pleasant experience."

Although he was born in Kentucky and spent most of his working life in the Midwest, Pruitt was no stranger to New England, having spent time at Harvard and MIT as a supervisor of teaching methods for the War Department.

"All aspects of education must get emphasis," he said.

"In past years, the sciences have been greatly emphasized. But we are moving in the direction of, and I support this, a need to implement efforts to strengthen the social studies, humanities, and arts."

DUMPING RESTRAINED

The city of Quincy obtained a restraining order in Norfolk Superior Court to halt the dumping of demolition lumber into a privately-owned quarry off Willard St., West Quincy, not far from the big Swingle's Quarry.

The quarry was owned by Peter G. Ruscetto of Braintree, who was filling it in as part of a preliminary phase to the development of about 270 acres of property he owns in the quarry district.

REBUILDING ROP

C. Frederick Dumaine, chairman of the Republican State Committee, told his fellow party members in Quincy that they should take a leaf from the Democrats' book and look to youth for party revival.

"We must get youth into the ranks," he said. "We will never have the strength to do what Ted Kennedy has done but we must have youth on our side."

Section 8 Program Crisis

There is a crisis that is being kept from you. One that may or may not affect you personally but will affect you or someone you know in the very near future.

The federal government through Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has grossly under funded and/or intends not to fund the Section 8 program. What does this mean to you? It means those on fixed incomes may lose their housing subsidy and end up homeless. It means landlords may receive less rent in an ever increasing housing market — one where there are escalating costs (taxes, water bills, insurance, etc.).

I understand there are people that have an automatic negative attitude about the Section 8 program and there may be good reason for it. We need to work to alleviate the issues together. The answer is not putting people out in the street and creating more homelessness.

Governor Romney needs to hear from you. Please write to him and let him know that we need him to lobby for us in Washington. Tell him that making people homeless will cause more problems and will certainly not solve our Section 8 issues. His address is: Governor Mitt Romney, State House, Room 360, Boston, MA 02133.

Your assistance is greatly appreciated.

Quincy Youth Hockey Will Miss Sonny Pugliese

This past month marked the end of an era for Quincy Youth Hockey. Sonny Pugliese, our referee and chief, has decided to call it quits.

Sonny has committed over 30 years of service to the program he loved. He served the program as coach, a member of the Board of Directors, and referee and chief.

Sonny represented authority, character and leadership. He taught many young hockey players the rules of the game. He also served as an example for young referees, teaching them responsibility and integrity.

We wish him luck in his pursuits. Sonny will be missed.

Quincy Youth Hockey Board of Directors

Wake Up And Speak Up

Thank you, Quincy Sun, for printing "No Place For Hate Means No Place For Traditional Values."

The Rev. Swanson is right on in his summary of the same-sex marriage debate and the "No Place For Hate" agenda of the Quincy Human Rights Commission.

The intent of rhetoric like "hate," "bigot," "homophobe" is to intimidate people with differing ideas into silence. It is past that time we all realize where political correctness has led us. Wake up and speak up.

Letter Carriers Say Thanks

The letter carriers from the Quincy Center, Wollaston and the North Quincy Post Offices wish to extend our sincere thanks to the citizens of Quincy for their generosity in response to our annual food drive.

The Letter Carrier Food Drive is held every year on the second Saturday of May. This year over 30,000 pounds of food were left on doorsteps all over the city. Special thanks to the Mayor's office for the use of the DPW facility and all the volunteers who worked that day to sort food that went to the various social agencies within the city of Quincy.

Magazine Flag Covers Displayed At Quincy Historical Society

When the United States was provoked into war on Dec. 7, 1941, it seemed like the flag popped up everywhere you looked, particularly on the covers of magazines and kindred publications across the country.

In July, 1942, seven months after the first bombs fell on Pearl Harbor, no less than 500 magazines and reports of corporations, professional associations and other organizations featured the flag on their covers.

More than 100 of those magazine covers emblazoned with the Star Spangled Banner, part of the collection of Libbie Payne of Quincy, will be on display at the Quincy Historical Society from June 10, through Sept. 3.

The exhibit is called "Old Glory: July, 1942."

A reception will be held Thursday, June 10, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Historical Society headquarters in the Adams Academy Building, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Many of the covers in the collection are from July, 1942, but at least one, "Volunteer Fireman" of July, 1944, is included since it is a publication of the Quincy-based National Fire Protection Association.

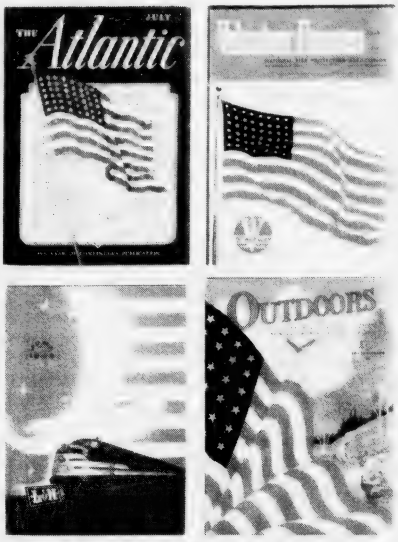
Also on the "Volunteer Fireman" cover is the symbol of war bonds and an admonition to readers to "Back the Attack! Buy More Than Before!" a reminder of Quincy's own Eddie Kasper, one of the nation's top war bond "salesmen."

The Kasper family, which included his wife, Ginny, and their "girls," Joanne Dondero and Ginny Duffy, agreed to share some of Eddie's photos and other war era material and it will also be on display.

The drive to show the flag, called "the United We Stand" campaign, was conceived by Paul McNamara, editor of William Randolph Hearst's "Cosmopolitan" magazine as a way to demonstrate patriotism, and perhaps sell a few magazines, too.

It was supported by the National Magazine Publishers Association, the US Department of the Treasury and the United States Flag Association.

Payne started her collection when a neighbor, Joe O'Connell, showed her a poster of the July, 1942, cover of "The Atlantic Monthly" and explained the story behind the historic publishing campaign.



O'Connell, a sergeant in the 17th Field Artillery of the Second Army Corps in Africa, later was production director of the Atlantic Monthly for 32 years. The July, 1942 Atlantic cover is part of the exhibit.

The gamut of the covers on display run from a somber black and white photo of the flag from Dec. 22, 1941, to a full color flag photograph on the July 6, 1942, edition of Life magazine.

House Beautiful features Washington's home at Mount Vernon, Harper's Bazaar has a stylized flag drape. The Ring shows fighters Bill Conn and Joe Louis, Ladies Home Journal a mother and daughter raising the flag, and Gourmet, a red, white and blue ice cream cake with crossed flags.

Many of the covers in "Old Glory: July, 1942" — but not all — are also included in the Smithsonian Institution's collection in Washington.

Libbie Payne's collection can be seen at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is free.

'Planting Pride In Quincy' Campaign Grows With Community, Business Efforts

Mayor William Phelan's "Planting Pride in Quincy" campaign programs provide the opportunity for members of the business community, residents and organizations to join the municipal effort as Quincy strives to become one of the most beautiful cities in America.

"Quincy has the potential to be recognized as one of the most beautiful cities in America, and I am certain if we work together we can achieve the recognition," Phelan said. "Our strong sense of community involvement will be instrumental to the success of this endeavor, and I am confident that our entire community will rise to the occasion to improve the appearance and quality of life in our city."

Phelan is counting on existing programs, namely the "Neat Neighbors" and "Adopt-an-Island" initiatives, to bolster the beautification effort and is imploring the business community to take a more active role with the introduction of the "Adopt-a-Sidewalk" program.

A mailing was sent out to all common victualer license holders citywide asking for their support in the form committing to keep the sidewalk outside their business tidy which may involve minor sweeping, weeding, watering a city tree if necessary and taking it even a step further to beautify the area.

"The business community has responded well to this initiative, and I strongly urge those who have not, to join the effort so we can make our city a more attractive place to do business," Phelan said.

Businesses who have agreed to "Adopt-a-Sidewalk":

Best Western/Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St.

Blackboard Cafe, 1515 Hancock St.

Boston Market, 126 Granite St.

Brigham's, 13 Beale St.

Century 21 Abigail Adams, 221 West Squantum St.

DB Mart, 263 Beale St.

Tedeschi Food Shops, 751 East Squantum St.

Dunkin' Donuts, Squantum.

Frozen Freddie's, 435 Washington St.

Ginger Betty's Bakery, 215 Samoset Ave.

The Half Door, 1514 Hancock St.

7-11, 75 Copeland St.

Siam House Inc., 1472 Hancock St.

This Takes the Cake, 764 Hancock St.

Phelan has also launched a school beautification program and each school will receive a $500 grant to be used for floral displays, plantings and other beautification projects. All beautification concepts must be approved by the Park Department to ensure quality.

The "Planting Pride in Quincy" initiatives were created to ensure the success of the city's endeavor in the "America in Bloom" national beautification contest. Judges will visit in July to evaluate the city based on eight criteria.

"One of the judging criteria is community involvement and through these initiatives we will not only improve our city's appeal but foster a greater sense of community spirit, both vital elements in moving Quincy forward," Phelan added.

For more information or to participate in "Planting Pride in Quincy," contact the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1251.

WWII Veterans Welcome Memorial 60 Years Later

Two arches, which mark the European and Pacific Theaters of war, stand at opposite ends of what is called the "rainbow pool." Surrounding the pool are 56 granite pillars, each 17 feet high, connected by a sculpted rope. They symbolize unity among the nations during the war.

For some, the dedication was bittersweet. Charles Timcoe of Quincy brought his two children, Taylor and Ryan, who accepted citations in memory of Timcoe's parents, Willard, who served in the Army, and Mary, who was a Marine.

"They finally got what they deserved," said Timcoe. "But it should have been done 40 years ago."

Ward 3 City Councillor Kevin Coughlin said he would have liked for his father, Arthur, who served in the Army Air Corps and passed away last year to be able to see the dedication of the memorial.

"But for those who are still here, it's certainly recognition long-well deserved," he said, adding that respect is paid the veterans "not only through concrete monuments, but by paying respect to them by the actions we take every day."

Henry P. Bradley, director of Veterans Services, offered his own explanation of why a World War II memorial wasn't built sooner.

"A lot of people actually thought that the flag raising on Mount Suribachi (on Iwo Jima) was a World War II monument," he said. "So no one did anything>'

Bradley said the American Battle Monuments Commission raised $170 million for the monument. He said $100 million was used to build it and $70 million will be used for preservation.

Many of the veterans who attended the Quincy observance said they wanted to go the Washington and see the monument.

Daniel Dorley Jr. was one of them. He joined the Navy when he was 28, after earning a degree in accounting from Bentley College. He served in World War II, Korea and Vietnam, mostly on destroyers. He said it wasn't easy being in the Navy but he loved it. At 90 years old, he was the oldest member of the "greatest generation" at Saturday's observance.

"(The memorial) means a lot to me," he said. "I think it's a wonderful thing they've done for us."

'Neat Neighbors' Contest Nominations Now Open

Mayor William Phelan and the Park Department have opened nominations for the 7th annual Quincy "Neat Neighbors" contest.

The contest was created to recognize those who take exceptional care of their property. Twenty-five Quincy residents who make the aesthetic beauty of their property a priority in the spirit of a cleaner, greener Quincy will be recognized through the program.

"As mayor and a resident, I feel so fortunate and proud to be surrounded by individuals who take such great pride in their city and are willing to dedicate their time to join the effort to make it more beautiful for all of us," Phelan said. "The 'Neat Neighbors' contest also presents the opportunity for the many residents who are eager to get involved in the 'Planting Pride In Quincy' campaign as we strive to be an award-winning city."

Nominations will be open through Labor Day and residents can nominate a friend, relative or neighbor who they feel deserves to be recognized for their contribution to the beautification effort.

Park Department personnel will check all nominated properties to ensure that they meet the minimum contest requirements. The 25 neat neighbors will be chosen at random from all those who meet the contest requirements. There will be no judging of properties associated with this contest.

Nominations may be made by contacting the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1251 and including the name and address of the nominee.

New to the contest this year will be acknowledgment of "Neat Neighborhoods." Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments, noted that recognizing neat neighbors can generate a domino effect on entire neighborhoods.

"The 'Neat Neighbors' contest was developed to honor individual efforts, but each year we are pleasantly surprised to see that properties surrounding neat neighbors are also well maintained and desirable," he said. "It's evidence of neighbors working to keep up with each other and the result is beautiful neighborhoods citywide. I think it's equally important to acknowledge these group efforts."

For more information or to nominate a "Neat Neighbor" contact the Park Department at 617-376-1251.

Murder Suspect Pleads Innocent In Fatal Weekend Stabbing

A Dorchester man pleaded innocent Tuesday to murder charges after he was arrested over the weekend for allegedly stabbing to death a Milton man in Quincy.

Lawrence Martin, 47, of 200 Fuller St. in Dorchester, pleaded not guilty to charges of murder during an arraignment before Judge Mark Coven in Quincy District Court.

Judge Coven held Martin without bail. Martin is due back to court on July 1 for his status and a detention hearing.

A detention hearing has been scheduled because Martin is on probation for unrelated charges of indecent assault and battery, according to Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating's office.

Martin also has more than 25 court defaults, according to the DA's office.

Quincy Police received calls at approximately 12:35 a.m. on Saturday reporting a stabbing in the area of Albertina St. and Weeden Place.

The victim, Andrew G. Campbell, 30, of 518 Center St., Milton, was transported to Quincy Medical Center where he was pronounced dead.

Board Gives Restaurant Written Reprimand

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A written reprimand for one year proposed by Det. Lt. Robert Perchard to the Five Spices Restaurant at President's Place instead of a suspension was recommended to the License Board at Tuesday's meeting.

On a motion by Police Chief William Falco, the board voted in favor of Perchard's recommendation.

Back in December, 2003, an altercation on the premises was not reported to the License Board. On Feb., 2004, another complaint was filed.

The board ordered a three day suspension for the selling of alcohol and a two month suspension for the entertainment license.

According to Chairman Joseph Shea, owners of the Five Spices Restaurant disputed the suspension and appealed to the Alcoholic Beverage Control commission.

Since that time, Perchard said that after working with the restaurant the the Police Department , he said he thought the violations were because of a lack of "experience" on the part of the owner of the restaurant. He added that a "dramatic change for the better has happened with more security and the owner makes sure "everyone gets out on time."

The recommendation for the written warning will remain on file for one year and then will be removed from the file if there is no further trouble.

Perchard asked the board if the year could begin back in December, 2003 to end in Dec. 2004.

However, Fire Chief Paul O'Connell made a motion that the year begin with June 1, 2004 to June 1, 2004. It was then seconded by Police Chief William Falco and voted unanimously by the board.

QTA Requests Public Hearing On City Budget

The Quincy Taxpayers' Association (QTA) wants the city council to hold a public hearing that addresses the proposed fiscal 2005 budget.

QTA President Alan Cousin said he filed a petition by certified mail to Council President Frank McCauley bearing 29 signatures.

Under Massachusetts law, if ten registered voters file a written request for a public hearing on the city budget then the city council must grant the request, according to Cousin.

"To our knowledge, this has never happened in Quincy before now," said Cousin. "We want the people who must pay the bills to have their first direct input in the history of this city into how the money is to be spent."

Cousin also said the group will sponsor a third public demonstration against higher taxes this Saturday at 1 p.m. in front of City Hall.

"June is budget time so we have to act now," said Cousin. "Next year's property taxes will really be determined now, even though the actual rate won't be set until December."

Cousin described the finance committee's efforts thus far as "half-decent," but said city councillors "need to be encouraged and reminded to stay the course" on spending cuts.

Coughlin Seeks More Federal School Funds

A resolution introduced by Ward 3 Councillor and Education Committee Chairman Kevin Coughlin unanimously adopted by the council last week calls upon Congress to fully fund special education legislation originally passed in 1975.

In that year, less than half of disabled children received a formal education. The Individuals With Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) that was passed in 1975 provides that disabled students receive a public education in the least restrictive environment. More than six million children benefit from the law.

IDEA authorized the federal government to pay 40 percent of a school district's spending to educate a disabled student, but Congress has never appropriated the full 40 percent, according to Coughlin. He said the federal government currently funds only 17 percent.

"This is and always has been a civil rights issue from an educational perspective," said Coughlin. "All students are entitled to equal services and facilities. From a financial perspective, the ongoing failure to full fund the IDEA has resulted in an unfunded mandate with significant ramifications upon our school and municipal budget."

Coughlin indicated the need for grass roots advocacy to push pending legislation that would bring the IDEA to full funding. He said passage of the legislation would increase the Commonwealth's share from $250 million to $555 million.

Quincy would stand to gain more than $1 million if the legislation, called the "Mandatory IDEA Full Funding Compromise Act," is approved, said Coughlin.

"Those increased funds, each year, will ultimately benefit all students, as it will free up funds for other education line items, and it will benefit the taxpayers of Quincy," he said.

Sleepovers Resume Aboard USS Salem

tion officials.

According to Condon and Sheets, the Salem complied with the appeals board recommendations, which included:

• Reducing the number of bunks in each berthing area by one-half.

• Removing bunks protruding into exit ways and bunks that may cause bottle necks.

• Protecting head obstructions in exit ways through the use of padded fireproof protectives.

• Installing code conforming automatic and manual fire alarm system in all public areas, transmitting a signal to the Quincy Fire Department.

• Creating and executing a plan to lock down all areas adjacent to berths except berth exit ways when overnight visitors are aboard.

Salem officials will begin marketing the program again to groups who have utilized the sleepovers in the past, as well as any new interested parties.

Since the scout season has officially ended for the summer, Condon said he doesn't expect another sleepover until July. But Salem officials will begin marketing the program again in time for the fall, he said.

Boy scouts, cub scouts, students and other educational groups will be targeted for the upcoming season, he said. During their stay on the Salem, students and guests are taught various maritime skills, such as the proper way to fold a flag, how to tie knots, Morse Code, first aid, interpreting weather alerts and various aspects of the ship.

In the past, the Salem has educated groups from many states and other countries, such as England.

Sheets said Salem officials will continue to work with the fire chief and building inspector to ensure the ship meets all proper safety requirements.

said it is his hope that a formal agreement can be reached sometime this year.

The city is undertaking a major sewer replacement project along Quincy Shore Drive with the hopes of improving water quality at Wollaston Beach. The city maintains a sewer easement along DCR property on the landside of Wollaston Beach. Many residents have mowed, planted and maintained this property for years.

Phelan thanked Commissioner Abbott for addressing the city's concerns.

"After a series of letters and conversations with Commissioner Abbott, Senator Morrissey and Councillor Doug Gutro, we were able to resolve this matter to the benefit of our residents."

Board Approves Outdoor Patio For Restaurant

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

As a result of last week's License Board meeting for a request by the Half Door Restaurant, 1514-1516 Hancock St. to construct an outdoor garden seasonal patio, the board voted in favor at Tuesday's meeting.

Atty. Caroline Conway presented a revised and more detailed seating plan in which about 60 patrons will seat at tables of two and four.

The patio will be decorated with a trellis, tables with umbrellas, and with barrels of flowers along the perimeter of the area.

Chairman Joseph Shea explained that the site is on private property and not the city's responsibility.

Shea said he and other members of the board took a personal tour of the area last week.

Shea read a letter of conditional support from Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro who said the restaurant should be given a probationary period because of any noise disturbing those who reside in the area.

He recommended the owners have control over the volume of music.

However, Conway assured the board that only background music will be played.

The restaurant plans to open weather permitting from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. with everyone inside by 11 p.m.

WAVING FLAGS AND singing patriotic songs, 40 fifth grade students at the Lincoln Hancock School show their patriotism to passing motorists along the wall of Mount Wollaston Cemetery on Sea St. The students placed similar flags at the graves of veterans buried at the cemetery.

Almquist Flowerland Not For Sale

Almquist Flowerland at 326 Franklin St., South Quincy, has not been sold and the Almquist family that has owned the shop for three generations has no intention of selling.

Take that from Rhea Lynne Almquist, who, with her husband, Bob, owns the retail shop and greenhouse.

The rumor that they are selling out apparently got started late in March when they sold half of their land to a young couple who planned to build a house on it.

The Almquists were using the 11,000 square foot plot of land across Viden Road from the Abigail Adams Cairn to store extra stock and loam.

"We rarely used it," said Mrs. Almquist, "and we were paying taxes on it so we sold it. They've already dug a hole in it for a foundation.

"We're still in business."

Will The Quincy Real Estate Boom Go 'Bust?'

By ART FOLEY

Quincy has become a popular destination for individuals seeking to purchase real estate.

One of the reasons for this surge is the fact that the city has a healthy inventory of housing available in all property categories. Whether you're looking for a condominium, single-family or two family home, you'll find one available in Quincy.

Another reason for Quincy's popularity is its convenient location. A region known as the crossroads between downtown Boston and the rest of the South Shore, Quincy is located at the crux of several major highways and provides easy access to

ART FOLEY

Boston, Cape Cod and the rest of New England.

However, its position outside Boston provides all the benefits of the suburbs, including ample parking. Additionally, Quincy is home to several distinct neighborhoods, each with their own demographic and vibrant cultural flavor. This means that individuals with varied income levels, interests and backgrounds can (and do) call Quincy "home."

The average selling prices for single-family homes, condominiums and two-family properties in Quincy from 1992 through 2003 increased more than 150% throughout this 11 year span with dramatic annual increases averaging 70% and higher, when considering the return on investment (down payment and closing costs).

Will the past predict the future?

Demand has historically exceeded supply in most areas, and continues to do so. Quincy has a limited amount of good land to meet consumer demand. Our office recently sold a buildable lot (less than .5 acre), in a good neighborhood, for $420,000.

Property values should decline only in the face of a severe economic decline. With limited amounts of good land available as average income levels increase, real estate values will also increase. One area of concern is apartment rentals, which have softened in large part because many credit-worthy tenants have discovered that it makes economic "cents" to buy, instead of rent. This tempering of demand, combined with a prediction of more than 2,000 new rental units coming on line in Quincy within the next year, translates into a continuing softening of rents, followed by a leveling-off or decline in two-family values.

The overall prognosis for the Quincy real estate market is very healthy. Where else can you get an investment offering a 20%-50% return, with no taxes owed up to $500,000 profit on a single-family, jointly owned property (owner-occupied for two years)? The real estate industry is poised to live up to its past success and should continue to do well in the years to come.

Can You 'Beat The Market' Investing In Real Estate

(NAPS) In the last five years, real estate has outperformed the stock market, inflation, money market funds and bonds. With home sales reaching record levels due to lower interest rates, everyone wants a piece of the real estate pie.

If you are interested in learning more, there are many resources that can help you get started. The tips below are just a few options to help you being your journey on the road to financial success in real estate.

Scout for Foreclosure properties. A foreclosure occurs when the property owner fails to make payments on a loan that is secured by a mortgage. If the loan amount is less than the property's market value, as is often the case, the home will be sold below market. This presents a unique opportunity for investors to buy properties at a lower cost. For information on the foreclosure process and property searches, visit: http://www.info.nodownpayment.com.

Call on Uncle Sam. The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) administers housing and community development programs. HUD promotes home ownership by insuring loans that meets its underwriting criteria, making it easier for everyone to invest in real estate. Lenders are more likely to provide home loans knowing that they are protected against loan defaults. Visit: http://www.hud.gov for more information.

Consider Condos. Recently, condos began appreciating in value at more than double the rate of detached single-family resale homes. National survey data show that the median price of a resale condo was up 15.1 percent from a year earlier, while single-family homes were up 7.4 percent. Remember, before investing in a condo, check the home owners association's reserve fund, since a healthy fund promises that you won't be slapped with any special assessments. For more information on the American Homeowner's Association, visit http://www.ahahome.com.

Incentives for "Reconversions." Investors who rehab should be aware of reconversion grants, sometimes called deconversion grants, which are offered by city governments as an inventive to convert multi-unit rental properties back into single-family homes. Some cities provide incentives and assistance to structures that are restored to their original use. Priority is given to applications that show a significant impact on the neighborhood.

Get a coach. In baseball, you need guidance and knowledge to swing at the right pitch and hit a "home run." Likewise in real estate, coaching can help you identify the right opportunities and make smart decisions. For more information on Real Estate coaches, visit: http://www.info.nodownpayment.com.

THIS IS A HAMMER

By Samantha Mazzotta

Summer Safety

With Memorial Day just around the corner, you're probably already putting together that annual start-of-summer cookout and planning activities for the warm days ahead. Well, don't forget to put safety on your to-do list, as summertime presents a whole new range of dangers for you and your family.

This weekend's cookout will be fun, but keep an eye out for potential dangers. Put charcoal, lighter fluid and matches out of the reach of curious children. Pick up small items like toys and food scraps during the party, before toddlers or pets find them. To discourage unwanted guests like ants or wasps, cover food and drink containers until it's time to serve. And if you have a pool, assign a responsible adult to watch it at all times while the party is going on. Latching the pool gate isn't enough — a curious child can fall in and be in serious trouble before anyone notices, even with a crowd of adults nearby.

Once the kids are home from school and summer is in full swing, there are other dangers to look out for. Hours spent outside can result in a nasty sunburn, so make sure everyone wears sunscreen and, if possible, a hat. To avoid dehydration from working or playing in the heat, keep a bottle of cold water nearby during outdoor activities, and avoid drinking alcohol, particularly during the hottest part of the day, between noon and 3 p.m.

Hot weather also means more outdoor do-it-yourself activities, like house painting, roof repair, lawn care and assorted maintenance. Always take safety precautions before starting any outdoor jobs. When painting, make sure you have a sturdy ladder and a helper to prevent falls. If you're on the roof, secure yourself with a strong rope and take your time moving from place to place.

Lawn care in the heat puts you at increased risk for dehydration, so again, keep water nearby and let the beer cool in the fridge until you're done for the day. Try to do most of the work in the morning, when temperatures are lower. And put away all gardening tools at the end of the job; letting them sit in the grass will encourage rust, and small tools lying on the lawn could present an injury risk to anyone strolling by.

Finally, keep a well-stocked first-aid kit in your garage, one that includes an assortment of bandages, disinfectant, bee-sting treatment and after-sun cream. You'll be ready for summer's little emergencies, and with proper care and attention, you'll avoid the biggest dangers.

Presidents Home For First Round

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Since clinching a state tournament berth with a win May 19, the Quincy High School baseball team set its sights on securing home field for the first round.

The Presidents did their part, winning their next four games to conclude the regular season with a 14-6 record (6-6 Atlantic Coast League). They've won five straight and 11 of their last 13 games.

Head coach Mike Draicchio said his team will earn the fifth seed in the South Sectionals and open Saturday at 3 p.m. at Adams Field.

It will be the Presidents first home tournament game in 10 years.

On Memorial Day, the Presidents crushed Holbrook on the road, 23-0. Junior John Santon tossed a no-hitter and struck out 16 and walked none.

Senior Ian Jorgensen had a three-run triple and seniors Joe Priscella and Dan Cosgrove, both tri-captains, and junior Steve Sullivan each had multiple-hit games.

The starters only played the first three innings. Sophomore JV players Mike MacPherson, John Orlando and Joe Griffin each collected their first hit at the varsity level.

Last Thursday night, Quincy pulled out a thrilling 1-0 victory over Archbishop Williams in extra innings at Adams Field.

Offense was hard to come by for both teams before the Presidents pushed across the winning run in the bottom of the 10th.

Sullivan led off with a single, which bounced off the first base bag and caromed to the second baseman, who couldn't throw to the pitcher in time to get the hustling Sullivan.

Jorgensen reached on an error. Junior Ray Marchand was going to sacrifice bunt but AW pitched out. Sullivan, who was trying to get a jump to third, slipped as he hurried back to second base. The throw, however, sailed into center field and both runners advanced.

With the infield drawn in, Marchand slapped a single between the third baseman and shortstop to plate Sullivan with the winning run.

"That was a huge hit," Draicchio said. "All you have to do is make contact in that situation and he did. He hit it so hard they weren't going to stop it."

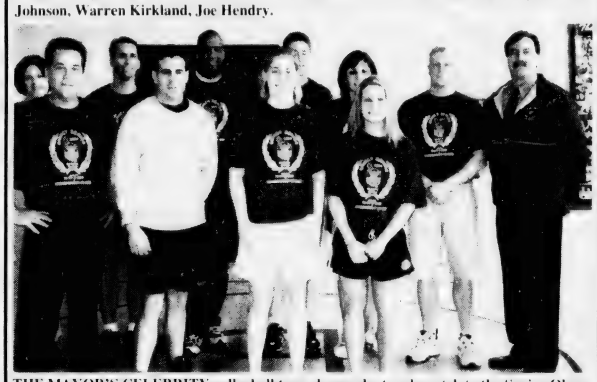
The game featured a sensational pitcher's duel between Quincy junior John Folino and AW's John White. White went nine innings, allowing only two singles while striking out nine with his blistering fastball and walking none.

"That's the least production we've had at the plate," Draicchio said. "He threw gas. He didn't have the greatest curveball in the world. He just held us off guard."

Folino, meanwhile, had a perfect game threw four innings before giving up a two-out double in the fifth. He tossed eight innings, giving up just four hits and punching out 12 with no walks. He struck out the side in the second and seventh innings.

"All around, what a pitcher's duel for both teams," Draicchio said. "Folino pitched a great game, eight innings no runs. He just keeps us in the game all the time."

In the ninth, Sullivan relieved Folino and quickly got two outs before Quincy ran into some trouble. The next three hitters reached base — two errors sandwiching a walk — to load the bases. Sullivan escaped the jam by getting a hitter to chase a high fastball on a 3-2 pitch.



In the 10th, Sullivan gave up a two-out walk. The next hitter blasted a drive deep down the left field line, but

GLASS ACTION

According to experts, drivers make 90% of their decisions behind the wheel on the basis of vision. Thus, anything that obscures your vision on the road compromises safety. For instance, if your vehicle experiences windshield damage in the acute area of your line of vision, the entire windshield should be replaced. Because even small cracks anywhere on the windshield are likely to spread if left untreated, they must be brought to the attention of a windshield pro. Some cases, [illegible] caused by rocks can be repaired if they are smaller than the size of a quarter. You should also consider replacing your windshield if road-salt accumulated sand blasting of your windshield from highway driving has impaired your night vision.

Quincy Downs Randolph To Finish Season 12-7

SOFTBALL

The Quincy High School softball team wrapped up its regular season Sunday with a 6-2 victory over Randolph.

The Presidents finished with a 12-7 overall record and a 10-2 mark in the Atlantic Coast League, a game behind league champion Whitman-Hanson.

Tournament pairings were not available as of deadline, but head coach Mike Sedar speculates his team will open the South Sectionals today (Thursday) at home against Marshfield.

Quincy's strong season produced five ACL All-stars: Junior quad-captains Alysia DiMuzio, Rebi Sorensen and Katie Walsh (unanimous choices), and sophomores Courtney Hall and Kim Lebel.

DiMuzio led the league in hitting with a .571 average; Sorensen posted a 1.44 ERA with 122 strikeouts and only nine walks; Walsh batted .362 with no errors in center field; Hall had a .478 average; and Lebel batted .373 and played strong defense in left field.

Under 13 Girls Blank Southie

Youth Lacrosse

The Quincy Youth Lacrosse Under 13 girls team blanked South Boston, 11-0, Sunday at Varsity Field.

Quincy's attack was well-balanced with nine different scorers. Cassandra Briffett opened the scoring on a direct shot after a South Boston foul inside the 8-meter arc.

A series of rapid passes from Mary Kate Nelson to Maria DiPietro to Leslie Campbell to Kerry Turok resulted in the second goal.

Campbell also made an assist to Patty Shea for the third goal. Katiann Ruck increased the lead to 4-0 with an assist from Nicole Forbes to end the half.

Quincy's defense never let Southie maintain an attack. Tori Smeglin, playing point, intercepted many passes and used speed and strong passing to clear the ball from Quincy's side of the field.

The goalkeepers, Nikki Haskins in the first half and Shea in the second, were outstanding in the first shutout of the season.

Haskins quickly made the transition to attack and scored the first goal of the second half. Victoria Barney scored the sixth goal. Haskins tallied the next two with assist from DiPietro and Forbes. Tara Sullivan, Nelson and Campbell scored Quincy's final three goals.

Presidents Home In First Round

senior Chris Kirschner got a quick jump and tracked it down with a great catch to keep AW off the board.

Despite the ninth-inning errors, the Presidents played a strong defensive game. In the eighth, catcher Joe Priscella (single) picked off a runner at first base.

In the sixth, with a runner on second, an AW batter beat out an infield hit, but Sullivan made a heads-up play at first base. He quickly threw across the diamond to senior tri-captain Paul Copson (single) to nail the runner trying to move to third.

Jorgensen made two tough plays at shortstop look routine. In the first inning, he charged a slow roller over the mound and threw on the run for the out. The next inning, he backhanded a ball deep in the hole and fired a bullet to first in time.

"Ian made some great plays at short," Draicchio said. "He's done a tremendous job since he said he could step in and do the job. It has made a huge difference. For him coming out to play baseball last minute, he's like the unsung hero for this team. He's done everything."

Fitness Q & A:

An Expert Answers Some Intriguing Questions

(NAPS) When should I exercise? Is skipping breakfast a good way to help me lose weight? How long should I wait after eating before exercising? Should I drink water or a sports drink when exercising? Christine "CC" Cunningham, MS, ATC/L, CSCS and fitness education manager at Life Fitness, a leading exercise equipment manufacturer, helps answer these intriguing questions.

Q: When is the best time of day to exercise?

A: In terms of fitness benefits, there's no best time of day to exercise. The best time of day to exercise is whenever it's easiest and most convenient for you.

"An afternoon workout may help you avoid the natural energy lull caused by body's rhythm slowing down in the afternoon," said Cunningham. "Exercising in the evening is more desirable because the lungs are more open, body and muscle temperatures are at their highest, and joints and muscles are more flexible. The downside is that some people may feel too tired to work out after a long day. In addition, exercising too close to bedtime can make it harder to fall asleep."

That said, exercising first thing in the morning might give you an extra boost of energy for the day. Starting the day with a workout also might help you stick to your routine because you won't be sidetracked with unexpected distractions or interruptions later in the day.

Q: I've been skipping breakfast because I'm trying to shed a few pounds. Is that a good idea?

A: Although skipping breakfast might seem like an easy way to cut calories and lost weight, research shows most people who lose weight and keep it off do eat breakfast every day.

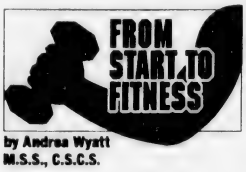
"Eating breakfast can help you lose weight by jump-starting your metabolism and getting the body to start burning calories earlier in the day," Cunningham says. "In addition, eating breakfast can help eliminate the urge to overeat later in the day."

Good breakfast choices include carbohydrates for quick energy and protein for staying power. Examples include toast with peanut butter, cereal with milk, and yogurt with a banana.

Q: How long should I wait after eating to work out?

A: You know those moms and dads who tell their kids not to jump in the swimming pool until at least half an hour after they've eaten? They're on to something. It is a good idea – especially for adults – to give the body time to digest before starting a workout.

Being properly nourished before exercise helps prevent low blood sugar and provides fuel for the workout, but working out on a full stomach can cause gastrointestinal problems.



"Generally, you should allow adequate time to digest before working out – three to four hours for a large meal and two to three hours for a smaller meal," said Cunningham. You should, however, eat a high-carb snack of 100 to 200 calories approximately 45 minutes to an hour before working out to be sure you have enough energy to complete the workout.

Some good pre-workout snack foods are fruit, whole-wheat crackers or bread, yogurt, peanut butter, granola bars and graham crackers.

Q: Should I drink water or a sports drink while working out?

A: Fluids are important before, during and after exercise to prevent dehydration when working out. For most exercisers, water is the best beverage to choose. "Sports drinks are appropriate for higher-intensity workouts that exceed one hour to help replace the salt and potassium that is lost through strenuous exercise," said Cunningham.

Designing a Lifestyle Plan

Q. After many attempts to lose weight through dieting, I have finally decided to try to reach my goals by combining an exercise routine with a balanced nutritional program. How should I begin to safely and successfully implement my new wellness regime into my lifestyle?

A. Congratulations! A routine of smart exercise and proper nutrition is the best formula for reaching your fitness and weight goals. Developing a realistic plan that will lead you toward your goals is imperative. Here are some suggestions.

• Set realistic and specific goals. Phrases such as "to lose weight" and/or "to eat right" are too broad. Develop phrases that are more detailed, such as, "to exercise three days a week for one hour." This type of goal can be measured and will allow you to see success just by completing the task. Remember, goals should be: realistic, specific, measurable and attainable.

• Develop an exercise and nutrition plan that is made just for you. Find what form of exercise and nutritional plan will allow you to have success and enhance your life, not hinder it. There are many forms of exercise — find the types that are right for you.

• Avoid frustration by dealing now with obstacles that may keep you from completing your plan. For example, if your career requires you to travel often, plan routines that can be done anywhere.

• Position yourself to succeed. Be patient and remember that it will take time for your body to adjust and for you to develop new habits. Make just a few changes at a time so you don't get overwhelmed. For instance, set a goal to walk for 30 minutes for the first few weeks of your exercise program. Once this becomes easier, then add another goal from your list. Pacing yourself will change initial goals into lifestyle changes.

As your body begins to adapt to your new lifestyle, you will need to continue to set new and more challenging goals to achieve.

Proper Cleaning May Reduce Mold Allergies

(NAPS) — For the more than 40 to 50 million Americans who suffer from the misery of allergies, protecting themselves and their families from exposure to the usual suspects — ragweed and pollen — can mean hiding indoors.

Staying inside, however, could be causing more harm than good. Most people are unaware that common household mold may be triggering their allergy symptoms.

Dr. Jay Portnoy, "The Mold Doctor," and chief of allergy, asthma and immunology of Children's Mercy Hospital, Kansas City, Mo., says exposure to allergents from molds and airborne mold spores may trigger common symptoms of a mold allergy. These symptoms include nasal congestion, coughing, upper respiratory distress, chronic headaches and flu-like symptoms.

Molds are ever-present in the environment, and the home environment is no exception. While most household molds have an outdoor source, they easily gain access to the home through open windows and doors, and be brought inside on pets and clothing. Once inside, mold spores can colonize on exposed surfaces such as windowsills, refrigerator seals and shower grout, thriving with only a source of food and moisture.

"Indoor mold management is a case where an ounce of prevention truly is better than a pound of cure," Portnoy says. "Regular inspection and proper cleaning can prevent many fungus-related problems."

Common household mold, visibly growing in the shower or invisible on the windowsill can be found in virtually all homes. According to Portnoy, there are simple things people can do to curb mold growth and clean the mold that does get through, limiting their exposure.

• Disinfect mold-prone hard surfaces regularly with a bleach-based product that has been proven to kill 99.9 percent of common household mold, like Tilex Mold and Mildew Remover."

Because of the potential sensitivities of allergy and asthma sufferers to cleaning products, cleaning should be done by non-sensitive individuals and the area should be allowed to ventilate before re-entry. Always read and follow all precautions and usage directions before using cleaning products.

• Reduce moisture in the home by: Maintaining indoor relative humidity between 35-50 percent; fixing leaking pipes immediately and preventing water from intruding into the house; using exhaust fans to increase bathroom and kitchen ventilation; and using air conditioning during the summer months at times of high humidity.

Supplemental efforts to remove airborne spores may include using high efficiency air filters, though it is better to eliminate their sources. Those seeking more information about allergies and asthma can visit the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America's (AAFA) Web site (www.AAFA.org).

GETTING YOUR FLUORIDE

Research shows that adding fluoride to drinking water, in the range of 0.7 to 1.2 million parts per million, can reduce the number of cavities children get in their baby teeth by as much as 60%. Moreover, these levels of fluoride in the drinking water can reduce tooth decay in permanent adult teeth by almost 35%. Yet, at least 100 million Americans still do not have fluoride added to their water, according to a new government report. Fluoride bonds to the surface of teeth, making them resist decay. Naturally formed in the environment, the mineral hinders the ability of organisms on tooth surfaces to produce acid, makes tooth enamel less soluble in acid, and encourages the remineralization of tooth enamel.

You need your fluoride, and we want to help! Call us at 617-479-6220 today and discover how a few simple measures can bring quick relief as well as enhance your dental health! ## A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SCOTT DEWARE

It has been said that successful people rarely consider work as just so much labor; they regard it in the nature of an opportunity for service and feel enjoyment in and derive pleasure from it.

Success is not a thing to be acquired; rather it is a spirit. It is not a matter of position or possessions. Success is the satisfying feeling of a life spent in a worthwhile way and a feeling of service rendered. Yes, success is a frame of mind...

"Success is in the way you walk the paths of life each day;
It's in the little things you do, and in the things you say.
Success is not in getting rich, or rising high to fame.
It's not alone in winning goals, which all men hope to claim.
Success is being big of heart, and clean and broad in mind;
It's being faithful to your friends, and to the stranger, kind.
It's in the children whom you love, and all they learn from you;
Success depends on character, and every thing you do..."

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) There's nothing an Aries Lamb likes less than having to tackle a humdrum task. But finding a creative way to do it can make all the difference. A more exciting time awaits you this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Finishing up a job on time leaves you free to enjoy your weekend without any Taurean guilt pangs. A romantic attitude from an unlikely source could take you by surprise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Moving in a new career direction might be seen by some as risky. But if you have both the confidence to see it through and the facts to back you up, it could prove rewarding.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Holding back on a decision might be difficult, considering how long you've waited for this opportunity. But until you're able to resolve all doubts, it could be the wiser course to take.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You still need to move carefully where financial matters are concerned. Better for the Lion to move slowly than pounce on a "promising" prospect that doesn't keep its promises.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A rejection of an idea you believe in can be upsetting. But don't let it discourage you. Get yourself back on track and use what you've learned from the experience to try again.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) The early part of the week could find you looking to balance your priorities between your family obligations and your career responsibilities. Pressures begin to ease by week's end.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An associate's problem could cause unavoidable delays in moving ahead with your joint venture. If so, use the time to look into another project you had previously set aside.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Although a financial problem could be very close to being resolved in your favor, it's still a good idea to avoid unnecessary spending for at least a little while longer.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Support for some unwelcome workplace decisions begins to show up, and continues to build, so that by week's end, the gregarious Goat is as popular as ever.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Congratulations. Deciding to attend a social function you might have earlier tried to avoid could turn out to be one of the best decisions you've made in a long time.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Getting into a new situation could prove to be a more difficult experience than you expected. Don't hesitate to ask for advice in coping with some of the more irksome challenges.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your strong sense of duty makes you a valued and trusted member of your community. Have you considered a career in law enforcement?

'Cultural Coast' To Draw DNC Visitors

When delegates to the Democrats National Convention are not caught in traffic or dodging pickets or nominating John Kerry for president, Congressman Bill Delahunt and his friends would like them to explore the treasures of "the Cultural Coast."

That's the new name that has been given to the area from Quincy through Plymouth to the Cape and the Islands in a cooperative effort to draw tourists to the historical sites of Quincy and Plymouth and the beaches farther south.

Already, the coalition behind the Cultural Coast has set up a collaborative website (www.TheCulturalCoast.com) and mailed out more then 4,000 post cards, signed by Sen. Edward Kennedy, to DNC delegates inviting them down for a visit.

"This is a golden opportunity to market the rich historical and cultural heritage that resides, quite literally, in our own backyard," said Delahunt, whose Congressional district, not coincidentally, mirrors the Cultural Coast.

Faces Up To 20 Years In Prison But May Appeal Conviction

D'Amico Found Guilty Of Extortion

Former Quincy City Councillor Michael D'Amico faces up to 20 years in prison after being convicted Tuesday in U.S. District Court of extortion and making a false statement to the FBI.

D'Amico, the youngest person ever elected to the Quincy City Council, was found guilty of extorting $2,500 from Paul Gavoster, a former Centre St. Dunkin' Donuts owner who became a government informant. D'Amico becomes the first councillor in city history to be convicted of corruption.

He faces up to 20 years in prison, three years of supervised release and a $250,000 fine, according to the U.S. Attorney's office.

D'Amico's lawyer, Robert Goldstein, indicated he would seek an appeal. At the

MICHAEL D'AMICO

Sun's press time, Goldstein was not available for comment.

The jury spent approximately four hours deliberating before reaching its verdict. No sentencing date has been established at press time.

Jurors found that the former Ward 4 councillor took the $2,500 from Gavoster in exchange for lobbying for construction of a multimillion dollar off ramp from the Southeast Expressway to the Crown Colony Office Park. The evidence at trial demonstrated that D'Amico deposited the money into his personal bank account, according to the U.S. Attorney's office.

"The public should be able to trust that appointed and elected officials are faithfully and honestly discharging their duties," said U.S. Attorney Michael J. Sullivan. "Michael D'Amico brought dishonor to his position as an elected city councillor by extorting a bribe from a constituent."

FBI agents questioned D'Amico about having taken the money, but he repeatedly denied ever having accepted it. Those denials formed the basis of D'Amico's conv[illegible]

'Allow Chief To Manage Fire Dept.'

Phelan Changes Course On E-911

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan has put off his plans to merge the city's 911 emergency system, saying he will defer to Fire Chief Paul O'Connell on the matter.

"Chief O'Connell said he can come in under budget with the cuts that are being made without a consolidation of the 911 system," said Phelan. "I am allowing him to manage his own department."

The move comes after O'Connell, the firefighters union and several city councillors voiced their opposition to the plan.

But Phelan said he is still not convinced that merging the 911 dispatch centers would jeopardize public safety.

"I'm still not convinced that a consolidation would jeopardize public safety, and the chief has not explained to me how it would affect public safety," he said. "We appointed the chief to run the fire department, and I am happy to allow him to exercise discretion.

[illegible] Bill he [illegible] going out of commission," said Phelan. "Since he said he could do that, I am allowing him to manage his budget the best way he can."

The fire department's proposed $14.7 million budget for the fiscal year beginning in July includes savings from four firefighter jobs that would be lost through attrition. Phelan said his decision to shelve the merger means the chief will have to manage the department with four less firefighters.

Phelan said he [illegible] agreement [illegible]

Taxpayers' Group Drops Support For CFO

The Quincy Taxpayers' Association (QTA) has dropped its support for the creation of a chief financial officer, calling it a move that will only increase spending in fiscal 2005.

Alan Cousin, QTA president, said the group could not support Mayor William Phelan's proposal in its current form, because it adds a new position to the city budget at a salary of $95,000.

Cousin said QTA originally supported the creation of the position because it was combined with the office of treasurer/collector.

"Since then, the mayor has introduced a wholly separate CFO position in his budget, keeping the treasurer-collector position and adding a CFO position, adding $95,000 to the budget," said Cousin. "We would like to see a separate position ideally, but for this year, we think the two positions should be combined."

Cousin, stressed, however, that whether it is a standalone position or combined with the office of treasurer/collector, the CFO position must be independent of political influence and fully qualified, in keeping with the amendments Cousin proposed to the original ordinance.

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

A divided finance committee last week approved spending an additional $150,000 in fiscal 2005 for pay raises for non-union employees, department heads, the mayor and his staff.

On a 5-4 vote, the committee approved pay hikes ranging from 2 to 6 percent for more than 50 department heads and appointed employees. The move also reverses the committee's vote two weeks ago, when Mayor William Phelan's 4 percent pay hike was shot down and City Clerk Joseph Shea's 5 percent raise was shaved in half.

For example, the mayor's salary is boosted from $95,000 to $98,770. Public Works Commissioner Jay Fink will receive a $5,400 pay increase to $89,000. Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca will see his pay rise $5,200 to $86,100.

The pay raises are contained in Phelan's proposed $213.1 million spending plan for fiscal 2005.

A group of four councillors – Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, Councillor Joseph Finn, Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner – led the charge against the pay hikes, but to no avail.

They framed the issue as one that will come back to haunt taxpayers next year as they grapple with huge property tax increases.

"We are not asking anyone to sacrifice here," said Raymondi. "We are benefitting people who are making $80,000 a year and not asking them to sacrifice. So how can we ask the average working taxpayer to sacrifice? This was a way to cut $150,000 from the budget and not affect city services.

"The taxpayers were not well served by this process – this was a missed opportunity," said Raymondi.

But those who voted in favor of the pay raises said most department heads and appointees had not received a pay hike in more than two years.

"We are taking care of the department heads and they are not receiving retroactive pay," said Council President Frank McCauley. "The unions have been taken care of, so I'm comfortable with my vote."

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly said the pay hikes will bring department heads up to par with union workers.

"Ninety-seven percent of municipal employees received a pay raise this year, and with retroactive pay," said Kelly. "The department heads constitute only 3 percent of municipal employees. So why shouldn't we give them a pay raise? Should they feel singled out because they are department heads?"

After voting against the mayor's pay raise two weeks ago, Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro reversed himself and approved the pay increase.

Gutro said the city's initial presentation lacked detailed information and his votes on the pay raises became inconsistent.

After further review - including how the pay raises would affect the overall budget - Gutro said he was able to make a more consistent stand.

"The consistency issue was important," said Gutro "It is important to consider how we treat all employees, not just those under collective bargaining."

Gutro said the pay raises for non-union employees entailed 1 percent of the entire budget.

Alan Cousin, president of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, blasted the finance committee for approving the pay raises.

"For the past two years and more, we've been trying to tell the council that these management pay raises were exorbitant," said Cousin. "I don't know any other taxpayers who are getting these kinds of pay raises. In most cases of financial difficulty, management is the first to take a pay freeze, or even a pay cut. It ought to be that way with the city as well."

Cousin said it appears the finance committee has separated into two factions: those who are interested in cutting spending and those who are not.

"Amazingly enough, those who are reputed to be the most conservative on the council are voting for the most in spending increases," said Cousin.

Emergency Leaders Taught Response To Terror Attack

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

Emergency responders and community leaders from Quincy and four neighboring towns met last week for a three-day course in preparing a response to a terrorist attack.

Officials from Braintree, Weymouth, Milton and Hingham as well as Quincy learned how to assess their towns for risks of weapons of mass destruction and other acts of terrorism and what they need to respond.

"Not everyone has a threat, but everyone has vulnerabilities," said one of the four instructors from the National Emergency Response and Rescue Training Center Domestic Preparedness Program at Texas A & M.

The instructors asked not to be named for reasons of security.

The federally funded course was developed by the Departments of Justice and Homeland Security and the Office for Domestic Preparedness and cost the cities and towns nothing.

Tom Gorman, director of emergency management in Quincy, brought the course to Quincy. He cited the importance of public and private agencies across the South Shore learning to work together to prevent and respond to an attack.

"If we did have an incident, we'd be able to draw these resources together," said Gorman. "Years ago you could stand alone. We're no longer on an island."

About 40 supervisors and management from law enforcement, fire services, emergency management, public works, health care, EMS, public health, public safety and administration attended.

Each day they took "field trips" to local sites to assess risk vulnerability. According to instructors, the sites were selected by the managers and planners taking part in the course and were not necessarily the most vulnerable sites.

The managers and planners assessed the sites on a scale of 0 to 5, the 0 being low and the 5 being high, in terms of such factors as level of visibility, significance, population capacity and collateral mass damage.

Instructors said the course takes an "all hazards approach," meaning that the same assessment could be used to deal with natural disasters, such as floods, hurricanes and blizzards.

The assessments are first examined on a jurisdictional level by the mayors or chief executives of each city or town. The assessments are then sent to the state level, where they are examined and sent on to the federal government.

The course has the same format in each jurisdiction where it is taught. The goal is a common profile for each state across the country, in order for all to be prepared for attack by weapons of mass destruction or some other terrorist incident.

Gorman said that, in planning the course, he experienced a great degree of cooperation between the public and private sectors. Agencies like the MWRA and the MBTA, he said, allowed site examinations that made the course possible.

The instructors said the course started in 1998, but the emphasis has grown since the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attack on New York City and Washington.

"We find that a lot of the communities haven't given a lot of thought to what they

"Is it too late for me to refinance?"

(The surprising answer? Probably not!)

If you just go by what you hear or read in the mainstream media, you might think that the refinancing "window" has slammed shut. But that's a simplification that's simply not true. Here are the facts: Mortgage rates are still bouncing around near 50-year lows. So if you want to refinance for whatever reason – to be mortgage-free before you retire, to pay for tuition, to consolidate other loans and debts or just to lock in a low rate before the window does close – you still have time. But possibly not much. So don't wait. Come see us or call 617-471-0750.

A 15-Year loan would be repaid with 180 equal monthly payments of $8.17 per $1000 borrowed. This rate is effective as of 06/02/04 and may vary by property type, loan amount, credit-worthiness and loan-to-value ratio. Other rates & terms are available, including 10-Year and 20-Year loans. # Remembering Ted

Ted DeCristofaro served Quincy Point residents as a city councillor 14 years and as their good neighbor all his life.

To him, Quincy Point was truly God's Country and the people there part of his family.

The only time he left Quincy Point for any real length of time was when he went off to World War II, serving in the Navy aboard the corvette USS Courage, escorting vital convoys through the German submarine infested North and South Atlantic.

"Compared to the size of other ships, it was like being on a canoe," he once mused.

After the war — which, unlike Iraq, we really knew for sure why we were in it — Ted came straight back to his Quincy Point roots.

Next to the war, his longest time away from Quincy Point was a month-long motor cross-country wedding trip with his bride and childhood sweetheart, Betty, 56 years ago.

Ted was always an easy guy to get along with. His mother-in-law made the trip with them.

Ted became active in the Quincy Point community and Quincy Point Congregational Church where his funeral service was held Monday.

He was a Cub Scout leader and involved in the basketball programs at the church. He co-founded the Ward 2 Civic Association.

He was always there to help someone in need. He was the definition of a good neighbor.

So, it seemed only natural in 1981 for him to run for the Ward 2 city council seat which Dan Raymondi was vacating in a bid for mayor.

Raymondi lost that one to Frank McCauley.

But Ted defeated Joseph Cortese for the Ward 2 seat and held it for 14 years, two (1990-91) as council president.

He ran, he said, "Because I want to help people." And he did.

He completed his seventh term in 1995 and retired from the council for health reasons after fighting back from a stroke and heart attack.

Raymondi regained the seat and holds it today.

Ted was a hands-on city councillor. You might find him perched on a snow-plow during a snowstorm checking on the streets in his ward. Or find him shoveling a constituent's walk or driveway.

People had no trouble reaching him with their problems. He faithfully returned their telephone calls or listened patiently to complaints when they stopped him at the store, on the street or after church.

And he followed up, doing something to solve them.

Not returning constituents' phone calls is a cardinal sin for a ward councillor. More than one has learned that too late and found themselves ex-councillors on election day.

But not Ted. He was always available.

He was honored by the city in 1994 when a mini-park at Southern Artery and Washington St. was dedicated in his name.

He was pretty proud of that. It was easy to tell. You could find him there on his knees weeding or planting flowers. Or cutting the grass or raking leaves.

Ted loved his Quincy Point.

And no doubt a very big reason was that is where he met pretty little Betty Petzoldt when they were just kids. They grew up together, attending Quincy Point Junior High School, dated, and were married.

And for 56 years, you could hear Ted say, "I got the best girl in the world."

It was a perfect match, made in Quincy Point — and heaven, too. They were inseparable. She was his partner, advisor and confidant while busy herself in charitable work.

TED AND BETTY DeCristofaro at 1994 dedication of the mini-park in his honor at Southern Artery and Washington St. Quincy Sun Photo/Tom Gorman

Betty, you might say, was to Ted what Nancy was to Ronald Reagan.

But politics was not the big thing in their lives.

It was family.

Their four children: Ruth, Donald, Ted, Jr. and Rick, who grew up to become superintendent of the Quincy public schools. And their 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Ted had another love: bow ties. He had them by the drawer full. And wore them just about everywhere he went.

But there was something he had no love for: profanity. He never used it and hated to hear it.

As a councillor he was one of the backers of a city ordinance passed in 1991 banning profanity in public places.

Ted said he didn't think the Founding Fathers had four-letter words in mind when they guaranteed the right to freedom of speech.

"A mother, a wife, a daughter have the right not to be offended (by obscene language)," he said at the time. "What about their rights and other people who don't want to be subjected to foul language in public places. Why is it that those who abuse the First Amendment get all the rights while the rest of us put up with it?"

Ted and Betty moved from Murdock Ave. to 1000 Southern Artery where they became an active and popular couple.

And there after he left the council he continued to have political influence in politics.

Candidates for mayor, city council, school committee, knowing senior citizens faithfully turn out on election day, consider 1000 Southern Artery a "must" campaign stop. They liked to have Ted introduce them around. It was like an endorsement.

On a personal note, Ted and I went back a long way, back to when I also was growing up in Quincy Point. We became good friends.

The only difference I can remember us having was in recent years over the granite ball.

I wanted it moved back to City Hall where it originally was. He was determined to keep it at the Fore River traffic rotary.

"No way it's going to City Hall," he said. "It's staying right where it is. You can have it on one condition: Roll it up Washington St. all by yourself."

I wish we could continue that little discussion.

Gonna miss you Ted.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN early 1900's postcard view of a West Quincy quarry showing part of the Quincy Quarries Railroad. The railroad served the quarry industry on top of the hills of West Quincy where the Granite Links golf course is being built today. It was started in 1890 and eventually had five miles of tracks and sidings into the various quarries there. It descended the hills via a long loop down a steep grade that ended near today's Biondi's gas station. That was the site of the old West Quincy depot where the granite was transferred to the Old Colony Railroad. The superintendent of the railroad delighted in taking his friends for a ride up the incline to the top of the hills where they could take in the panoramic view. All traces of this old railroad are long gone except that part of the incline can still be seen as a granite wall behind the Mr. Tux store on Ricciuti Drive.

Outraged Over New Union Contracts

I am outraged by the 15% raise over four years for the firefighters. This is an average annual increase of 3.5%. Inflation is running under 2%.

Furthermore, most firefighters receive annual step increases so the true increase in compensation is higher than 3.5%. This should also be coupled with the added value of the City employee benefits package (i.e., health care premium increases paid by the City). The public deserves to know the true percentage increase for the average firefighter. I'm sure the Union has calculated this.

Last week at his budget presentation, the Mayor said that the Fire Department's budget would not increase this year. I believe the plan was to reduce overtime. I doubt the City can implement the new contract with no budget increase and no layoffs. I suspect the Fire Department will have to reduce coverage. Again, the public deserves to know.

It is not fair to single out the Fire Department. The Mayor negotiated similar raises for the Police and School Departments. He is supposed to represent the taxpayers in contract negotiations, but he failed to take a firm stand. He should have emphasized what the City actually spends on each employee, including the "untouchable" fixed costs. "Fixed" is supposed to mean constant, but there is nothing fixed about theses costs. From fiscal year 2002 to the proposed 2005 budget, City spending on employee benefits ballooned more than 80% ($18.0 to $32.5 Million) as the number of employees went down. Most of this amount is health insurance ($29.2 Million for F.Y. 2005).

The City pays 90% of an employee's premium. The Mayor stated that it's nearly impossible to change this percentage. What he didn't explain was why the unions should get a large raise on top of their tremendous increase in employee benefits. Both are compensation.

All taxpayers should keep an eye on the City's budget. The annual increase in property taxes won't be set until later, but it is driven by the increase in the budget.

I am a member of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association and I support their call for the City to limit residential tax increases to 5% or less per year. To do this, the City would have to make projections on Residential and Commercial Property values before setting the budget. The Mayor said that any estimates would be too speculative to release. However, I think it's reasonable for him to release his worst-case, best-case, and most-probable scenarios right now.

The Quincy Taxpayers' Association has stepped into the void left by the City government and has released some projections. Under QTA's most-probable scenario (the total value of residential property grows 14% and the total commercial property value drops 0.7%), the proposed budget would result in a 9.11% increase for the average homeowner. This tax increase is out of line with most people's income, especially after the large tax increases in two out of the last three years. A cut of $5.2 Million from the Mayor's $213.1 Million budget would accomplish the 5% goal and still allow City spending to increase roughly $4 Million over last year.

I understand the Mayor took office during unusual fiscal times. The new administration and City Council could not control the following: State aid was cut dramatically; the previous administration was rolling over bills into subsequent fiscal years; interest rates went to extremely low levels, which fueled an explosion in residential real estate values; and commercial property values were flat or declined.

This unique confluence of events caused a sharp spike in residential taxes. Those uncontrollable factors have now stabilized. The City government, and the taxpayers for whom they work, must be disciplined and must make difficult decisions to limit spending growth. Only then will our taxes stabilize too.

School Children Allowed To Help War Paper Drive

This Week
1944
60 Years Ago

Mayor Charles A. Ross issued an emergency order overriding the School Committee's refusal to permit school children to take a morning off to help in the city's waste-paper drive for the war effort.

The youngsters were needed to pick up bundles of paper in front of homes and deliver them to the Granite St. railroad siding where 15 freight cars were waiting to take them to Boston.

"The Mayor's order undoubtedly prevented the success of the residential drive from being imperilled," said Clarence L. Edwards, chairman of the salvage drive.

"As we see it a war emergency must take precedence over everything else and this is one of those situations."

Quincy Rotary Auction Raises Record $50,000

The Quincy Rotary Club raised more than $50,000 at its recent Kids' Classic Auction, a record-setting amount for the annual fundraiser.

Daniel J. Flynn III, CEO of Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc., served as charity auctioneer for the event which will benefit scholarships for Quincy High and North Quincy High School.

One hundred and eighty guests at the Neighborhood Club in Quincy led to lively competition among bidders for both the silent and live portions of the auction.

Among the top-selling items was a Red Sox ticket package that included four Sox-Yankees tickets, a Fenway Park tour, Red Sox Hall of Fame Club access and a parking pass. The package was donated by Granite City Electric, and sold for $3,400.

A vacation package to Marco Island, donated by Rick and Jane Smith, sold for $3,200.

Flynn, who regularly serves as charity auctioneer at a variety for events, has helped raise over $400,000 this year for non-profits and fund-raising organizations. Among the organizations he has served this year are the South Shore YMCA, Boston College Second Helping, the Clarke School for the Deaf in Springfield, the Boston Bruins Alumni Association, St. Joseph's Parish, and several others.

"The amount we were able to raise this year at the Rotary event was phenomenal," said Flynn, who is also a past president of the Quincy Rotary Club. "People bid at the auction very generously. It's always a pleasure to work such an enthusiastic group."

"Once Upon An Island" is a memoir originally begun by Matilda Silvia, whose family maintained a presence on Peddocks Island from 1904 to 2001. Leslie, her daughter, completed the memoir.

Peddocks Island, located north of Nut Island, is a 188-acre National Park with few private residences. It features military ruins, varied habitats, hiking trails and overnight camping.

Sponsored by the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, the event is free and open to the public.

To Limit Property Tax Hikes

QTA Calls For $5.2M Cut To Proposed 2005 Budget

The Quincy Taxpayers' Association thinks the city can carve out $5.2 million from the proposed fiscal 2005 budget to lessen the impact of property tax hikes on homeowners.

After conducting an initial analysis of Mayor William Phelan's spending plan for fiscal 2005, Alan Cousin, QTA president, said he based his conclusion on 10 different scenarios for commercial and residential property valuations.

Cousin said the most likely scenario called for the value of the average single-family home to climb 13 percent for fiscal 2005, while total commercial values would drop nearly 1 percent.

QTA called for the $5.2 million cut as a means of limiting the property tax increase on the single-family homeowner to five percent. The mayor's proposed budget contains spending that would increase property taxes by more than nine percent, said Cousin.

The $5.2 million cut would equal 2.4 percent of the entire budget and would still allow the budget to grow 1.5 percent over last year, he said.

The cuts should be applied to all city departments "for the sake of fairness," he said.

Phelan's proposed budget would hike property taxes anywhere from seven to 11 percent, said Cousin.

Will Give Annual Profile In Courage Award

Group Formed In Memory Of Late Paul Harold

Some of the late Paul D. Harold's closest friends have come together to ensure that his legacy will never be forgotten.

A new honor in his memory is planned by a group of his close friends: The Paul D. Harold Profile in Courage Award.

During a press conference Tuesday morning, members of the group announced the new award, which will be given on an annual basis in memory of one of Quincy's favorite sons.

"Recently, we honored Paul by dedicating a roadway in his name," said William Arienti, Quincy firefighter and committee chairman. "Like Paul, that structure is an immovable part of the City of Quincy bridging old and new, bringing people together. When we look at that bridge, we will think of Paul. But there is more, as we announce a living memorial to Paul," Arienti said Tuesday.

The group of friends has formed a non-profit corporation, Paul D. Harold Profile in Courage, Inc. to memorialize his life and service. They include:

PAUL HAROLD

William Arienti, Quincy firefighter and former union president (chairman); Atty. Christine Cedrone, former school committee vice chairwoman (secretary); City Council President Frank McCauley, Norfolk County Register of Probate Patrick McDermott, Ann Knafelz, administrative assistant to Harold during his 14 years as senator; Mike Linnane, Harold's longtime campaign coordinator; Joseph Harold, his nephew, and Henry Bosworth, Quincy Sun Publisher.

At the press conference, some committee members recalled Harold's life and the significance of dedicating such an award in his memory.

McDermott said Harold "exuded excellence when it came to public life."

"I will always remember his dedication to me personally," said McDermott.

McCauley said the annual award is a "fitting tribute to a courageous individual."

Cedrone called Harold a "true public servant."

Arienti said the committee will choose the first award recipient on September 9 at the Reception at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. In addition to the award, a donation of $500 will be given in Harold's name to the charity of the recipient's choice.

Subsequent awards will be nominated by the public, said Arienti.

"With the dedication of the bridge, Paul's name will live forever, and with this award, his memory and his courage will be immortal as well," he said.

Damages Approach $500,000 In Central Middle School Fire

Central Middle School students returned to class this week after a two-alarm blaze in the school's computer lab forced officials to close the school for three days last week.

Fire officials estimate the damage to the school could approach a half million dollars.

Investigators think the fire started in an electrical power strip. The state Fire Marshal is investigating the cause, according to fire officials.

Students will not be able to utilize the school's computer lab or media center for the remainder of the school year, according to Principal Frank Santoro. Both areas were severely damaged due to the fire, he said.

Students scheduled to use either area will be moved to vacant rooms for study, he said.

"Things are back online here with a few disruptions, but everything looks good," Santoro said Monday morning.

Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca said there didn't appear to be any structural damage to the school.

FRANK SANTORO

Firefighters responded to the blaze at approximately 5:30 a.m. last Wednesday morning and were confronted with flames shooting from a window on the school's north side. A second alarm was struck 10 minutes later.

The fire was contained to the first floor, but much of the building filled with smoke.

Classes were cancelled Wednesday through Friday.

Santoro said the school's media center sustained heavy smoke and soot damage. The media center is also site of the school's library. Many books in the library appear to be damaged by soot and smoke, he said.

"The library appears to be totally ruined," said Santoro.

The media center and computer lab have been sealed off by safety officials, he said.

Santoro said the city will spend the summer cleaning up and refurbishing the damaged areas in time for the fall.

He said the US Coast Guard has pledged to donate computers to the school to replace those that were ruined by the fire.

Santoro said teachers will survey rooms throughout the school and assess any possible damage.

Santoro said the school is accepting donations from private parties to help with the costs of the fire damage.

The city hired a cleaning company to prepare the school for the Monday morning opening. Hundreds of student lockers were emptied and cleaned of soot and smoke, he said.

A total of 650, sixth, seventh and eighth grade students attend the 110-year old school, located at 1012 Hancock St.

53rd Annual Flag Day Parade, Celebration Saturday

The 53rd annual Quincy Flag Day Parade and Celebration will be held Saturday evening.

The parade steps off at 7 p.m. from Coddington Street, proceeding to Hancock Street, Merrymount Parkway, to the entrance to Pageant Field.

Bands in the line of march will include the Boston Crusaders, East Coast Jazz, Boston City Band, Hills Mills Comedy Clown Band, Boston Fireman's Band, Boston Fire Gaelic Brigade and the Quincy Public Schools All-City Band.

In addition to the bands, the U.S. Navy Silver Dolphin Drill Team, two antique fire engines from the Bare Cove Fire Museum, the Weymouth Corvette Club, color guards from the Massachusetts State Police, Quincy Fire Department, Quincy Police Department and Naval Recruiters and the parade highlight — nearly two thousand flag-waving youngsters from various youth organizations citywide — will all participate in the 1.5-mile march.

"With all of the wonderful additions the parade has seen through the years the kids continue to be the main attraction," said Thomas P. Koch, Flag Day Parade chairman and son of the late Richard J. Koch who founded the event. "Mothers and fathers who once marched in the parade themselves now watch their own sons and daughters carry a flag and waive it proudly in the procession. It's become a tradition for generations to share."

Mayor William Phelan is the honorary chairman of the event and will lead the contingent of elected and public officials.

"Each year the Flag Day Parade draws an impressive crowd as we join together to honor our flag and our country," Phelan said. "Celebrating our freedom and paying homage to those who fought for it is an important practice to exercise and instill in our youth and the Flag Day Parade has accomplished that for over 50 years."

The parade will culminate into a celebration at Pageant Field with a flag-raising of a 30 foot by 60 foot version of Old Glory, presentation of the Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award to Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth, performance by the Quincy Symphony Orchestra and, if weather permits, a fly-over by the Massachusetts State Police Air Wing.

The evening will be capped off by a dazzling fireworks display over Black's Creek that will kick off roughly around 9:15 p.m. There is no rain date for the parade itself, but if conditions are unfavorable the fireworks display will be rescheduled for a date to be announced.

For more information, contact the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1251.

Sun Publisher To Receive Koch Youth Service Award

Henry Bosworth, founder and publisher of The Quincy Sun, will receive the Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award at Saturday's Flag Day ceremonies.

The award will be presented at 8 p.m. at Pageant Field following the 53rd annual Flag Day parade and prior to the fireworks display over Black's Creek.

Bosworth was selected to receive the honor based on his years of recognition and support of Quincy's various youth organizations through The Quincy Sun.

A World War II veteran, he served with the Navy on a destroyer in the Pacific.

The award is named for the late Richard J. Koch, founder of the Koch Club and originator of the Flag Day Parade and Celebration in Quincy when it was first held 52 years ago.

"Henry Bosworth has delivered a positive impact on generations of Quincy's youth through recognizing their accomplishments in his hometown publication," said Thomas P. Koch, director of the Koch Club and chairman of the Quincy Flag Day Parade Committee. "It's such a thrill for kids to read their name in the paper commending their efforts, and Henry has made it and continues to make it a priority in his mission to serve our community."

The Koch Club, Quincy Partnership and the Flag Day Committee continue to celebrate honoring our flag and instilling patriotism in Quincy's youngsters through the Flag Day Parade.

Collect Over 570 Pounds Of Personal Items

Lincoln Hancock Students Remember Marines In Iraq

By COURTNEY PAQUETTE

Every Monday, Donna and Robert Pettinelli send a package to their son, a lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps who has been stationed 10 miles outside of Baghdad for the past three months.

The package they'll send to Lt. John Pettinelli, 24, this week will weigh over 570 pounds.

Because of the work of students at Lincoln Hancock School, Lt. Pettinelli will have the supplies he asked his parents to send over for his men and for the children in Iraq. Under the direction of Ron Pettinelli, a fourth grade teacher at Lincoln Hancock and Lt. Pettinelli's cousin, the students collected one-fourth of a ton of nonperishable food, gum, Q-Tips, batteries, notebooks, pens and more.

"When the soldiers open these packages, they will know that someone thousands of miles away hasn't forgotten them and is thinking of them," Robert told about 350 students Thursday afternoon when the faculty and students presented the donations to him, Donna, their daughter Angela, 22, and their son Steve, 20.

Ron Pettinelli came up with the idea to start a drive for the soldiers about two months ago. He said he was talking with his family about what he could do for John, and they mentioned that John had asked for some supplies.

Ron said he was very impressed with the response.

"I was expecting five or six boxes. Not this," he said as he looked at the stage full of goods. "The kids were gung-ho. It was amazing."

The students were given a list of acceptable items. It encouraged them to bring in such goods as diaper wipes for the soldiers to wash their face and hands, batteries for tape recorders, fabric softener for the soldiers to use as insect repellent, and flea collars to keep fleas off exposed skin.

The parents of Patrick Sullivan, a third-grader at Lincoln Hancock, donated a book called "America the Beautiful." It illustrates the words of the song. Each third-grader signed the book with a short note to John. Patrick and Melissa Linskey, third-graders, presented the book to the Pettinellis.

The students have also been writing letters to the men in the 2nd Battalion, 2nd Regiment, 2nd Division, which John is a member of. On Thursday, some students handed the Pettinellis handmade paper American flags, with messages of good luck written on the back. One student wrote, "I Love Lt. Pettinelli." They also learned from Robert that John had been a kindergarten student at Lincoln Hancock when the family lived in Quincy before moving to Weymouth.

Ron Pettinelli said the school had held drives like this before, but this one had been so successful because he was able to personalize it by familiarizing his students with John's life.

"The kids had a face to attach to it," he said.

Pettinelli has also been teaching his class about the situation in Iraq, using it as a lesson in how to get along with different kinds of people. He has been telling them about the work the soldiers are doing, such as building hospitals and schools. On Thursday, he told the students to remember the sacrifices the soldiers have made. He also praised the students for the sacrifices they had made.

"Your 354 simple gestures grew into a mountain of supplies," he said. "That is true selflessness boys and girls. And that, too, is the work of heroes."

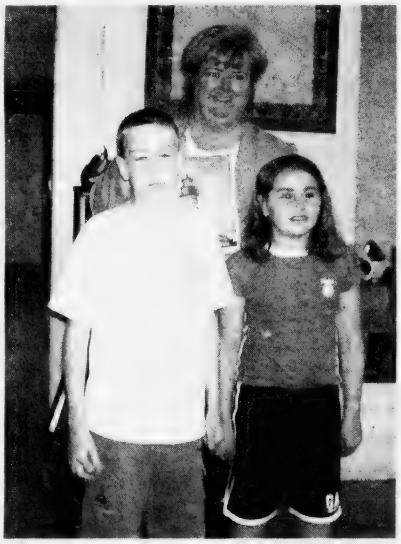
The students said they learned a few additional lessons from their work.

"I learned how grateful we should be that we have things (the Iraqis) don't," said Timothy McNally, a fourth-grader in Ron's class.

Mrs. Robin Moreira's second-grade class collected the most total weight of supplies and won a pizza party courtesy of Balducci's. Every student received a Popsicle courtesy of Roche Brothers.

The Pettinellis will take the goods to their Weymouth home. There, they will make care packages containing a few of each of the items and send them over to Iraq a few boxes at a time.

The Pettinelli family thanked the faculty and students repeatedly for their work.



"It's very moving for us," said Angela, John's sister. "And John's going to be psyched."

PROUD PARENTS Donna and Robert Pettinelli thank students at the Lincoln Hancock School for the more than 500 pounds of personal articles the youngsters collected for their son, Marine Lt. John Pettinelli, in Iraq.

WINNERS of a pizza party, courtesy of Balducci's, for collecting the heaviest amount of articles for the Marines in Iraq were members of Mrs. Robin Moreira's second grade class.

"AMERICA THE BEAUTIFUL," a book illustrating the patriotic song, is given by third graders Patrick Sullivan and Melissa Linsky to Donna Pettinelli for shipment to her Marine son in Iraq.

3-Mile Walk To Support Campaign Against Family Violence

The Quincy Campaign Against Family Violence - Quincy White Ribbon Campaign will hold a three-mile walk on Saturday, June 19, Father's Day weekend, at 11 a.m. on Wollaston Beach.

The walk is scheduled to begin and end at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 E. Squantum St. Residents are encouraged to attend.

The Quincy Campaign Against Family Violence strives to educate city residents and professionals about the prevalence of family violence in communities, homes, schools and the workplace, and give them the tools to stop violence when they see it, or offer support when they suspect it.

The Campaign also seeks to encourage residents and professionals to give family violence the highest priority, until it no longer exists in the community.

Honorary co-chairs of the Campaign are Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating, Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti and Mayor William Phelan.

A White Ribbon Campaign ceremony and pledge signing will be facilitated after the walk.

Entry is free. Donations are accepted. Refreshments will be provided.

For more information contact Cynthia Sierra, Manet Community Health Center at 617-471-4715 or Thomas Clasby, Jr., Quincy Council on Aging, at 617-376-1245.

Sheets: Ted DeCristofaro True Representative Of 'The Greatest Generation'

JIM SHEETS

There was no better representative of the "Greatest Generation" than Ted DeCristofaro.

The son of immigrant parents who loved America who taught their children to be Americans and to live by the values of loving God, family, country and community — in that order.

When President John Kennedy said, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country," Ted DeCristofaro had already been living his life by every aspect of that firm and deep rooted belief.

To Ted, the idea of political correctness was always second to: Is it right or wrong, good or bad, bring pain or healing, shed darkness or the beauty of sunlight, will it make the world better for Betty, my children and may grandchildren, or will it make it worse?

When we traveled together to conferences we always took long walks each day. Walk with a person and listen to what they talk about and you will soon know who they are, what they believe and how deep their love and dedicated to others.

For Ted, it was Betty, his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. He would always mention the last basketball game that he "pop" watched his grandchild play. He would always remember every point scored.

Once, while walking in Washington, D.C., we were looking for a good Italian restaurant and we walked by one location and Ted said that smells like great Italian food. The waitress brought us menus and I said to Ted, "Ted this is Cuban food." I then added that it smelled good and surely would taste good. I was hungry.

Ted said, "No," and out we went. Forty-five minutes later we found a wonderful Italian restaurant and Ted (as well as myself) had wonderful pasta. He was proud of his heritage, and often made me wish that some part of me was Italian.

Ted walked with dignity and honor. You could place Ted's picture on the front of Brokow's book "The Greatest Generation" and it would be a book about Ted.

Rest well my friend. You will be missed by Betty, your children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and all your many friends. We only hope that our footprints in life will be as big and well directed as yours.

Emergency Leaders Taught Response To Terror Attack

would do (in a terrorist attack)," said one instructor. "A lot of them are dealing in murky waters."

Gorman noted that the role of emergency management has become more prominent since 9/11.

"We have a key role," he said. "Before we kind of sat on the back burner. (After 9/11) we became an important part of the city government."

That key role means more responsibility.

"You just have to listen to the news," said Gorman. "The possible threat is out there. It would be bad if the cities and towns didn't do everything possible to be ready for it.

"Hopefully, we'll never have to use it."

D'Amico Found Guilty Of Extortion

tion for making a false statement.

Govostes is awaiting sentencing for his role in a federal tax evasion scheme, and is hoping his cooperation with the FBI in its probe of Quincy corruption will lead to a lighter sentence.

The incident took place while D'Amico was in the midst of a hard-fought battle in 2001 to be re-elected to the council seat he had held since 1995. He was indicted by a federal grand jury in 2002.

D'Amico arrived on the Quincy political scene at age 18 in 1993 when he challenged Ward 4 city council incumbent Thomas Fabrizio. He came within 277 votes of winning the seat.

Two years later, D'Amico tried again and this time defeated Fabrizio by 84 votes.

He was re-elected until 2001 when Bryan Connolly, making his first run for office, beat him by 572 votes.

A Suffolk Law School graduate, D'Amico was 20 years old when he was elected to the city council.

Phelan Changes Course On E-911

shed some light on the issue.

Last month, the city council signed off on a fire study, which will review the fire department's eight firehouses, an inventory of apparatus, staffing requirements and an evaluation of the current 911 system. Although the study is not binding, it will serve as a guide for the city as it attempts to address the department's needs.

Kevin Coughlin, Ward 3 councillor and member of the fire study's steering committee, said a number of vendors have expressed interest in undertaking a study.

Coughlin said he is hopeful that a fire study can be completed by the end of the calendar year.

Some councillors expressed support for the mayor's latest decision.

"I think it makes a lot of sense to wait and look at the overall fire department, instead of piecemealing it," said Council President Frank McCauley. "Once we have the fire study completed we will have the entire package to look at."

But Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi criticized the mayor for bringing up the issue in the first place.

"I think the mayor's premature move without proper planning was not in the best interests of the city," said Raymondi. "If the number one fire official in the city said it was a bad idea then the mayor should rely upon him to protect public safety. It was a debacle from the beginning."

Councillor Joseph Finn praised the current system and said the costs of merging the locations would not be worth it.

At Monday night's Public Safety Committee meeting, O'Connell remained steadfast in his opposition to the mayor's original plan, calling it a potential threat to public safety and questioning whether the merger would save money. O'Connell's comments echoed those he made during an interview with The Sun two weeks ago.

When asked by Committee Chairman Raymondi whether the mayor's plan was in the best interests of the city, O'Connell replied, "In my opinion, no, it's not."

In his proposed 2005 budget, Phelan included a plan to consolidate the city's E-911 system. Currently, two firefighters and two police officers monitor 911 calls at their respective locations at all times. The current system allows firefighters to monitor calls and decide which ones are appropriate for them.

Phelan's plan would have merged the dispatch centers and located one center at police headquarters. One firefighter, one police officer and several civilian workers would be on duty at the 911 dispatch center, according to the original proposal.

The mayor maintained that revamping the system would save taxpayers about $500,000 without jeopardizing public safety.

But O'Connell said the cut in manpower could pose a threat to public safety because one firefighter would be hard pressed to complete all the tasks associated with a dispatcher.

"This is how we save seconds, how we save minutes, and how we save lives," said O'Connell.

He said the police department has "different concerns" than the fire department, so relying on police dispatchers may cause delays in response times.

"I'm not saying the police department does a bad job, but they have different concerns than we do," said O'Connell. "It's a matter of seconds. I would lose my chain of command advantage. You could get behind the eight ball.

"The community has had no complaints about the fire department whatsoever," said O'Connell. "We have one concern and that is to protect the public."

O'Connell described his differences with the mayor as a "miscommunication."

"Some of it might be a miscommunication - sometimes it's a feeling that I've been around for 31 years but nobody's listening to me. And sometimes it's probably a miscommunication on my part – I'm not the easiest guy in the world to work with."

The fire chief conceded there are slow times when two firefighters are not always busy, but said emergencies crop up at any time and dispatchers must be prepared.

O'Connell was asked whether one firefighter could handle the dispatch duties previously undertaken by two firefighters and replied, "In the heat of battle, no."

Large Quincy COA Turnout At Senior Summit

Thirty-eight members of the Quincy Council on Aging, as well as two member of the Quincy Housing Authority, joined 250 other seniors and activists from across Norfolk County at Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating's annual Senior Summit on May 21.

Council members who attended the Randolph event included Regina Alexander, Peggy Cappola, Evelyn Libby, Lorane Rooney and Pauline Williams. Barbara McPherson and Joyce Livramento-Young of the Quincy Housing Authority were also in attendance.

The program's goals were to build strong relations between area groups that serve senior citizens and to provide seniors with information to keep them safe and healthy.

Speakers included Kathryn M. Maguire, Health Services director at EverCare, which is a senior care organization located in Minnetonka, Minnesota, and Michelle Ellicks and Robert Tarantino from the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV).

The RMV presentation on functional impairment addressed both the difficulties that elder drivers face – Massachusetts alone has 60,000 licensed drivers over age 85 and offered strategies to compensate for them.

Every 13 years, a person's eyes require two times the amount of light to see the same scene – so by age 80, a driver's eyes see about 20 percent of the light they did when they were young.

Reaction time also slows gradually over time, according to the RMV. What a 20-year old can react to in a split second might take an 80-year-old four times as long, according to the DA's office. "Compensating "by putting three car lengths between you and the car in front of you is your hedge against (shortened) reaction time," said Tarantino.

Even though elders are statistically more likely to have certain kinds of accidents, such as crashes while taking left turns across traffic, Tarantino assured the audience that senior citizens are statistically the safest drivers on the road. "We regulate our driving, so the accident rate is lower."

'Adopt-An-Island' Program Begins 20th Season

The "Adopt-an-Island" program, which gives businesses, residents and organizations the opportunity to maintain and beautify an adopted public area, is now in its 20th year.

Mayor William Phelan noted the impact the "Adopt-an-Island" program makes on the overall appearance of the city and emphasized its importance to the "Planting Pride in Quincy" campaign.

"Residents, businesses and organizations alike continue to do a remarkable job with their adopted islands, many of which are in high visibility locations, and it truly adds value to the aesthetic beauty of our city," he said.

"It is essential that we keep this effort going strong not only to ensure the success of the 'Planting Pride' effort but for the general day-to-day citywide beautification effort."

The program has saved the city thousands of dollars thanks to the maintenance participants perform and the various floral displays and plantings they adorn their adopted area with.

The Park Department provides signage at each adopted island that recognizes the sponsor's efforts. There are nearly 50 islands maintained and beautified through this program and there a few still available for adoption.

"I urge those who have the time and a bit of green thumb to adopt an available island," Phelan said. "Our entire city will be grateful."

Those interested in adopting an island are asked to contact the Quincy Park Department for available locations and more information at 617-376-1251.

Groundbreaking At The Residences At Presidents Place

Suffolk Construction and Intercontinental Real Estate Corporation recently held the official groundbreaking of The Residences at Presidents Place apartment building at the job site at 10 Faxon Ave., Quincy Center.

Phase two of the Presidents Place development, the residences will complement a neighboring mixed-use facility.

Designed by Quincy-based Sheskey Architects, the Residences at Presidents Place will be a 10-story, 200-unit complex with a 60,000 square-foot below-grade for 203 cars. Measuring 240,000 square feet, units will be broken down into 109 one-bedroom and 91 two-bedroom apartments. This is Suffolk's second project with Intercontinental.

The $34.9 million residential complex will tap into the South Shore's high demand for rental housing. Officials said this submarket has historically been undersupplied and remains a market with high barriers for entry. Ten percent of the apartments will be affordable, reserved for households earning 80% of the Boston metropolitan area median income.

Construction is scheduled for 19 months on the restricted site and should be open for residents in November 2005. The structural steel foundation will feature a brick and aluminum facade to match surrounding city buildings.

The site is adjacent to the Quincy Center Red Line MBTA station, Quincy College and Quincy City Hall.

Average 104% Return For Homeowners

Decks A Good Investment

Good news for deck owners and those thinking about a deck. "Remodeling" magazine's national survey of recovered cost found that homeowners on average receive a 104 percent return on their deck investment.

In some markets, the return is even higher. For example, in Boston the return to homeowners is 255 percent; Columbus, 187 percent; and Seattle, 164 percent.

Americans love their decks and with good reason. It's a room with a great view, gets the whole family out in the fresh air, and is the summertime place to cook, play, entertain or even meditate.

The down side to decks has always been the maintenance required to keep it looking good. With recent technological advances in decking material, a deck can add real value to your home, and not require lots of time to maintain.

In the last 10 years, deck designs and materials have really come of age. With software and Internet tools, homeowners find it easy to design bigger, more elaborate decks. They are now multi-level with built-in benches, planters, hot tubs and full kitchens. Some kitchens are even on rails so they roll out of the indoor kitchen onto the deck for summer fun.

"We definitely see a trend towards bigger decks," said Morris Katz of American Deck Company in Danbury, Conn. "People are investing more in their homes and decks have turned into a great way to add value and comfort. A few years ago, the average amount spent on a deck was $6,000. Last year our customers were spending an average of $15,000 for their deck."

Many companies offer deck design tools or software. Weather Best composite decking's Web site offers sketch-a-deck (www.weatherbest.lpcorp.com) to lay out plans for that dream deck. The Deck Industry Association's Web site (www.deckindustry.org) is also a great place to visit for ideas and links.

Unfortunately, decks are often not a selling point because of maintenance concerns. Traditionally decks have been made of wood. The problem with wood decks is the upkeep. Annually, wood decks need to be sanded, stained, sealed and cleaned with chemicals. They also must be inspected for nail pops, splintering and rot.

Composite decks, made of recycled wood and plastic, came along almost 10 years ago and have done away with most of the maintenance problems. You don't have to sand, stain or seal it, and you don't need chemicals for its once-a-year washing.

A composite deck's downside was its plastic appearance. People like the look of wood, so acceptance of composites was limited. Fortunately, in the last couple of years there has been a real advancement in the look and quality of composites, and homeowners are taking notice.

The 'Dirty' Secret Of Bleach Toilet Tablets

(NAPS)—Keeping a toilet bowl clean and gleaming is probably no one's favorite household chore, so many resort to a shortcut — that may make the situation worse.

The apparently "easy" answer is to drop in bleach tablets that dissolve in the toilet tank, amplifying the water's chlorine content.

Though the mega-dose of bleach can keep the bowl fresher, in-tank tablets are a convenience with a dirty secret. The same bleach that cleans the bowl also eats away at toilet tank parts — the very components that produce (what should be) efficient, trouble-free flushes.

Independent tests performed by IAPMO (International Association of Plumbing and Mechanical Officials) confirm high concentrations of bleach in the tank water damage tank parts significantly. Rubber flappers warp and shrink. Fill valves erode. Metal parts corrode.

The result is often water-wasting leaks and improper flushes. In serious cases, damaged parts can trigger catastrophic failure of the fill valve or water supply connector, causing flooding and water damage to property.

A leading make of toilet parts, Fluidmaster, is so convinced of the damage posed by bleach in-tank cleaners, it warns that use of bleach tablets will void the warranty on new products. The concern is also the inspiration behind the innovative Flush 'n' Sparkle Toilet Bowl Cleaning System with Bleach Cleaning Power.

It effectively bleaches the toilet bowl better than tablets or drop-in cleaners, without harming tank parts. A unique dispenser and cartridge design isolates bleach from the tank, injecting it only to the bowl refill water. A bleach replacement cartridge supplies over 1,000 bleaching flushes.

Conway Memorial, Remembrance Service At Stonehill College

The annual Jack Conway & Co. Memorial and Remembrance service will be held at St. Mary's Chapel on the Stonehill College campus in Easton on Wednesday, June 16.

The Mass will be said by the Rev. John Paul Reardon, C.S.C., of the Congregation of Holy Cross, son of Conway Company Vice Chairman John Reardon.

The annual tradition is designed to honor the associates and family members of the Jack Conway organization who have passed away during the past year.

"The members of the organization and their families mean so much to us, and when they pass on we like to remember them in this special way," said Chairman Jack Conway.

The service begins at 3:45 p.m. and will be followed by a reception at the college's Alumni Hall immediately afterward. Approximately 150 people – both Conway associates and family members – are expected to attend.

Founded in 1956, Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co. is the largest independent real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 810 associates in 43 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

The company, with more than $1.55 billion in sales last year, was ranked 69th among the top real estate firms in the United States in National Relocation and Real Estate Magazine's annual Power Broker survey.

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

South Coastal Bank Employees Participate In Avon Walk For Breast Cancer

A team of five South Coastal Bank employees recently participated in the Avon Walk for Breast Cancer in Boston, raising $11,000 for the fight against breast cancer.

Sue Lincoln, senior vice president, director of Retail Banking; Lisa Rocchi, vice president controller; Ann O'Keefe, vice president, retail operation manager; Danielle Walsh, assistant controller; and Lee Haviland, marketing assistant, formed a team called the South Coastal Bank Strutters.

Each of the "strutters," like everyone walking in the event, were required to raise of minimum of $1,800 to participate, a total of $9,000 for the group.

Thanks to the South Coastal Bank Strutters fundraising efforts, the generosity of those who contributed and the help of the employees at South Coastal Bank, the Strutters exceeded their goal, raising nearly $11,000. In total, $4.5 million were raised from the Boston walk.

To meet their goal, the South Coastal Bank Strutters sold popcorn at Scituate's St. Patrick's Day parade; sold pink ribbons at all South Coastal Bank branches located in Rockland, Quincy, Scituate, Carver and Braintree; sold used books and raffled off a huge gingerbread house at the Rockland branch. They also raffled off a lottery wreath – a wire wreath 'decorated' with lottery tickets – at the Carver branch.

On the first day of the walk, the weather was beautiful. The course took the walkers from the Bayside Expo Center around the coastline and through the North End of Boston and around the picturesque streets of Cambridge.

While most of the Strutters chose the 13.1 mile route, Danielle Walsh walked 26.2 miles on Saturday. It poured the second day. To keep warm, the Strutters wrapped themselves in plastic garbage bags as they walked another 13.1 miles.

South Coastal Bank, a full service financial institution, operates five branches throughout the South Shore.

DENTISTRY
for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.
GETTING YOUR TEETH IN TO SHAPE
When patients find it desirable to change the length, shape, or surface contours of their teeth to improve the appearance of their smile, the dentist can make the necessary changes by employing the most conservative of cosmetic procedures. Tooth reshaping, or odontoplasty, is a relatively quick and painless procedure that involves removing small amounts of tooth enamel to change the length or contours of the tooth. Aside from being an effective way to correct minor imperfections, it can also improve overall dental health by removing crevices or overlapping features that may trap accumulations of decay-causing plaque and tartar. Once the tooth is properly shaped with a sanding disc or fine diamond burs, it is polished.
Do you have questions about cosmetic tooth shaping dentistry? We want to provide you with the best dental care possible. We genuinely want to help you achieve dental greatness. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we use the most modern techniques and equipment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Call us at 617-479-6220 today for the professional attention and home care guidance that will make a difference in your oral health care regimen. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.
PS Recommending exams every six months is a smart idea for most patients.

Healthy Idea

(NAPS) - Studies have shown, even without limiting carbohydrates, 70 to 80 percent of Americans don't get the recommended five servings of fruit and vegetables each day.

People following a low-carbohydrate approach many not get all the nutrients they need.

Experts suggest adding a complete multivitamin to help break down fats and proteins, and with higher levels of key B vitamins and antioxidants (more than 100 percent of the Daily Value) that you may lack.

'A Great Year' For The Presidents

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Simply put the Quincy High School baseball team picked the wrong time to have an off-day.

The fifth-seeded Presidents ended their outstanding season last Saturday afternoon with a 7-2 loss to No. 12 Taunton in the first round of the Division 1 South Sectionals at Adams Field.

Despite a strong performance from junior starting pitcher John Folino and nine hits from the offense, there was no way the Presidents (14-7) could overcome nearly a dozen mistakes in the field and on the basepaths.

"Basically, the bottom line is we made too many mistakes and that hurt our team," said head coach Michael Draicchio. "Folino again kept us in the game but when you can't make the plays behind him, it's unfortunate."

"It was a great year, no question," he added. "Different kids stepped it up each game. I couldn't be happier with the results during the year. All around we played strong baseball. I personally want to thank my coaches and all the players, especially the seniors, for a great year."

Folino, an Atlantic Coast League all-star who was voted the third best player in the league, pitched all nine innings, punching out 11 and walking two while allowing one earned run on seven hits — four of which never made it out of the infield.

The culprits in this game were the five errors committed by the usually sound defense and the half-dozen outs made on the basepaths.

In the first inning, Quincy made a great heads-up defensive play to keep the Tigers off the board. Folino struck out the first two batters of the game before yielding a walk and hitting a batter.

Dan Nichols hit a grounder off the glove of diving junior first baseman Steve Sullivan, a league all-star. The ball ricocheted to junior second baseman Ray Marchand, who gunned the runner out at home to end the inning.

Taunton scored in the second when Bretton Costa blasted a two-out home run down the left field line, just over the 346-foot sign.

In the bottom half, senior Ian Jorgensen hustled and slid into first base to beat out an infield hit and Marchand reached on a bunt single. After Folino's sacrifice fly put men on the corners, senior tri-captain Dan Cosgrove grounded hard to pitcher Ryan Walczak.

Instead of turning the double play, Walczak fired to third to get the runner out. On the play, Taunton threw to second base to tag out the other runner, who thought the inning was over.

The Tigers extended their lead to 3-0 in the third with a pair of unearned runs. Chris Feldhouse reached on an infield hit, stole second base and scored on an errant throw to first on Justin Paull's bunt. With two outs, Paull scored on an infield error.

The Presidents quickly answered in the bottom half as Taunton's defense faltered. Senior Chris Kirschner walked and advanced to second on a passed ball and senior tri-captain Paul Copson reached on an error to put

SOFTBALL

The Quincy High School softball team delivered another successful season despite some concerns entering the 2004 campaign.

The loss of senior starting pitcher Rachel Sorensen to Guillian-Barre Syndrome left the Presidents with no experienced varsity pitcher. And a low turnout left them with no junior varsity squad and just an injury away from disaster.

Quincy, though, had too much talent on its roster as it earned a state tournament berth for the third straight season and finished runner-up in the Atlantic Coast League.

Unfortunately, the 13th-seeded Presidents (13-8) were derailed last Thursday afternoon in the first round of the Division 1 South Sectionals with a 3-0 setback at No. 4 Braintree.

They advanced to the first round with a come-from-behind, 5-4 extra-innings victory over No. 20 Silver Lake in the preliminary round the day before at Pageant Field.

The program should field another strong team next season. Quincy will lose only two starters and return eight core players, five of whom were named ACL all-stars this season. And there's a chance that Rachel Sorensen will return to pitch next year as well.

Against Braintree, the Presidents managed only three hits against Wamps ace Emily Bularzak — only the second time they were shut out all season.

7th Annual Squirrel Run To Benefit ALS Saturday

The seventh annual New Balance Squirrel Run to benefit research for ALS will be held Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Having raised more than $250,000 thus far, the event hopes to add another $75,000 this year.

The five-mile run — officially called the Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run for ALS — is held in honor of the former Quincy resident who lost his battle with ALS (Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis) in 1997 at age 31.

The debilitating neuromuscular disease, better known as Lou Gehrig's Disease, also took the life of Jimmy's father, Christopher, former president of the Quincy School Committee and prominent civic leader, in 1989.

All proceeds from the event go directly to ALS research at Cecil B. Day Lab at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

"Our goal this year is to keep the money pouring in so we can help the ALS research efforts, and for lots of athletes and families to have a great time," said Richard Kennedy, Jimmy's brother. "The race continues to be instrumental in building local awareness and funding for this devastating disease that strikes thousands of individuals every year."

Kennedy and Marty Levenson, a childhood friend and running partner, have organized the race together since 1998. They work closely with their North Quincy High School track mentor, coaching legend Lou Tozzi.

The road race will start at 10 a.m. with the 2.5-mile fitness walk beginning at 9 a.m.

The event also includes special children's events and awards in 15 age divisions. Race day registration will begin at 8 a.m. Entry fee is $15.

Several area dignitaries are planning to attend this year's race, including long time supporter, former Governor Michael Dukakis, Mayor William Phelan and several wives of Boston Red Sox players who have supported ALS research.

"The Squirrel Run is a great community road race where New Balance can contribute to a worthy cause and continue our tradition of supporting grassroots running events," said Steve Hindes, marketing manager, New Balance.

TAKING THE HEAT

Aside from lubricating engine parts, engine oil also plays a role in removing heat from the engine. Consider the crankshaft's motion deep inside the lower half of the engine. At highway speeds, a vehicle's tachometer may register 3,000 rpms or more, which translates into potentially damaging friction. The engine's crankshaft is spinning around fifty times per second. That kind of friction creates a lot of heat that must be dissipated. Like engine coolant, circulating oil also draws much of this heat away. Since the coolant does not circulate around pistons and bearings the way it does around other non-moving engine parts, like the block and head, it is important that clean oil is able to draw this heat away.

It's best to use the grade of oil recommended by the manufacturer for your car and change it as recommended in your manual. It's also important to keep your engine in tune. For maintenance and repairs, LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO provides friendly, personal service. We also have the latest test equipment, and more important, outstanding ASE Certified technicians. You can trust your auto repairs to use at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Hours: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: On some new engines with variable timing, motor oil also moves the adjuster mechanism that advances and retards cam timing.

Girls Lacrosse Teams Finish Regular Season

The Quincy Youth Lacrosse Girls teams wrapped up the regular season last week. They will participate in the South Shore Girls lacrosse series on Saturday, June 19 at Abington High School.

The U-13 Girls recently defeated Norwell, 4-3 at Varsity Field in Quincy. Nikki Haskins scored Quincy's first two goals. Kerry Turok assisted on the first one.

Norwell kept pace as the first half ended in a 2-2 tie.

In the second half Leslie Campbell scored to put Quincy ahead. Julia Nee made the assist. Norwell again tied the score before Turok netted the winning goal after an assist from Haskins.

On Sunday, the U-15 Girls hosted Bourne at Varsity Field. Quincy led the entire game and won 6-2. In the first half, Christine Culgin and Tara McFarland scored.

Bourne stayed close with one goal for a 2-1 Quincy lead at the half.

Goal Keeper Meg Gillespie played aggressively and stymied Bourne's attack. Quincy broke the game open in the second half. Culgin scored again to get things rolling. Kathryn Carella, who usually plays defense, showed her versatility by switching to center. She and Rene DiPietro executed a classic give-and-go to free DiPietro on Quincy's fourth goal.

Carella followed that play with a goal of her own. McFarland completed the scoring with her second goal of the day.

Lacrosse Under 15 Team Wins 2

The Quincy Youth Lacrosse 15 and under team recently won two of three games.

Tom Storella-Mullin and Billy Connors each tallied a pair of goal with an assist to lead Quincy to a 6-3 win over Plymouth.

Chris Brown (2 assists) and Nick Couture also scored. Matt Fury had three assists, while James Flaherty, JJ Downs, Martin Bowes and DJ Haskins had one apiece.

DJ Haskins netted two goals with an assist to lift Quincy to an 8-6 win over Attleboro.

Justin Halloran (3 assists), Nick Couture (2 assists), Matt Fury (2 assists), Martin Bowes (assist), Billy Connors and Billy Kiley also found the net. Tim Lewis, Chris Brown and John Storella-Mullin each had two assists and James Flaherty one.

In an 8-6 loss to Franklin, Martin Bowes and Chris Brown each scored a hat trick. Matt Fury and Billy Connors had assists.

Sophomore Merry MacDonald supplied the big hit for Braintree, stroking a two-run double in the fourth inning.

In the Silver Lake game, sophomore Leanna Lam was at bat with one out in the ninth inning when a thunderstorm hit the area. After a 30-minute delay, Lam drilled an 0-2 offering on the first pitch down the left field line for a double.

After junior quad-captain Katie Walsh walked, sophomore Kim Lebel hit a slow roller along the third base line. Silver Lake tried to get the speedy Lam heading to third base, but an errant throw allowed Lam to trot home with the game-winning run.

Junior quad-captain Rebi Sorensen — in her first tournament start — not only had to battle against the Silver Lake hitters but also the umpires, who called her for about 12 illegal pitches.

Sorensen seemed distracted early on by the calls but settled down to keep her team in the game. She went nine innings, allowing one earned run on seven hits while striking out five and walking two.

Quincy held a 3-2 lead going into the last inning but the Lakers rallied for a pair of runs to go on top, 4-3.

With runners on second and third and one out, Vicky Lewis beat out an infield hit to knock in Katelyn Greene (single) with the equalizer. Kate O'Donnell's fielder's choice scored Sara McCarthy (error) with the go-ahead run.

In the bottom of the seventh, the first two Presidents grounded out and freshman pitcher Anna Johnston was one strike away from leading the Lakers to the upset.

But the defense committed consecutive throwing errors on groundballs to give the Presidents new life. Walsh reached second base on an error and scored the tying run when Lebel reached on an error.

In the eighth, Sorensen escaped a jam to keep the score knotted at 4. Kendra Burnet lined a leadoff double to left-center and moved to third on a sacrifice bunt. Sorensen, though, turned it up a notch and struck out the next two hitters to end the inning.

Silver Lake got on the board in the first inning. O'Donnell ripped the first pitch of the game for a double and advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt. Kelli Reardon plated her with a single up the middle.

After Burnet stroked a double to right-center to put runners on second and third, Caitlin Flaherty hit a flare to right field but senior Caitlyn Callahan made a sensational diving catch. The runner at third tried to tag up and score but was ruled out for leaving the base to early. Callahan made a similar catch in the third inning as well.

Silver Lake scored an unearned run in the second for a 2-0 lead before Quincy answered with three runs in the bottom half.

Junior quad-captain Alysia DiMuzio singled and moved to second when the right fielder bobbled the ball. Sorensen knocked her home with a single up the middle.

After senior Rose Bell was hit by a pitch, Callahan bunted but Silver Lake cut down the lead runner going to third. Junior Marissa Powers beat out a bunt single to load the bases.

With two outs, Walsh reached on an error that allowed Bell to score. On the play, Silver Lake threw to second to try to catch Powers who was off the base. She was ruled safe and during the confusion, Callahan headed home to give Quincy a 3-2 lead.

men on the corners.

Junior league all-star Steve Priscella reached on a dropped flyball in right field, allowing Kirschner to score the first run but Copson was out at second on the play. Priscella advanced to second on a groundout and scored to make it 3-2 when Sullivan ripped a single past the third baseman.

Folino settled into a groove, retiring 11 of 12 hitters over the next four innings to keep Quincy within striking distance.

The Presidents had a great chance in the sixth inning to do some damage. Sullivan and Jorgensen led off with singles to put men on the corners. With the hit-and-run play on, Marchand hit a soft liner to the third baseman who easily threw to first for the deflating double play.

Taunton added a run in the eighth inning for a 4-2 lead. Feldhouse led off with walk, stole second, moved to third on a sacrifice fly and scored on an infield error.

Quincy threatened in the bottom half before running into another out on the basepaths. Senior tri-captain Joe Priscella, an honorable mention to the all-star team, stroked a leadoff single and Sullivan followed with a single to right field. Priscella, though, was thrown out at third on the play and Walczak retired the next two hitters.

In the ninth, Taunton tacked on three insurance runs. Eric Kosta reached on an infield error and Walczak bunted for a single when Folino slipped trying to field the ball. After a sacrifice bunt, David Summers slapped a two-run single past a drawin infield. Summers stole second, moved to third on a dropped third strike and scored on an infield error to make it 7-2.

NQ's Michelle Boyd, May Ho Old Colony Softball All-Stars

North Quincy High School senior softball captains Michelle Boyd and May Ho have been selected as Old Colony League All-Stars.

Boyd, a left fielder and center fielder with great speed, had five assists and made several outstanding catches. As a leadoff hitter, she batted .348 with 12 RBI, four doubles, two triples and two home runs. She also had 21 stolen bases and 12 runs scored.

Ho, a shortstop, hit .353 with 12 RBI, four doubles and three home runs. Despite missing four games due to a knee injury and playing the last three games with a slight hand fracture, she provided steady defense.

Senior captain Beth Goodrich, an all-star in 2002 and 2003, received the OCL Sportsmanship Award. North Quincy was also awarded the OCL Team Sportsmanship Award. Head coach Bob Doyle was named OCL Coach of the Year.

Morrisette Hosts Cohasset In Season Opener Friday

LEGION BASEBALL

The Morrisette American Legion baseball team is aiming to get back into the playoffs for the second straight year after last year's first-round exit to Norwood.

Morrisette opens the season tomorrow (Friday) when it hosts Cohasset at 8 p.m. at Adams Field. It will host Dorchester Sunday at 7:30 p.m. before traveling to Milton Monday and to Weymouth Wednesday.

Morrisette boasts a strong pitching staff this season with three solid starters and plenty of arms in the bullpen.

John Folino, an Atlantic Coast League all-star on the Quincy High School tournament team this season, will anchor the staff.

Left-hander Anthony Boyle, a 2003 Quincy graduate, and Steve Reardon, the No. 1 pitcher at North Quincy High School this season, round out the rotation.

Relief pitchers include Gary Dalton, a 2003 North Quincy graduate and a three-year Senior Babe Ruth player; Jeff Tam, a 2003 Quincy graduate; Steve Sullivan of Quincy; Joe Caparrotta of Archbishop Williams and closer Matt Tobin of BC High.

"We have a lot of pitching which is good because the schedule is bunched up in June," said Manager Ray Cattaneo. "So we need the arms."

Sullivan, who batted over .500 for Quincy this season, will start at first base and is backed up by Matt Haskins of North Quincy. Across the diamond, Liam Powers of Westfield College will man the hot corner.

Morrisette should be strong up the middle defensively with shortstop Donald Cook of Catholic Memorial, second baseman Reardon and center fielder Steve Priscella of Quincy.

Ray Marchand and Joe Priscella, both of Quincy, will alternate behind the plate. When not catching, they will be in the lineup as either an outfielder or DH because of their solid bats.

Utility infielders include David Keeley of Archbishop Williams, Brian Sullivan of Catholic Memorial, Tam and Tobin.

In the corner outfield positions, Folino will play left when not pitching. Dalton, Tam and the speedy Brandon Ranalli of BC High will all compete for time in right or left.

Cattaneo's coaching staff includes Steve Maze, Jim Maze and Andy Santos.

"I'm looking forward to a decent year," Cattaneo said. "I've got some good kids. I'm looking forward to getting back into the playoffs."

Quincy Legion Aims For Playoff Spot

The Quincy American Legion baseball team is poised to make a serious run at a playoff spot this season after finishing one game short last year.

Quincy, which opened its season Wednesday against Weymouth, will host Stoughton today (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at Adams Field.

It travels to Canton Friday, to Cohasset Sunday, to Dorchester Monday before returning home next Wednesday against league power Milton at Adams Field at 8 p.m.

As usual, Quincy will go as far as its pitching will take them. No. 1 pitcher Dean Sandonato finished last season with a 4-2 record. Currently pitching for BC High in the state tournament, he will not be available until the Eagles are knocked out.

John Santon, a standout on the Quincy High School tournament team this year, is the No. 2 pitcher and received the starting nod in Wednesday's opener. Manager Mark Jaehnig said if he can keep his powerful arm under control, he will be a dominant pitcher.

Sean Sullivan of North Quincy High School is in his first year as a pitcher. The converted outfielder has a very strong arm and pitched well for the Red Raiders this season.

Newcomer Justin Thorley, who has a strong arm and an excellent curveball, will be the fourth starter. When not on the hill, he'll play outfield, third base or DH.

Hard-throwing Ian Jorgensen, headed to UMass-Amherst this fall on a football scholarship, will do some pitching and play first base. Fellow Quincy graduate Paul Copson will play third base and also pitch in relief.

Co-captains are Jamie Chioccio, a three-year starter in the outfield, and newcomer Andrew McAllister, an Old Colony League all-star catcher for North Quincy this year.

"Jamie leads by example as his motor is always running and he plays the outfield and runs the bases with reckless abandon," Jaehnig said. "Andrew is probably the key addition to the team. He has a strong, accurate arm and calls an excellent game and is a smart hitter."

Quincy should be strong up the middle with second baseman John Fitzgerald of North Quincy, shortstop Drew Loud of Catholic Memorial and center fielder David Jaehnig.

"Fitzgerald may be the smartest ballplayer in the city," Jaehnig said. "Loud just finished an excellent season in the infield for CM. He is a prototypical leadoff hitter with good speed. Jaehnig has looked good at the plate in preseason and plays a solid center field defensively."

Brendan McDonald of BC High and Scott Flaherty of Quincy will compete for an outfield spot along with Sullivan, and each may see some time at DH.

Don Sweeney of Curry College is a utility player who can play almost every position. Newcomer Colin Walsh is a polished hitter who will not be eligible until BC High's season is over. He'll play DH, first base and also pitch.

Zack Eaton of Quincy High and Matt Tobin of CM are both pitchers and outfielders who Jaehnig said show a lot of promise.

Jaehnig said the future of the team are 14-year-old Tom Conley, a catcher headed to BC High next year, and 15-year-old Mark Jaehnig, who led the BC High freshman team in batting average this season.

Jaehnig is in his third season as manager. His staff includes assistant Lenny Sykes, scorekeeper Charlie Jaehnig, special assistant Pat Jaehnig and bat boy Andrew Jaehnig.

Under 14 Boys Win Challenge Cup

Travel Soccer

The Quincy under 14 boys travel A soccer team posted a 5-0 record to capture the 13th annual Bridgewater Challenge Cup soccer tournament held over Memorial Day weekend.

"We just had a great weekend and all of the boys played tremendous soccer," said coach Richard O'Hara. "We played some very tough teams and really controlled play in all five games."

Led by goalkeeper John Ciccariello, Quincy gave up only four goals all weekend, only two during the run of play. Solid defensive efforts from Paul Smith, Matt Meyers, Marc DeLucia, Tim Schow, Chris Doyle and Jeff Rackauskas kept opponents pinned in their own end for most of the weekend.

Sean Clifford, Matt Bresnahan, Danny Jackson, Glen Misho (five assists) dominated the midfield and helped provide pressure up front.

After going undefeated in qualifying play, Quincy blanked Bridgewater, 3-0, in the semifinals on goals by Danny Richards and Smith.

In the final, held just one hour later, Quincy had to face a tough Weymouth team coming off four hours of rest.

Richards headed in a Zach O'Hara cross in the first half, a lead which stood until the final minutes of the game. Following a Quincy foul, Weymouth converted a penalty kick, tying the score and eventually sending the game into overtime.

Quincy exploded for three goals in the 10-minute overtime as Mike Prioli, Jackson and Zac Deegan converted to send Quincy to their first tournament championship.

Ryan Keaney joined the team for the final game, contributing the same solid play at forward he has all season.

Rob Ranalli and Ian Campbell, valuable contributors during the regular season, were unavailable for the tourney. Ranalli will rejoin the team for the South Shore Soccer League playoffs this week. Campbell is out indefinitely with a hip injury.

Moose Defeat Infinity Mortgage

Babe Ruth International

Braintree Moose improved to 5-3 with a 12-2 win over Infinity Mortgage in recent Babe Ruth International league action at Pond Street field.

Matt Connors picked up the win, keeping hitters off-balance with a mix of fastballs, curves and sinkers. He allowed only three hits and struck out 11. He also went 5-for-5 at the plate with three RBI.

Joe Benoit drove in three runs and played solid defensively. Kevin Croake singled and doubled and scored three runs. Mike Forbes had his second straight three-hit game.

For Infinity Mortgage, James Christy, Joe Lynch and Brian Mahoney had solid at-bats, each picking up a hit.

Moose 12, State St. 4

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Try using that Aries charm to warm up the usual set of workplace naysayers, and then back it up with a solid block of facts and figures to sell your ideas to your colleagues.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) While nothing can deter a determined Bovine from following a course you believe in, it helps to have some supporting data and statements by trusted colleagues to make your case.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Take advantage of new information that could help make your career transition easier. The weekend is a good time to re-establish relationships with people you haven't seen in a while.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Personal matters demand your attention as once-stable situations begin to shift. Quick action to shore things up is called for in order to avoid more problems down the line.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Although your financial picture begins to brighten, "thrift" and "caution" are still the watchwords for fiscally astute Leos and Leonas to live by. Expect news about a family matter.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Before you try to blame a colleague for a workplace problem, make sure you have the proof to back you up. Make some quiet inquiries on your own to try to solicit more information.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Trying to cheer up a depressed friend or downcast family member can be difficult. But keep at it, and your efforts should soon pay off in ways you might have never expected.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Some funeral homes regard the people they serve as clients. A few funeral homes regard the people they serve as customers. We believe such identification is a misnomer. Speaking for ourselves, we serve no clients, no customers. The people we serve are classed as friends – and without exception – in ALL our services, we treat them as friends.

Our friends are the most important people we know. They depend on us for service and we depend on them for friendship. Our friends are an important part of our organization. They are never outsiders. Our friends are never a statistic; they are flesh-and-blood human beings with feelings and emotions like our own. Our friends are never a number; they are individuals with individual names. They depend on us to supply their needs in critical hours and do our best to satisfy them. Our friends deserve and receive the most courteous and attentive treatment we can give them -- day or night -- regardless of time. We appreciate the privilege of friendship and we at the Deware Family Funeral Home dedicate ourselves and services to deserve that privilege. . . These are not mere words. Our many, many friends know this is an established fact. . .

Quincy Residents Complete Legislative Seminar At State House

Five Quincy residents recently completed the 56th Citizens' Legislative Seminar at the Massachusetts State House.

This year's recipients are Paul Kelly, Shirley Sweet, Sally Owen, Julie McCarthey and Kathleen Potter.

The seminar series was established in 1976 through a joint effort of the Massachusetts State Senate and the University of Massachusetts. Senate President Robert E. Travaglini and House Speaker Thomas Finneran sponsor the Citizens' Legislative Seminar, and the Legislative Education Office administers the program.

Participants are selected from a wide variety of fields, representing both the public and private sectors. Once a week, for six consecutive weeks, 50 participants gather in the Senate Reception Room for a three-hour session to examine the legislative process.

This year's Spring session began on March 24 and ended April 28. The 18-hour program features discussion groups and presentations by many legislators.

For more information or to participate in this program contact Alicia Gardner in Sen. Morrissey's office at 617-722-1494.

'Cultural Coast' To Draw DNC Visitors

(Cont'd From Page 1)

"We'll use preparations for this summer's Democratic Convention to lay a new foundation for long-term tourism effort — and what better place to announce than the summer White House of John Adams and John Quincy Adams?"

Delahunt and Quincy Mayor William Phelan launched the Cultural Coast campaign Tuesday at a news conference in the carriage house of the Adams National Historic Park.

"The formation of the Cultural Coast is an indication of our commitment to the cooperative approach to tourism," said Phelan. "By pooling our resources to promote the coastal region south of Boston, we can showcase what we have to offer."

Also in attendance at the kickoff press conference were Wendy Northcross, CEO of the Cape Cod Chamber of Commerce; Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historic Park and Dale Jackson, executive director of political affairs of the DNC.

As an added lure to convention delegates, the Boston Landmark Orchestra will give a free concert on the grounds of the Adams National Historic Park July 23.

Health Dept. Seeks Smoking Ban At Workplace, Clubs

The Quincy Health Department has proposed a regulation that would prevent smoking in all workplaces, including private membership associations.

Private clubs in the city would include places such as the Knights of Columbus, the Sons of Italy and the Elks.

"We are trying to protect the worker who doesn't smoke and who is working behind a bar for eight hours and is exposed to second-hand smoke," said Health Commissioner Drew Scheele. He said it is estimated that 60,000 people die each year due to the effects of secondhand smoke.

Legislation recently passed by the state Legislature bans smoking in the workplace but exempts some private and fraternal clubs. The Quincy regulation would take the state ban one step further to include private clubs.

A public hearing on the matter has been scheduled for July 7 from 2 to 4 p.m. in Quincy City Hall, 2nd floor conference room.

Written comments will also be accepted from June 16 through July 16. Those written comments should be addressed to Andrew Scheele, Health Commissioner, City of Quincy Health Dept., 1585 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Copies of the proposed regulation are available at the Quincy Health Department, the Thomas Crane Public Library, Washington St., Quincy, or at the City of Quincy's website at www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

Executive Director Of Discover Quincy

Jennifer Logue Named Tourism Group Head

Jennifer Logue, a Quincy native and resident, has been selected to lead Discover Quincy, the tourism group charged with expanding the city's tourism potential.

Logue was selected from a group of more than 40 applicants.

As a founding member of the original Quincy Tourism Advisory Council, established in 2002 by Mayor William Phelan to explore developing Quincy's tourism potential, Logue researched and wrote the Tourism Analysis & Action Plan approved by the council and later adopted by Phelan as the blueprint for developing Quincy's burgeoning tourism industry.

"Much of Jennifer's work on the tourism action plan laid the groundwork for the creation of Discover Quincy," said Edward Fleming, president of Discover Quincy's board of directors. "Her familiarity with Quincy's tourism opportunities and challenges and Discover Quincy's mission make her uniquely well qualified to take the organization to the next level.

As executive director, Logue will be responsible for the continued development of brochures, advertising and other marketing materials aimed at raising awareness of Quincy as a tourist destination.

She will also be responsible for developing a membership program, creating partnerships with local and regional tourism agencies, writing grant proposals to secure funding for new tourism initiatives, and fostering collaboration among the city's hotels, restaurants, historic sites and businesses.

"I'm excited to have the opportunity to build upon the groundwork laid by Dis-

The city council's finance committee took a hands-off approach to the city's two main public safety departments, approving $34.8 million in spending for police and fire services in fiscal 2005.

At Monday night's meeting, the committee approved the fire department's $14.7 million budget, as well as the police department's $20.1 million spending plan. They are included in Mayor William Phelan's $213.1 million budget for fiscal 2005.

The committee chose to leave both budgets untouched. The city council is expected to give final approval at next week's meeting.

"Basically, the fire and police departments have some reductions in personnel," said Council President Frank McCauley. "We didn't want to go any further than these cuts."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin agreed, saying the budget already factors in staff reductions in fiscal 2005.

"As far as the fire department goes, I didn't think it was appropriate to supercede an independent analysis of the fire department by cutting before we get the results from that," said Coughlin, referring to an upcoming study of the fire department.

Overall, the department was down six firefighters in fiscal 2004, according to Fire Chief Paul O'Connell. Seven additional firefighters are scheduled to retire this summer, he said. The city will hire an additional nine firefighters in fiscal 2005, he said.

As a result, the fire department will have four less firefighters in fiscal 2005, according to the chief.

In addition, the proposed budget does not factor in the controversial measure involving a minimum manning standard, or NFPA 1710.

Approved by the city council last year, the ordinance mandates the fire department to staff each piece of equipment with one officer and three firefighters. Generally, the department staffs each piece of apparatus with one officer and two firefighters, said O'Connell.

The chief said he simply does not have enough firefighters to abide by the ordinance.

"I would have to put an engine out of service to do that," he said. "I don't think it's in the best interests of the city to do that.

Meanwhile, Rescue 1 continues to be used on an intermittent basis, said O'Connell.

The chief said one of the department's greatest challenges is attendance, because absenteeism runs at nearly 25 percent per shift, he said. Firefighters can be out for a number of reasons, including vacation, personal days, sick time or injured leave, he said.

Finance Committee Chairman John Keenan set his sights on the Fire Alarm Maintenance Division within the fire department.

Keenan called the salaries for the employees in the department "exorbitant" due to excessive overtime and urged the city to reorganize the division to reflect lower costs.

Keenan said the budget for the Fire Alarm Maintenance Division will cost the city nearly $300,000 in fiscal 2005.

"Salaries are out of control – overtime is out of control," Keenan told the committee.

Keenan's attempt to cut half the salary of one of the employees was defeated, as was a move to cut $10,000 from an expense line item in the division.

Dave Murphy, Mayor William Phelan's aide, said the mayor has identified the issue and is looking to reorganize the division.

Murphy called the costs a "hidden tax" and said the mayor is trying to reorganize the department with the union. "The mayor is looking at it," said Murphy.

The finance committee left the $20.1 million police budget intact, although Police Chief William Falco said the department will have six fewer patrol officers. Since fiscal 2002, the department is down 14 patrol officers, according to Falco.

Keenan's attempt to cut two community police officers went down to defeat. "I don't deny there is a need for community police officers," said Keenan. "But the community policing program has not developed as anticipated."

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi called Keenan's move a "step in the wrong direction."

"Budgeting is all about priorities and I didn't vote for pay raises for high-salaried department heads," said Raymondi. "To have the same city council entertain a cut in the community policing program shows our priorities are in the wrong place."

Raymondi said the Ward 2 community police officer has been very effective in identifying and reducing crime in the area.

Alan Cousin, president of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, praised Keenan for his attempts to cut the budgets.

"The cuts that Councillor Keenan proposed would not have crippled either department," said Cousin. "I'm disappointed the council chose not to accept them."

Committee Approves $69.1M School Budget

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The finance committee Monday night approved the fiscal 2005 school budget, a $69.1 million spending plan that provides more funds for literary specialists and teachers but also hikes fees for school sports and meals.

Overall, the budget increases spending in the school department by roughly $3.2 million, or 5 percent, when compared to the current fiscal year. The school committee recently approved the budget, which is part of Mayor William Phelan's $213.1 million fiscal blueprint for 2005.

The city council is expected to sign off on the budget at next week's meeting.

Much of the increase will go toward contractual salary increases for teachers, but more funds will be available for two full-time literacy specialists and one part-time position for the same job. As a result, every elementary school will have one literacy specialist.

School officials said they would shift budget money around to pay for more music and art teachers.

Moving money from low enrollment foreign language classes will also increase the number of middle school math teachers, according to school officials.

School Committee member Elaine Dwyer called the budget "efficient," and said it will allow classes sizes to remain low.

"We are very pleased that instead of cutting programs like other communities, we are able to keep the budget in line," said Dwyer. "A lot of credit must go to the Superintendent's office and his team, who did a wonderful job. The mayor and city council have been very supportive and understand how important education is to the city."

School Committee member Jo-Ann Bragg said the budget addresses the school department's needs.

"The literacy specialists are so important because they get to the kids early on, and that makes a big difference in their reading skills," said Bragg. "And we wanted to improve our middle school MCAS scores so we are placing a greater focus on math in those schools."

The school committee also increased fees for high school sports by $15, to $50 per sport. Members said the increase was based on a comparison of fees in nearby communities. The fee will be capped at $250 per family, and the fee to play hockey will jump to $100 from $85. Bragg voted against the proposal.

School meals will also rise for the first time in 15 years under the budget plan. In all cases, the prices for breakfast and lunch will jump less than 45 cents, with new costs ranging from 60 cents to $1.75 depending on the grade level and meal.

MWRA Mailing Water Quality Report To Households

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority soon will be mailing to every household the annual report on drinking water quality.

Look for the "What You Should Know About Your Drinking Water" report in the mail this month.

The report, required by federal law, provides the results of extensive testing by both MWRA and your local water department for 2003. The news is good – extensive testing of the Quabbin and Wachusett reservoirs show that they continue to be excellent quality sources of water supply.

After a decade of planning, design and construction, the MWRA's new 18-mile water tunnel and major covered storage facilities are complete, greatly increasing system security and reliability. A water treatment plan will be opened next spring, featuring ozone disinfection to replace chlorine, that will further protect water supplied to customers in MWRA water communities.

The report and further information on water quality can also be found on MWRA's website, www.mwra.com or copies can be obtained by calling 617-242-5323.

Reagan Won The Crowd

The nation has bid a sentimental farewell to Ronald Reagan, certainly one of our most popular presidents.

It was a week of warm tributes and reminiscing.

But no Quincy connections for us to fondly recall.

Reagan never came to Quincy. So, unfortunately, there is no local fond memory of him such as visiting historic United First Parish Church where two of his early predecessors John and John Quincy Adams are entombed. A great photo opt.

But I do remember his close-by visit.

That was in June, 1979 when he was the guest speaker at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce breakfast at the Lantana in Randolph.

He was 68 then and campaigning for the 1980 Presidential election in which he would crush Jimmy Carter.

And at 68, he still cut a handsome figure. The facial wrinkles were there but that smile was there, too.

And somehow, wearing the famous Chamber seagull tie he was presented with, he seemed to give it a fashion boost.

Looking at him, easily you remembered him as George Gipp (The Gipper") in the 1940's movie "Knute Rockne-All American."

The Chamber breakfast is traditionally scheduled for 7:44 a.m. which is early enough. But many arrived as early as 7 a.m. to be sure of a good seat.

And there were more women than usual in the audience — many of them seeking Reagan's autograph.

Reagan drew a crowd of 850 — the biggest ever at that time for a Chamber breakfast.

And he didn't disappoint, getting off some good quips and jabs about government interference, politics and politicians.

As for the size of the crowd he noted:

"I suspect there was some element of curiosity in it. After all, it is not every day that you see someone who, for 25 years, was riding off into the sunset with "The End" superimposed on his back."

On the subject of politics:

"It has been said that politics is the second oldest profession. I have come to realize in recent years that there is a great similarity to the first."

On Washington politicians:

"Washington goes on inventing miracle cures for which there are no known diseases."

On inflation, which was soaring back then:

"I had a physical checkup the other day. I asked the doctor how I was. He said, 'Sound as a dollar.' I fainted dead away.

"Inflation has even changed nursery rhymes. There was an old lady who lived in a shoe. That's all she could afford for $80,000. You're better off today with a dime in your pocket than a dollar bill. At least you can use a dime as a screwdriver."

On OSHA:

"I spoke recently in Indiana. There was a fellow there with a small shop. He's got seven employees. He has a 12-foot door at the front and a 12-foot door at the back.

"OSHA caught up with him the other day. After looking it over, they told him he had to put up exit signs. They said he might have a new employee that in the event of fire would become confused and not be able to find his way out. He (the owner) asked the very logical question. If he can't see a 12-foot door how is he going to see an exit sign?"

RONALD REAGAN at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce breakfast in June, 1979. With him are Tom Curtin, Chamber president at the time; Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth and Fr. William McCarthy, then pastor of St. John's Church. Reagan is wearing a Chamber famous sea gull tie that was presented to him.

On getting a hostile legislature to work with a president or governor:

"I learned it's not necessary to make a legislator see the light. Just make him feel the heat. (From the people.)

Reagan's most repeated line last week was his famous "Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this wall!"

The Soviet Union was on his mind at that Chamber breakfast, especially with the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT).

"Most people think that the treaty limits the number of missiles on both sides," he said. "It does nothing of the kind.

"The treaty only limits the number of launchers and that is one element to begin with that marks us for inferiority.

"When we shoot a missile out of the launcher or silo that's it for the silo until it's rebuilt.

"The Soviet Union has perfected a cold launch method where they are released by compressed air and ignited above ground.

"They can reload their silos like you reload a shotgun and there is no way in the world of telling how many missiles they have."

At Chamber breakfasts it was a long-time tradition that Braintree's late Bill Brooks would ask the main speaker (senator, governor, congressman, etc.) "Well, tell me, what can you do about Braintree Five Corners?"

That was before the traffic lights were installed there and anyone trying to get through the Five Corners had to fender fence his way through. Or just plow through hoping the other guy would turn chicken and let you by.

Brooks as it turned out wasn't at this breakfast. But his question was.

Reagan had been alerted ahead of time and while taking questions from the audience, asked: "Isn't anybody going to ask me about Braintree Five Corners?"

The crowd roared at that. And then Reagan left them laughing at his "solution" to the Five Corners traffic zoo:

"I have given it a great deal of thought and felt that perhaps for the first time there is an answer.

"I figure if you make all of the five streets that are coming together one way, then when the jam is absolutely impenetrable — pave it over!"

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1912 POSTCARD is a view of the overhead crane that for many years was near the old Quincy Adams depot at Liberty and Water Streets in South Quincy. The Shaw Electric Crane Company of Michigan made this 40-ton hoist and ones similar to it that were used at the Fore River shipyard. The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad installed it in 1907 on a siding off its mainline tracks that passed through Quincy Center. It provided much needed support for the freight service to the dozens of bustling stoneyards in South Quincy at the time. Rough granite blocks were brought here by the railroad from quarries in Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Vermont and many other stone producing areas to be worked into monuments and memorials of all sorts by Quincy's stone-cutting craftsmen. The finished product, including Quincy Granite monuments, was in turn shipped from here to all parts of the country and beyond. Wagons as shown here were used to transport granite through the city's unpaved streets. Horses, mules or teams of oxen depending on the size of the load and condition of the road drew the wagons. Today, the site of this old postcard scene is in the middle of the Burgin Parkway.

A Fair Wage For Firefighters Not Too Much To Ask For

How much is a human life worth? Scientists say that a human body, reduced to its basic elements, is only worth a few dollars. But if that human life is yours, or a loved one, the value is immeasurable. No one understands this better than firefighters, after all, we sacrifice our lives for only $22 an hour.

Whether standing in a burning building or performing emergency medical procedures on a heart attack victim or climbing into an overturned car, we do it for $22 an hour. Sounds crazy, but money is not the reason Quincy Firefighters sacrifice their lives for safety – it's the dedication we feel towards our fellow man. It sounds corny, but it's true.

In Mr. Nee's recent editorial, he blasts the mayor and firefighters for pay raises. Although his figures are correct, they are distorted. Firefighters receive a step raise after their first and second year of service to the city. Mr. Nee does not mention the fact that when a firefighter is hired by the city, his hourly salary is approximately $14. After a year it increases to $18 an hour, and after two years of service the salary increases to full pay of $22, hardly the exorbitant increases Mr. Nee insinuates. In addition, the average firefighters raise is only about $30 per week, whereas the recent department heads increases are between $3,000 and $5,000 annually.

Incredibly, Quincy firefighters with three children may qualify for food stamps. This is how you treat someone who would offer their life for yours?

I can understand Mr. Nee's attitude towards spending, but he must put things into perspective: municipal revenue and spending is the lowest wrung on governmental expenditures.

It begins at the federal level where the President and Congress pass a tax cut that has a minimal effect on the average American wallet, but has long reaching effects on their economy. With this tax cut and downturn in the economy, the Federal government has cut many programs that states must fund. As the state funds these programs there is less money for local aid to individual cities and towns. Finally, when municipalities must fund non-discretionary items, i.e. schools, police and fire, they must do so the only way possible, by raising taxes.

In closing, the phrase "All politics is local" is never more evident than now. Mr. Nee should consider contacting President Bush and Governor Romney and ask them why his taxes needed to be increased. The citizens of Quincy get much more for their tax dollar from their fire department then they will ever realize; a fair wage is not too much to ask for in return.

Viewing WWII Memorial A Humbling Experience

While in Washington, D.C. recently, I had the opportunity to visit the World War II Memorial, on the mall, adjacent to the Rainbow Pool and situated between the Lincoln Memorial and Washington Monument. Even at the time of my late night visit, there were people moving silently along the Memorial.

The critical reviews in some newspapers may dissuade people from venturing to the Memorial. This would be a mistake. The classical architecture and the beautiful bas relief murals serve as reminders of the sacrifices endured by brave men and women, and their families in that war to end all wars.

Four hundred stars, each representing 100 of the American war dead provide a reflective area for all of us to ponder those brave souls and the thousands of other veterans who didn't live to see the Memorial dedicated.

One proud American veteran, former Quincy College Governor Charlie Sweeny, died last year. I remembered Charlie as I stood before the Massachusetts section of the Memorial. Charlie was an advocate for the Memorial.

Both sides of my family served in the war, and in subsequent conflicts or wars. One cannot visit this Memorial without feeling humbled by the distinguished service of America's veterans. Sadly, for those like Charlie, the Memorial came too late.

Fourth Of July Reenactment Set For Adams National Park

Fourth of July visitors to the Adams National Historical Park will be able to debate their peers on the nature of the Declaration of Independence and leave with momentos of their "service" to the nation.

Three performances of the Great Debate of 1776 will take place on Sunday, July 4, at 11 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. in a 21st century version of Independence Hall, the carriage house on the Adams estate, 135 Adams St.

The events are free to all patriots.

Visitors are urged to take part in the great drama by assuming the roles of delegates to the Continental Congress and, led by John Adams, take part in the heated debate and cast a final vote to adopt the declaration.

After the debate, each delegate will sign his or her name to the document, ring the Liberty Bell, receive a copy of the Declaration to keep as a memorial of the event and sample a slice of Liberty Cake.

A candlelight parade, led by the Middlesex County 4-H Fife & Drum Corps, will follow the evening performance to United First Parish Church where the Declaration of Independence will be read and bells will be tolled.

Prospective visitors can reserve their places in history by calling the Adams National Historical Park Visitors Center at 617-770-1175.

OVER 900 PEOPLE were welcomed by Quincy College President Sean Barry at Quincy College's Tribute to the Troops, a free concert and barbecue held at outdoors at Coddington Hall.

DAN RAYMONDI, a member of the Quincy College Board of Governors and Ward 2 city councillor, joined the Quincy College administration to help serve barbecue to over 900 people prior to the Tribute to the Troops patriotic concert.

Quincy College Hosts Patriotic Tribute To The Troops

It was a first-time event at Quincy College that drew over 900 people from Quincy and surrounding areas to campus to celebrate America.

Hosted by College President Sean Barry, a "Tribute To The Troops" was a free patriotic concert and barbecue outdoors at Coddington Hall on the eve of graduation. Crossing generations, the audience of all ages gathered under blue skies to honor, recognize and show support for American troops currently serving our nation across the globe.

Members of the Quincy College campus joined President Barry to present a special Patriotic Concert for the community performed by the Southeastern Massachusetts Wind Ensemble, a 50-piece community-based orchestra specializing in the patriotic songs of America.

The outdoor evening concert was preceded by a complimentary barbecue outside at Quincy College's Coddington Hall where members of the Board of Governors joined the faculty and staff in cooking and serving the hundreds of guests.

"After several Quincy College students were called to active duty, the war took on an added significance for our campus," Barry said. "To show our continuous support this semester, we have been participating in Operation Interdependence, an initiative that delivers care packages to soldiers in Iraq.

"As the semester closes, the concert we hosted is another example of our community coming together to show support for the men and women of our armed services."

Rob Grimes of the Office of Campus and Community Development, said, " The support for our troops on campus has been tremendous. To date we have shipped 100 packages filled with everything from games and puzzles to razors and deodorant. By the time we are finished without monthly donations, our assigned platoon will have received over 500 packages from Quincy College.

"At the concert we provided the opportunity for people to write letters to the troops and for children to create artwork to compliment our next shipment. We want this effort to demonstrate the homefront's support of the bravery and dedication of our troops."

Highlighting the event, The Southeastern Massachusetts Wind Ensemble is a 50-piece non-profit community band, founded nearly 30 years ago that includes musicians of all ages and abilities from Quincy, the South Shore and beyond. Songs performed at the first-time event include The Armed Forces Salute, The Chimes Of Liberty, The Star Spangled Banner The Washington Post, Strike Up the Band, The Starts and Stripes Forever plus selections from American icon Frank Sinatra and a medley of timeless Disney tunes.

Donated items for Operation Interdependence can be delivered to the Office of the President, Saville Hall, 24 Saville Avenue, Quincy, MA. Call 617-984-1784.

VETERANS AND CHILDREN alike gathered for Quincy Collegeís Tribute to the Troops to honor the men and women serving in the military including a Corporal Gates a Communications Specialist from the 1st Battalion, 102nd Filed Artillery, Quincy Armory.

Brenda's Picture Perfect Cake

Recently at a birthday party for our grand niece Teresa Mae, her birthday cake baked by her mother Brenda was so pretty to look at and delicious , too. It's made with Jell-O for color and you can use any color you desire. Brenda used strawberry. She used two 9" round cake pans.

Brenda's Colorful Cake

1 1/4 cups sugar
1/2 cup Crisco
2 eggs
2 1/2 cups cake flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk
2 cups boiling water
2 packages of Jell-O (any desired flavor)
8-12 ounces of Cool Whip (thawed)

Blend sugar with the Crisco. Add the eggs, the flour the vanilla and milk. Beat for three minutes. Spray pans with cooking spray and bake at a 350 degree oven for about 35 minutes.

After they are completely cooled, leave in same pan and pierce each cake with large fork at 1/2" intervals.

IN each package of Jell-O, stir one cup of the boiling water in separate bowls. Stir until completely dissolved. Carefully pour Jell-O over each cake layer. Refrigerate for 3 hours.

Dip each cake pan in warm water for 10 seconds to unmold onto plate. Spread 1 cup whipped topping on one cake and then add the other cake on top. Then finish frosting the entire cake with the cool whip. Refrigerate for at least one hour. You will love the way it looks as well as the way it tastes.

AARP Quincy Chapter Closes At A Young 18

By ELEANOR REIDY

It was not easy for the officers and board members of the American Association Retired Persons in Quincy to close down Chapter 4097 for good.

But we were holding our final meeting June 2 at 12 noon in the Common Market restaurant amid a nostalgic flurry of "I Remember Whens . . "

The chapter has played a significant role in the city of Quincy since its inception in 1986, when AARP was just a blip on the horizon in the national landscape.

That is the year the writer and a group of friends noticed an article in a local newspaper inviting interested parties, newly retired, to come and see what AARP was all about.

The introductory meeting was held at the Sons of Italy Hall, which was provided rent-free. The turnout was amazing and those in attendance were delighted to recognize people they had known for years.

The group immediately decided AARP has something to offer all of us and we recognized the organization's motto — "To serve, not to be served" — as one we had lived by ourselves.

And so, the chapter was formed.

William Spencer, better known as "Bill," with his wife, Constance, a popular figure in Quincy, agreed to serve as temporary president.

Bill introduced a slate of volunteer officers, board members and committee members t serve a year until a nominating committee could be appointed and an election held.

Assisting Bill were Arthur and Betty Anastasi, Tom and Trudy Buckley, Dorothy and Carl Johnson, Barbara and Richard Nash, Eleanor and Timothy Reidy, and Eleanor Serafini.

Through the years, Bill Spencer has been succeeded as president by Eleanor Reidy, Tom Buckley, Arloa Webber and currently Normand Goyette.

At the first meeting, it was voted to meet on the first day of each month, with the exception of July and August. We approached Jake Comer, the director of the Quincy Housing Authority for a meeting place and he offered us the function room at Tobin Towers.

Our membership increased to 300 and the attendance eventually proved to be too large and made it inconvenient for residents of Clay Street since we held up the elevators coming and leaving the building.

We then moved to Pagnano Towers and each month fundraisers were held to provide us with funds "to serve." It was at Pagnano Towers that Trudy Buckley presented City Hospital a check for $500 for their fundraising drive.

Betty Anastasi, a volunteer at Channel 3, persuaded the managers there to allow us to conduct a telethon and a substantial amount of money was raised for a nursing scholarship at Quincy College.

Tom and Trudy Buckley canvassed local businesses and succeeded in getting many generous donations as did an enthusiastic group of chapter members who solicited from friends and relatives.

The fund grew through the years and has made in possible for the chapter to present more than 15 scholarships, named for one of our founders, Barbara L I. Nash, who died of cancer.

Through the years our chapter has made donations to many local organizations, including DOVE, Father Bill's Place, First Night, South Shore Elder Services (Meals on Wheels), Interfaith Social Services and Seniors Night Out, chaired by M. Kay Bamford.

Chapter members have been enthusiastic bell ringers for the Salvation Army at Christmastime at the South Shore Plaza.

Peg O'Connor, director of the Blind Center in Quincy, told us of her experiences with the blind and showed us some beautiful articles they had made.

Consequently, the chapter put on a luncheon for them at the Fore River Clubhouse with Barbara Linden as chairperson.

The chapter has had problems with leadership. Many of our original group have passed away. Members now join for the social contacts and are unwilling to serve as officers.

Those who are left from the original group are still young in spirit and heart but admit to physical limitations.

Many Quincy people have helped keep our chapter alive and able to carry out its motto, "To Serve."

We are particularly grateful to Roche Brothers supermarket, which has allowed up the use of its function room and provided us with coffee and desserts for many years.

And to Tom Clasby, director of the Council on Aging, who provided transport for members to attend meetings, and Mary Matook, state chapter specialist of the AARP and conducted the installation of officers for more than 10 years.

Quincy Farmers' Market Opens July 9

The Quincy Farmers' Market kicks off its 22nd season on Friday, July 9 at 11 a.m. at the John Hancock Municipal parking lot – across from Quincy District Court on Chestnut St. The market will run every Friday, rain or shine, through Oct. 29.

All of last year's farmers are returning, including Stillman Farm of Lunenberg, Freitas Farm of Middleboro, Nouquchoke Orchards of Westport and Serving Ourselves Farm of Long Island off Squantum.

Land's Sake Farm of Weston, a well-known u-pick farm, is the market's latest addition. Local gardeners also serve the market on a short-term basis.

Farmers' Market is a fun and festive way of shopping outdoors in the sunshine under the farmers' colorful umbrellas for home grown seasonal fruits and vegetables. At this time of the season, customers can expect to find a variety of lettuce, early tomatoes, summer squash, rhubarb, radishes, scallions, sugar snap peas, beans and herbs, such as basil, dill, parsley and other herbs, as well as cut flowers and hanging plants.

"I invite everyone to come to the market and look around to see what the farmers are growing for us again this season, and while going to the market save a little time to visit the many fine shops and restaurants in downtown Quincy," said Dean Rizzo, executive director of Quincy 2000 Collaborative.

Sally Owens, Quincy's Environmental Treasures coordinator, said Farmers' Market provides a unique experience for residents.

"Quincy is very lucky to have a Farmers' Market, as locally grown food purchased soon after it is harvested retains more nutrients than the food that comes from far away places and may not be purchased until days later," she said. "Furthermore, when we buy locally grown food, we preserve open space and secure our farm viability in the Commonwealth."

Hearing On Dumpster Complaints Continued

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board heard complaints regarding the dumpster at Alfredo's Restaurant, 73-77 Franklin St., but then continued the hearing until July 6.

Atty. Christine Cedrone, counsel for Donald Spink, the abutter who lives on Federal Ave., said Alfredo's was told to move the dumpster in 1997 and has not done so as yet and questioned whether the License Board's decision is ate enforced.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said the dumpster was moved from one corner to another in 1997. However, it was noted that it was not moved to that part of the parking lot it was supposed to have been. Cedrone stressed the fact that a new developer on the site of Golden Bowl will soon be constructing and that there will be another property line as well as Spinks to deal wit.

Chairman Joseph Shea said when Fire chief Thomas Gorman was a member of the license board he deemed the moving of the dumpster near the building was unsafe. Board members all agreed with that at Tuesday's meetin.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi reiterated Cedrone's views and questioned whether odors were eminating from the dumpster.

Scheele and Det. Lt. Robert Perchard both praised the manner in which Alfredo's keep the dumpster and said not only it is "immaculate" and has a fence around it, but it is never "overflowed" and is washed down regularly.

Just before the meeting was about to end, Christos Chronos, owner of Alfredo's stepped up to the podium and said Spink knew of the restaurant when he moved in his house and said the restaurant has been in existence for more than 50 years, and the dumpster at the same two places.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell said he wanted the Fire Department to view the area and made the motion to continue. He said he planned to take pictures and measurements.

Bruce Ayers Fundraiser Thursday

State Rep. Bruce J. Ayers will hold a Re-election Reception tonight (Thursday) from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Raffael's Restaurant, 1 Enterprise Drive, North Quincy.

Tickets are $15 per person, $25 per couple.

Reagan Passing Stirs Some Local Memories

The death of former President Ronald Reagan brought back special memories to Ron Zooleck, president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, and John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging.

Zooleck recalled the day in 1980 when Reagan, who was running for his first term as president, was the speaker at one of the Chamber's 7:44 breakfasts.

"His advance people asked us what the local issues he might be asked about," said Zooleck, "and we told him there was a gentleman named Bill Brooks who always asking what to do about Five Corners in Braintree.

"As it turned out Bill wasn't at that breakfast. He was down on the Cape somewhere. Reagan made his speech and took some questions. Then he asked, 'Isn't anybody going to ask me about Five Corners?' That brought down the house."

RONALD REAGAN

The Chamber, as was its practice, presented Reagan with its famous sea gull tie to commemorate his appearance at the breakfast.

Five years later, Zooleck and developer Peter O'Connell were in Washington to receive an award from the President on behalf of the Chamber for its promotion of the Quincy Court's "Earn It" program.

"Peter went up to accept the award," said Zooleck, "and he presented another tie to the President. Reagan told him, 'Thanks, I needed another.'"

Noonan was a reporter for The Quincy Sun's Cable News Channel in 1985 when he flew to Washington with Zooleck and O'Connell to accept the award for community volunteerism.

"Bob Gohl (the photographer) and I along with Zooleck flew in the O'Connell brothers private jet from Norwood to Washington to tape the presentation," recalls Noonan.

"We arrived at the White House and were admitted to the Rose Garden where President Reagan made the presentation to Ron Zooleck.

"At the scene, I had brought along my own camera. I was not allowed by White House security to move beyond where I was assigned to stand, therefore I could not get a closeup shot of Ron and President Reagan."

But just being with the President in the White House Rose Garden that day 19 years ago was enough for John.

New Restaurant Brings Fond Memories Of Old Fox & Hounds

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The old Fox and Hounds Restaurant at 123 Sea St. will now be known as the new Fox and Hounds Wood Grille & Tavern. It was formerly the Custom House and will be managed by Steven J. Curran.

He was granted a common victualer license, an all alcoholic license, an entertainment license and a floor show license by the License Board at Tuesday's meeting.

Curran said he wanted to "rejuvenate the name of Fox and Hounds" and said the building is sound having been renovated in 1995.

Curran was formerly the manager of a restaurant in Boston and is affiliated with the Adams Inn.

Det. Lt. Robert Perchard praised Curran for his "excellent job" at the Gazebo at Adams Inn. Perchard reminisced about when the old Fox and Hound Restaurant was in business, and the entertainment by Hum & Strum.

Curran said the 6,000 square feet building will accommodate 200 patrons.

Curran told the board that the restaurant will be a full service one in which there will be meat and potatoes on the menu as well as grilled seafood steak and chicken.

Curran said plans are about 90 percent completed and will include a function room and the restaurant also plans to have a dinner theater such as Raffaele's.

Chairman Joseph Shea questioned the condition of the parking area in which Curran agreed that it needed re-arranging for the traffic as well as re-paving and re-striking.

The hours will be from 11:30 a.m. to 1 a.m.

Chris & Trudy Peter Blood Drive July 20

The Houghs Neck Community Council will conduct a blood drive in memory of Chris and Trudy Peter Tuesday, July 20, from 2 to 8 p.m. at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall on Darrow Street.

For the past 19 years, Trudy Peter and her family have conducted the drive on the third Tuesday of each July in memory of her son, Chris, who was killed by a drunk driver 20 years ago.

The effort resulted in the collection of almost 2,000 pints of blood. The biggest attraction of the day was the goodies baked by Trudy for the donors. The event was more like a community get-together than a blood drive.

Unfortunately, Trudy Peter died last November, leaving the Chris Peter Blood Drive leaderless — but only for a brief time.

Up stepped members of the Houghs Neck community to create its successor, "the Houghs Neck Community Council Blood Drive, in Memory of Chris and Trudy Peter," to carry on the tradition.

And they'll keep the homebaked goodies coming, too.

Free Legal Clinic July 6 At Quincy Courthouse

New Restaurant At Munroe Building

A new restaurant called Get Fresh Rotisserie & Grill will open in the Munroe Building, 1259B Hancock St. and feature basic American Cuisine, according to owner Juliet Loebardt. It was formerly Doodle's Liquid Library.

Loebardt was granted a common victualer license and beer and wine license by the License Board at Tuesday's meeting.

Loebardt said the restaurant, which will feature "comfort food" and include grilled chicken, fish and beef will open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The 1100 square foot eatery on the ground floor, will be mostly take-out with seat 18 patrons.

State House Budget Amendment Seeks Federal Funds For QMC

Rep. Ron Mariano, chairman of the Joint Committee on Insurance, has filed an amendment to the House budget that would bring significant federal funding to Quincy Medical Center.

The funds represent the anticipated federal monies that were incorporated into the original transition plan for the former Quincy Hospital in 1999.

The amendment, which was also supported by Reps. Steven Tobin and Bruce Ayers, now goes to the Senate, where Sen. Michael Morrissey, chairman of the Government Regulations Committee, has committed to carry it forward.

The background to the federal funding dates back face years to the time when the former Quincy Hospital became the Quincy Medical Center.

"When the turn-around plan was first developed to transition Quincy Hospital to a private non-profit charitable institution in 1999, several key assumptions were made, including an anticipated $23 million in federal funding," said Christine Schuster, president and CEO of QMC.

The amendment represents the final piece of funding that was required to complete the successful turnaround of the hospital.

The medical center has continued to pursue potential sources of funding from the federal government with support from Mayor William Phelan.

"I applaud the legislative delegation for their hard work and foresight in working with us to identify this funding source and in pursuing this opportunity for Quincy," said Schuster.

Council On Aging Elects Officers, Looks To Future

By JOHN NOONAN
Chairman, Quincy Council on Aging

Doing more with less and the election of officers highlighted the 42nd annual meeting of the Quincy Council on Aging (COA) held recently in the City Council chamber at City Hall.

Thomas F. Clasby Jr., director of the Department of Elder Services, outlined how additional services to benefit Quincy's elderly population were added despite fiscal restraints imposed by federal and state cutbacks.

Clasby said his department was faced with the demolition of Squantum Gardens housing and a need to find new facilities in which to continue various highly important and needed services for Quincy's fast-growing elderly population.

"We strengthened existing relationships with agencies in our city and managed not only to house all our ongoing programs but institute new ones," Clasby said.

Examples of cooperative agencies cited are the River Bay Club, Marina Place, Quincy Park and Recreation Departments, Thomas Crane Public Library and Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Houghs Neck.

The free use of these facilities plus a most dedicated Council on Aging staff and corps of volunteers make the continuity of these services possible.

JOHN NOONAN

"In spite of a state-wide fiscal crisis, we were able to add such programs as financial advice, movie-of-the-month, hearing screening, legal advice and massage therapy," said Clasby.

"All these programs are provided on a monthly basis at little or no cost to Quincy's seniors."

According to Clasby, the Department of Elder Services' transportation van program continues to be one of the finest in the Commonwealth. In fact, he said, other communities are implementing their own programs modeled after Quincy's.

Transportation for medical purposes is offered to Quincy seniors portal-to-portal at no charge.

The Transvan program is vastly popular. For a nominal fee of $20 per quarter, seniors are provided van transportation for many personal visits in the Quincy area only.

In cooperation with personnel of the Health Department, the annual flu vaccination immunization program for seniors continues to be high on the list of successful public health programs in the state.

A highlight of the annual meeting was the election of COA officers for the coming year.

Elected were John Noonan, chairman; John Molloy, vice chairman; and Mary Kay Bamford, secretary. Director Clasby is administrator and Nancy DiPaolo, administrative assistant.

Members of the COA Board include: Mark Carey, John Chen, Al Farquhar, Frank Kearns, Dr. Joseph McDermott, Ken Tarabelli, Kathy Quirk, Mary Vallier, Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, Recreation Director Barry Welch and Barbara McPherson, the Quincy Housing Authority's designee pro tem.

Noonan expressed gratitude for the vote of confidence shown by his reelection as chairman for the 23rd consecutive year.

He said much has been accomplished in providing services to the elderly since the Council on Aging was founded in 1962 but much more remains to be done.

He credited the various mayors, city councillors and cooperating agencies for many of the senior services being offered today through the Department of Elder Services.

Two major annual events in which the COA plays a significant role are the Senior Olympics and the Senior Conferences.

The 22nd Senior Olympics were held May 10-15.

The ninth annual Quincy Senior Citizens Conference will be held Sept. 18 at the Broad Meadows Middle School.

These popular conferences have been made possible with the cooperation of Mayor William Phelan and former Mayor James Sheets.

Jennifer Logue Named Tourism Group Head

-cover Quincy's board of directors," said Logue, who noted that the all-volunteer board has already succeeded in securing grants to fund the production of new brochures and other materials to jumpstart Quincy's tourism efforts. "Quincy has a wealth of historic and recreational treasures of which we all should be proud, and I'm looking forward to working with the board as well as business leaders and city officials to make tourism a key component of the city's economic development plans."

Mayor Phelan said, "I congratulate Discover Quincy on their selection and I look forward to working with Ms. Logue and Discover Quincy on making the tourism industry a valuable economic development tool for Quincy."

The city's hotel/motel tax has provided funding to Discover Quincy to help produce and distribute new marketing materials and establish a Quincy Tourism website. Discover Quincy has also conducted fundraising events such as the Mayor's Garden party and received a grant from the Greater Boston Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Logue, 37, is a graduate of North Quincy High School and American University. She has more than 15 years of experience in public relations and communications. Since 1996, she has been employed at WGBH as a senior publicist and writer.

Active in community affairs, she served on the Quincy High School Siting Commission and is the incoming president of the Quincy Lions Club. She is also a registrar of voters.

John Balzano Receives Senior Real Estate Specialist Designation

John Balzano, a real estate sales agent with Century 21 Annex Realty in Quincy, recently achieved the Seniors Real Estate Specialist (SRES) designation.

Balzano received the distinction from The Senior Advantage Real Estate Council (SAREC) after completing a two-day course and examination administered by the Plymouth and South Shore Association of Realtors.

JOHN BALZANO

The SRES designation was introduced in 1997 as a way to better serve the growing senior market. According to SAREC, nearly 80 percent of today's seniors in the U.S. own real estate and/or are buying new properties.

Balzano's other professional designations include Certified Buyer Representative (CBR) and Graduate Realtors Institute (GRI). He and his wife, Christine live in Braintree with their one-year-old son, Mathew John.

Conway Offering Real Estate Courses

The Jack Conway Country School of Real Estate is offering four-week courses on the fundamentals of real estate.

Students of the Conway Country School of Real Estate also have access to professional career counseling to discuss joining the Conway sales team, although enrolling in the prelicensing class does not obligate students to work for Conway.

Tuition is $200 and classes are held in Hanover at the intersection of Routes 53 and 139 on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The next class starts July 6 and runs through July 29.

Mortgage Bankers Association:

Rising Mortgage Rates Will Hurt First-Time Homebuyers

After years of record low mortgage rates, they are now beginning to increase. Bankrate.com reports mortgage rates have risen almost a full percentage point since the middle of March.

In addition, the Mortgage Bankers Association reports the Federal Reserve is likely to begin raising rates in June due to strong employment growth in March and April, rising inflation pressures and recent solid production growth.

While interest rates can respond quickly to economic conditions, housing values tend to respond to sales and therefore react more slowly. In the past this has created short-term disconnects between prices and interest rates. There was a period a few years ago when rates had fallen and prices had not yet taken off. This offered bargains to the first-time homebuyer who could get both low prices and low interest rates. Today the reverse is true.

With rates poised to rise and perhaps rise quickly, prices will lag, creating a real barrier to entry. First-time homebuyers who are trying to get over a rent versus buy hurdle will find this environment more difficult than those with equity already established and who want to trade up or down.

Steve Bucci, president of Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Southern New England, encourages consumers who are in the market for new homes to consider the following:

• Don't be too hasty when considering a 15-year over a 30-year mortgage. While you may save thousands in interest with a 15-year note, you will lose flexibility and have a higher set payment. With a longer loan period, you can always pay more. With a shorter one, you can't.

• Evaluate you budget and realize principal, interest, property taxes and insurance rates may now be different than they were only months ago. You may have to take another look at what your budget will cover and adjust your house shopping accordingly.

• Know your credit score before you get too serious. If you are thinking about filing a mortgage application, a good credit score is essential in securing the best loan possible. It also can affect the price or even your ability to get home and life insurance. Stay on top of your existing debt and loan payments in order to ensure and maintain a healthy credit history.

• Realize when you close on a house the expenses don't stop. Repairs, furniture purchases and decorating costs make the first six months of homeownership one of the single most active periods of credit card use.

For more information on managing finances while on active military duty, help with debt problems or other personal financial management issues, contact CCCS at 1-800-208-2227 or visit its Web site (www.creditcounseling.org).

Maintain, Replace AC Equipment

Beating the Heat

If the hot weather hasn't arrived yet in your part of the county, it soon will. The Southern states have been sweltering for at least a month. But no matter where you are, a few simple steps can make summer life much more comfortable.

• Change air conditioner filters monthly. The owner's manual may specify changing the filters every two to three months, but if the unit sees daily use, a lot more dust, debris and other particles will build up. Swapping the filters regularly will increase the air conditioner's efficiency — and reduce the amount of potential allergens circulating through the house. If your air conditioner is a window unit, clean the filter more often: every two weeks.

• Improve air circulation throughout the house. To maximize an air conditioner's effectiveness and reduce hot and cold spots around the house, make sure a good airflow exists. Proper attic ventilation is a key factor in temperature control; vents installed in the house soffits allow air in and out of the attic (or crawl space), keeping the upper area of the house from getting too hot. Make sure these vents aren't blocked. In the house's living space, consider installing ceiling fans in rooms where air remains stagnant, or place a portable fan a couple feet off the floor to get things moving.

• Be prepared for pleasant evenings. Repair those damaged window or porch screens so that you can open up the house when the sun has gone down and the outdoor air is enjoyable. You'll be able to circulate fresh air throughout the house without having to deal with unwanted guests like mosquitoes and flies. Screen repair kits can be picked up at the local home-improvement store for less than $20, and repairs are relatively easy to make.

• Hydrate! Drink plenty of water on hot days, even when you're inside. Proper hydration helps regulate your body temperature, winter or summer. If you'll be spending the day outside, wear sunscreen, shirtsleeves and a hat. Take frequent breaks to drink water and allow your body get used to the heat. Don't push yourself when working outside. After all, they're not called the lazy days of summer for nothing!

Whether you are in the market for new air conditioning equipment, or wish to gain the most efficiency from your current system, the Northeast Energy Star Appliance and Lighting Initiative has tips to help save money and energy.

This group of local utilities and energy efficiency groups including Massachusetts Electric and NSTAR Electric, has partnered with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Department of Energy (DOE) to promote Energy Star-qualified appliances and lighting, including air conditioners and ceiling fans.

When To Consider An Upgrade

If your cooling system is more than 10 years old, consider upgrading to a new unit that has earned the EPA's Energy Star for high efficiency. Energy Star-qualified room air conditioners and central air conditioners use new technology that uses up to 20 percent less energy than a standard new model. Savings are even greater when replacing a 10-year old unit.

In addition to selecting a model with the Energy Star, consumers should consider equipment sizing and understand how central and room air conditioners are rated in order to make the best choices.

Size Your AC Equipment Correctly

Bigger isn't always better. Air conditioning units that are too large for your home fail to properly dehumidify the space, which reduces comfort and costs more to operate. Proper sizing and installation are essential to maximize system efficiency, which in turn increases your long-term savings and system performance.

To get a central air cooling system that's properly sized, it's important to hire a qualified contractor who uses Manual J or an equivalent size calculation tool. Refrigerant charge levels and air flows across the coils should meet the manufacturer's recommendations.

Visit www.natex.org to find a contractor who is certified by NATE (North American Technician Excellence), the leading industry-supported testing and certification program. By hiring a NATE-certified contractor, you know they are specially trained on how to size and install your system.

Proper sizing is equally as important for a room air conditioner. When determining the appropriate size air conditioner for your home, consider the dimensions of the area to be cooled. Other important factors to consider are room height, local climate, shading and window size. Visit the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers Web site (www.aham.org) for a helpful cooling and load estimate form.

Know Your AC Efficiency Ratings

For room air conditioners, look for the Energy Star label and select the unit with the highest Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER) for greater savings. The EER shows the cooling capacity of the unit compared to the power it uses. While the required cooling capacity depends on the size of the room being cooled, the higher the EER rating, the more efficient the air conditioner. Central air conditioning units are rated on both their Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio (SEER) and EER. The higher the SEER rating, the more efficient the air conditioning system, which provides considerable energy savings over the life of the unit.

Change To Energy Star And Get Cash Back

Residential customers of NSTAR Electric, Massachusetts Electric, Nantucket Electric, Cape Light Compact, Western Massachusetts Electric Company and Utility are eligible for:

• $25 back on the purchase of an eligible Energy Star qualified room air conditioner, valid for purchases made March 1, 2004 to July 31, 2004. For more information call toll-free 1-877-886-2539.

• $15 instant coupon for Energy Star qualified ceiling fans with integrated pin-based light kits, valid for purchases made Jan. 1, 2004 to Dec. 31, 2004. For more information call toll-free 1-800-491-1077.

• Mail-in rebates ranging from $300 to $650 for each Energy Star qualified central air conditioning and air source heat pump system are available through the Massachusetts Cool Smart Program. Restrictions apply. For more information, call toll-free 1-800-473-1105.

Take Firmer Stand Than Supreme Court

Sun Readers Overwhelmingly Vote For 'Under God'

The Supreme Court of the United States has spoken but not as loud as the people of Quincy and its environs.

The high court in Washington ruled, "weakly," some said, that the phrase "under God" should remain in the pledge of allegiance to the flag. But it left still undecided whether the two words made the pledge unconstitutional.

The justices found that Michael Newdow, the California atheist who brought the suit on behalf of his 10 year-old daughter, did not have that right since he did not have custody of the little girl.

But The Quincy Sun's readership of its readers found no such equivocation among the local pols. They voted by the thunderous margin of 125 to 10 to keep "under God" right where it has been for the past 50 years.

The question is bound to come up again and again until a final decision is reached and by that time the Supreme Court of the United States may have heard the message from the people of Quincy.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Vacation Fitness

Vacations are a time for relaxation and fun, which may make fitting in your 30-minute abdominal routine quite challenging, not to mention boring. However, this challenge can be met and conquered through creative thinking and planning.

You've worked hard, and now it's time to play hard. All you have worked toward will not be lost while on vacation. Staying motivated and focused on your workout routine while on vacation is easy if you can develop a plan ahead of time. Here are some suggestions:

• Let your body show what it has learned. Each workout you have completed has taught your heart, bones and muscles to become stronger and more equipped to deal with the activities of everyday life. You may notice that you are able to handle your luggage with ease, rush through the airport without getting winded, or participate in a hike or sightseeing tour that previously would have left you exhausted.

Examples such as these test your body in what you have been teaching it. Although routine activities may not seem like a structured workout, remember that part of becoming fit is allowing what you do in the gym to carry over into your daily life.

• Look for physical activities you can engage in to keep your body moving, such as a biking tour, swimming, canoeing, tennis or even walking on the beach. Allow this time for your body to experience different forms of exercise. You may even find yourself adding activities such as these to your fitness plan when you return home.

• If you want to continue with your current program while away, inquire about a fitness facility at your hotel or resort. Knowing there will be a treadmill waiting for you upon arrival may make for a smooth transition. If there is no fitness facility where you will be staying, ask about ones in the area that you could attend for a guest fee.

So relax, have fun and enjoy that change to your normal schedule. Your body will appreciate it!

Answers To Some Intriguing Questions About Fitness

(NAPS) – When should I exercise? Is skipping breakfast a good way to help me lose weight? How long should I wait after eating before exercising? Should I drink water or a sports drink when exercising?

Christine "CC" Cunningham, MS, ATC/L, CSCS and fitness education manager at Life Fitness, a leading exercise equipment manufacturer, helps answer these intriguing questions.

Q: When is the best time of day to exercise?

A: In terms of fitness benefits, there's no best time of day to exercise. The best time of day to exercise is whenever it's easiest and most convenient for you.

"An afternoon workout may help you avoid the natural energy lull caused by body's rhythm slowing down in the afternoon," said Cunningham. "Exercising in the evening is more desirable because the lungs are more open, body and muscle temperatures are at their highest, and joints and muscles are more flexible. The downside is that some people may feel too tired to work out after a long day. In addition, exercising too close to bedtime can make it harder to fall asleep."

That said, exercising first thing in the morning might give you an extra boost of energy for the day. Starting the day with a workout also might help you stick to your routine because you won't be sidetracked with unexpected distractions or interruptions later in the day.

Q: I've been skipping breakfast because I'm trying to shed a few pounds. Is that a good idea?

A: Although skipping breakfast might seem like an easy way to cut calories and lost weight, research shows most people who lose weight and keep it off do eat breakfast every day.

"Eating breakfast can help you lose weight by jump-starting your metabolism and getting the body to start burning calories earlier in the day," Cunningham says. "In addition, eating breakfast can help eliminate the urge to overeat later in the day."

Good breakfast choices include carbohydrates for quick energy and protein for staying power. Examples include toast with peanut butter, cereal with milk, and yogurt with a banana.

Q: How long should I wait after eating to work out?

A: You know those moms and dads who tell their kids not to jump in the swimming pool until at least half an hour after they've eaten? They're on to something. It is a good idea – especially for adults – to give the body time to digest before starting a workout.

Being properly nourished before exercise helps prevent low blood sugar and provides fuel for the workout, but working out on a full stomach can cause gastrointestinal problems.

"Generally, you should allow adequate time to digest before working out – three to four hours for a large meal and two to three hours for a smaller meal," said Cunningham. You should, however, eat a high-carb snack of 100 to 200 calories approximately 45 minutes to an hour before working out to be sure you have enough energy to complete the workout.

Some good pre-workout snack foods are fruit, wholewheat crackers or bread, yogurt, peanut butter, granola bars and graham crackers.

Q: Should I drink water or a sports drink while working out?

A: Fluids are important before, during and after exercise to prevent dehydration when working out. For most exercisers, water is the best beverage to choose. "Sports drinks are appropriate for higher-intensity workouts that exceed one hour to help replace the salt and potassium that is lost through strenuous exercise," said Cunningham.

Swim Across America Benefits Cancer Research

Swim Across America encourages swimming enthusiasts to dive into Boston Harbor Friday, July 16, to benefit cancer research or to take part in either a one-mile competition or half-mile recreational swim Saturday, July 17, at Nantasket Beach in Hull.

The events are open to both individual and team participation, and feature Olympic swimmers.

The July 16 SAA Boston Harbor Islands Swim, a 22-mile relay, gets under way at Rowes Wharf in downtown Boston at 7 a.m. A minimum fund-raising pledge of $1,500 is required to participate and swimmers must be at least 18 years old.

After initially diving into the harbor with Olympic swim legends, each participant will swim approximately three to five 15-minute sessions throughout the day. Participants should be able to complete a one-mile swim within 30 minutes.

The one-mile competitive ocean swim at Nantasket Beach starts at 9 a.m. with the half-mile swimmers heading into the water at 9:15 a.m. The minimum fund-raising amount is $100 for these events and swimmers must be at least 12 years old.

Swimmers age 21 and over are invited to attend a kick-off party at Parris in Fanueil Hall Thursday, July 15. Swimmers will be treated to dinner, music and a live auction, emceed by Gordon Kluzak, a former Boston Bruin and current NESN sportscaster, to benefit the cause.

All events benefit SAA, a non-profit corporation that supports cancer research at the country's finest hospitals and institutions. Proceeds will go to the David B. Perini Jr. Quality of Life Program at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

The clinic is a multi-disciplinary program that provides medical, educational and psychological services to help survivors of cancer cope with the long-term side effects of their treatments.

They are Drs. Alicja Gupta and Leslie Rigali. Dr. Khang Nguyen of Randolph has also expanded his practice to include an office at The River Bay Club in Quincy.

Physicians in the program have access to the resources in Milton Hospital's Geriatrics Department and Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center's Gerontology Division.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

A REAL KNOCKOUT!

The premature, accidental loss of a child's tooth can be a traumatic experience for parent and child. A knocked-out permanent tooth should be rinsed in salt water, re-inserted in its socket, and held in place on the way to an emergency visit to the dentist. If re-insertion is not possible, place the knocked-out tooth in a cup of cold milk. The dentist can then make a determination if the tooth can be reinserted and stabilized to the surrounding teeth. After seven to ten days, if the tooth heals, it will then require root canal therapy. Unless the tooth is reinserted into the socket within one hour of the accident, however, it is likely that the tooth will be lost.

Have you recently lost a permanent tooth? If you would like further information, or to schedule an appointment, please call us at 617-479-6220. As with any worthwhile investment, after your dental work is completed, continued, regular visits will help ensure your future good dental health. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where comfort, care, and convenience make the difference. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist to assist in easing your dental woes.

P.S. A knocked-out "baby" tooth may not have to be saved, but it will be necessary to maintain the space it left behind so that the underlying permanent tooth has room to erupt.

2-1 Start For Morrisette

LEGION BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Morrisette American Legion baseball team has opened the 2004 campaign by winning two of three games.

Morrisette dropped a close game to Milton, 6-5, Monday night at Adams Field, which followed an 11-0 win over Dorchester, a new team in District 6 East, Sunday and a 5-3 victory over Cohasset in the opener last Friday.

After an off day Tuesday, Morrisette traveled to Weymouth yesterday (Wednesday) for the first of six straight games.

It heads to Canton today (Thursday) at 5:45 p.m., hosts West Roxbury Friday, Weymouth Saturday, Braintree Sunday and squares off against city rival Quincy Monday night at 8.

Against Milton, Morrisette yielded an unearned run in the third inning before pushing across three runs in the bottom half.

With two outs, Steve Sullivan lifted an 0-2 pitch into center field that plated Gary Dalton (single) and Don Cook (infield single). Ray Marchand followed with a single and Joe Priscella reached on an error that allowed Sullivan to score.

Milton scored a pair of runs in the fourth and fifth innings and added another in the sixth to take a 6-3 lead.

No. 3 starter Steve Reardon went six innings, giving up 11 hits but only one earned run as the defense committed four errors behind him.

"I thought Reardon held his own against a good hitting team," said manager Ray Cattaneo.

Morrisette, which missed out on a chance to do some damage in the fifth when it left the bases loaded, chipped away at the deficit with a run in the sixth. John Folino ripped a leadoff triple into right-center field and later scored on a 6-4-3 double play.

After two quick outs in the seventh, Morrisette staged a rally before leaving the tying run on second base. Marchand reached second base on an infield throwing error and scored on Priscella's single to make it 6-5. Brian Sullivan singled to center but the next hitter struck out to end the game.

"We made a few mistakes that cost us," Cattaneo said. "They're supposed to be one of the best teams in the league and we held our own. We almost caught them at the end. We never gave up and that's a good sign. If we keep playing like this, we'll win a few games."

Against Dorchester, Morrisette scored a run in the first inning and erupted for seven in the fourth to blow the game open.

Marchand led off with a double, moved to third on Priscella's one-out single and scored when Reardon reached on an error. After a groundout, Cook lined a two-run double for a 4-0 lead.

Cook stole third and scored when Steve Priscella reached on an error. Folino walked and Steve Sullivan followed with an RBI single. Marchand, up for the second time, stroked a two-run single for an 8-0 advantage.

Morrisette rounded out the scoring in the fifth on Steve Priscella's bases-clearing triple that plated Reardon (single), Liam Powers (single) and Cook (error).

Anthony Boyle, the No. 2 starter, scattered five hits and two walks over six innings for the victory. Jeff Tam pitched the seventh.

In the Cohasset game, staff ace Folino went six innings, allowing two earned runs on six hits while striking out eight. Dalton picked up the save with two strikeouts in the seventh.

Trailing 1-0, Morrisette scored a pair of runs in the third inning on Steve Priscella's RBI triple and Cook's RBI single.

In the fourth, Matt Haskins led off by reaching base on a dropped third strike. After consecutive fielder's choices by Marchand and Reardon, Brandon Ranalli and Powers walked to load the bases. Steve Priscella smacked a two-run single for a 4-2 lead.

Cohasset chipped away with single runs in the fifth and sixth innings to make it 4-3. In the bottom of the sixth, Morrisette scored an insurance run. Powers singled, stole second and reached third on the catcher's errant throw, and scored on a wild pitch.

"We were lucky to win," Cattaneo said. "We made six errors and we didn't hit well. But John Folino pitched a great ballgame. I think it must have been some first-game jitters."

CITIZENS BANK recently distributed 500 new soccer balls and pennants to Quincy Youth Soccer. # Citizens Bank Donates Soccer Balls

Citizens Bank of Massachusetts recently provided Quincy's 5- to 8-year-olds in the Massachusetts Youth Soccer Association with 500 new soccer balls.

The soccer balls are green and white and co-branded with the Quincy Youth Soccer and the Citizens logo.

As part of the initiative, Citizens colleagues at local Quincy branches will serve as "Soccer Ambassadors" and deliver Quincy pennants and post-game refreshments to several Quincy Youth Soccer games throughout the season.

"Citizens Bank believes in giving back to the communities where we do business, and we are particularly proud to sponsor local programs for youth," said Robert E. Smyth, president and CEO of Citizens Bank of Massachusetts.

"Partnering with the Massachusetts Youth Soccer Association has served as a creative and effective way to support hundreds of children and families in Quincy. The local branches and I look forward to a great season."

Quincy Legion Rebounds With Pair

The Quincy American Legion baseball team dropped its first two games of the season last week before rebounding with a pair of wins to even its record.

After the season opener last Wednesday with Weymouth was washed out after three innings, Quincy dropped a 4-3 game to Stoughton last Thursday and was shut out by Canton, 3-0, last Friday.

Its fortunes changed this week when it pulled out an 8-7 win over Cohasset Sunday and cruised to a 14-6 victory over Dorchester Monday.

Quincy, which played Milton Tuesday and Wednesday, will travel to Weymouth Friday and West Roxbury Sunday before taking on cross-town rival Morrisette next Monday night at 8 at Adams Field.

In Monday's game against Dorchester, Dean Sandonato picked up the win as the offense banged out 17 hits for him. Drew Loud continued to swing a hot bat with four hits and three runs scored.

Ian Jorgensen went 3-for-3 with two RBI, including a mammoth ground-rule double that bounced off the sidewalk in deep right-center field and landed on the roof of the skating rink at Dorchester's Garvey Park.

Justin Thorley had three hits, while Andy McAllister, Don Sweeney and Colin Walsh each had a pair. Second baseman John Fitzgerald made two great defensive plays, Tom Conley knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly and Matt Tobin pitched a clean final inning to end the game.

In the Cohasset game Sunday, John Santon earned the win, giving up just three hits in 5 1/3 innings.

Sandonato (two hits) drove in a run with two outs in the first inning and scored when Jorgensen doubled before the Cohasset pitcher committed a costly balk.

Loud led off the third with a line-drive home run to straightaway center field and Sean Sullivan stroked an RBI single for a 4-1 lead.

Quincy seemed to put the game out of reach with four runs in the sixth, all coming with two outs. Paul Copson singled and scored on Jamie Chiocchio's double. Loud hustled to beat out an infield bobble and moved to third on a hit-and-run by McAllister. Sweeney had an RBI single.

Cohasset rallied with five runs in the seventh to give the fans and coaches heart palpitations before reliever Copson struck out the final hitter.

Last Friday against Canton, southpaw Greg Lyons struck out 12 to blank Quincy. Justin Thorley pitched equally well, scattering three hits and striking out six, but three mistakes led to three unearned runs.

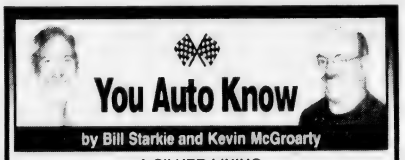
Quincy had several chances but couldn't come up with the clutch hit. In the fourth, Brendan McDonald legged out an infield single, moved to third on Sullivan's double before Lyons fanned the next batter.

Trailing 1-0 in the fifth, Thorley led off with a single and advanced to second when pinch hitter Sweeney laid down a perfect bunt for a hit. After an unsuccessful sacrifice attempt and subsequent strikeout, Loud singled to load the bases.

Unfortunately, Lyons recorded a strikeout and induced a harmless grounder to the mound to end the threat.

In the Stoughton game last Thursday, Quincy battled southpaw Matt Cremins but it couldn't overcome the wildness of its own pitchers which led to all four runs.

Trailing 2-1 in the fifth, Quincy got on the board when Chiocchio (two hits) tripled and scored on Loud's single.



After Stoughton went ahead 3-1, Quincy took advantage of sloppy play to tie the game. McDonald (two hits) beat out an infield hit and Fitzgerald walked. Copson struck out but hustled to first base when the catcher dropped the ball. When the catcher misfired on the throw, McDonald scored. Pinch-runner Sweeney successfully executed a double steal to tie the game at three.

Stoughton scored a gift run in the seven on a hit batter, wild pickoff throw, sacrifice bunt and a two-strike bloop single.

Conley, a 14-year-old catcher, was a bright stop as he was forced into action as a replacement and promptly threw out two runners in his debut. McAllister had two hits.

In the rained-out opener, Santon and Weymouth's Chris McDonough were involved in a pitcher's duel. Neither allowed a hit when the skies opened after three innings to wash out the contest.

Santon, who ended the high school season at Quincy High with a no-hitter, was working a string of 10 straight hitless innings.

A SILVER LINING

The selection of a color for a vehicle is a highly subjective matter. While black, white, red, gray, blue, and green are perennial favorites, some sports-car enthusiasts prefer yellow. Whatever your personal choice of color is, and for whatever reason, New Zealand researchers have found that one color stands out as the safest exterior color. Their study suggests that occupants of silver automobiles have about half the risk of serious injury from crashes compared to white, blue, red, or yellow cars. This finding took into account such factors as age of the driver, gender, alcohol consumption, time of day, and weather. Silver vehicles seem to be more visible than other colors and thus less likely to be involved in collisions.

Whatever your car's color please drive carefully. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO we want you to be informed about everything in your car whether or not your car is leased. Our friendly, professional service staff here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781 843-1550) will gladly answer all your questions. We use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We do make appointments to help you schedule your car's service.

HINT: Never let your newly washed car dry in the sun. It could cause permanent spotting on the finish.

Granite Baseball Hosts Brockton Sunday

The Quincy Granite baseball club returns to O'Rourke Field Sunday to take on the Brockton Angels in Massachusetts Independent Baseball League action.

Quincy opened the second half of the season two weeks ago with a sweep of the South Shore Tigers, 12-2 and 10-2, to improve its record to 7-5 overall.

In game one, Rob Muollo of Dean College made his first start of the season. He pitched all six innings of the slaughter-rule game, allowing just two hits and no earned runs with nine strikeouts and two walks.

"A young, talented college pitcher is what we were seeking," said head coach Jason Riley. "I believe Muollo has filled that spot. He's a good kid and fits well into our program.

Chris Lockhead powered the offense, going 3-for-3 with a home run, double, six RBI and three runs scored. John Fidalgo extended his hitting streak to six games, going 2-for-4 with an RBI and two runs scored.

Rob Celata also belted a homer and Kevin Walsh was hit by a pitch twice and scored both times.

In game two, Celata took the mound and yielded one earned run on three hits while punching out 10 and walking one in seven innings.

Celata played for Quincy in 2001, posting a 4-1 record with a 2.72 ERA and 74 strikeouts.

"Rob's where he should be, playing ball and having fun," Riley said. "He's showing tremendous control in his pitching. He's shown true dedication and we are glad he's back."

The rosters have been finalized as Quincy makes a run for a championship over the second half of the season. The pitching staff includes Muollo, Celata, Brian Deptula and Sean McLean, with Fidalgo behind the plate.

First base will be filled by a pitcher who's not starting. Matt Graham is at second, Josh Echelle at third, Lockhead at shortstop, Joe Flynn in left field, Walsh in center and Mike Keddy in right. Utility players are Eric Ricupero, Kris Ricupero and Mike Mulvey.

Registration Starts June 23

Mini-Fenway Park, Nike Sponsoring Baseball, Softball Camps

Mini-Fenway Park, Inc., which plans to build a smaller replica of the Red Sox home ball park in West Quincy, is joining Nike in sponsoring baseball and softball camps for youngsters this summer.

Ron Iacobucci, CEO of Mini-Fenway Park, Inc., announced that his group has formed a partnership with Nike/US Sports Camps to hold the camps in Randolph and Milton starting July 12.

The locations are the Oberlander Baseball Complex in Randolph and the Houghton's Pond Softball Complex in Milton where weekly sessions will be held for boys ages 8-12 and girls ages 8-17.

Each camper will be treated to guest lectures and instruction from Boston Red Sox legends and from former All-American Girls Professional Baseball Stars.

"We are very excited to team up with everyone from Mini-Fenway Park for this summer's camps," said Mike de Surville, vice president of US Sports Camps.

"We are confident that through their expertise and quality staff, these camps will be recognized as the premier baseball and softball day camp training offerings for young ballplayers in Massachusetts."

"The Mini-Fenway Park organization values the opportunity to partner with one of the giants in sports equipment," said Iacobucci.

"Executing our vision to build a half-sized replica of Boston's Fenway Park and launch kids' ball programs will benefit greatly from the brand recognition Nike brings to the table."

The cost per camper for each one week session of the camp is $195. Players, parents, coaches and other interested parties should call 1-800-NIKE CAMP or visit www.USSportsCamps.com.

For their tuition, campers get not only guest lecturers but instruction and counselling from college players, an evening at Fenway Park for campers and parents, and a Nike Camp Workbook, T-shirt and prizes.

Directing the camps and their programs will be Tony Minor, a former player in the Cleveland Indians organization, and Luis Tiant Jr., son of the former Red Sox pitching star.

Minor is now the owner and director of baseball for Batter Up Baseball in Savannah, Ga., and Tiant coached at Savannah College and has served as coordinator for Savannah Chain Baseball Youth Camps and Clinics.

Nike baseball and softball camps have been in business for 29 years, during which time they have provided the tools to improve and enjoy a sport for life to nearly 400,000 campers.

Mini-Fenway Park will be located on 12 acres if MDC land in the foothills of the Blue Hills Reservation in Quincy. When it is finished, Nike baseball and softball camps will move there.

Members of the Mini-Fenway Park board of directors include former Red Sox players Carl Yastrzemski and Luis Tiant; Ted Spencer, curator of the Baseball Hall of Fame; and Mary Pratt, formerly with the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Things that usually come easily and quickly for the Aries Lamb might need more of your time and attention during the next several days. Try to be patient as you work things out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A changing situation can create some complications. But if you apply that sensible Bovine mind to what seems to be a hopeless tangle of confusion, you'll soon sort things out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Creating a new look for your surroundings is fun. Expect to hear mostly positive comments on your efforts, as well as some well-intended suggestions you might want to note.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Maybe you'd rather do anything else than what you're "stuck with" right now. But if you stop complaining, you might see how this could lead to something with real potential.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Even a proud Leo ultimately recovers from hurt feelings. However, a damaged relationship might never heal unless you're willing to spend more time and effort trying to work things out.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) There are lots of changes on the horizon, so be prepared to make some adjustments in your usually fine-tuned life. One change might even impact a personal decision you've been putting off.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Being the dependable person you are could work in your favor for a project that requires both skill and accountability. But check this out carefully. There could be a hidden downside.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A temperamental outburst about a mishandled project causes some fallout. Be sure to couple an apology with an explanation. A new opportunity beckons by week's end.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Changing horses midstream is usually unwise but sometimes necessary. Examine your options carefully before making a decision. A trusted colleague offers good advice.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While much of your time is involved with business matters, fun-time opportunities open up by week's end. Enjoy yourself, but be careful that you don't overspend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A "revelation" opens your eyes to what is really going on in the workplace. What you learn could make a difference in your career path. Continue to be alert for more news.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Not wanting to make waves might be the safest way to deal with a difficult situation. But no substantive changes can be made unless you share your assessments with others.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of talking to people that makes them want to listen. You could find a successful career in politics.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We learn the words to the "Pledge of Allegiance" early in our lives. Yet many Americans do not know the history of the heritage of our flag. They are unaware that the first Flag Day was in 1777. On June 14 of that year, the Continental Congress passed a resolution, legally establishing the "stars and stripes." As a young nation, our new flag proved to be a symbol of strength and victory. We all link the name of Francis Scott Key and the then poem "The Star Spangled Banner." Key was held prisoner aboard a British man-of-war in Baltimore harbor during the War of 1812. The British were confident they would capture the Fort before sunrise. All through the night with the "rockets red glare" and bursting bombs the stars and stripes held fast. The Americans had been victorious.

In some cases, one flag can have many histories. Did you know that the same flag that flew over the U.S. Capitol in Washington on Dec. 7, 1941, at the beginning of World War II, was also flown from the mast of the USS Missouri during the final Japanese surrender on Sept. 2, 1945?

Let us on June 14 take time to remember our flag and be proud of what it represents to all of us. . .

Police Marine Unit Refits Boat With New Motors

The Quincy Police Department's Marine Unit recently refitted its 25-foot Parker boat with two new outboard motors courtesy of a $40,000 grant from the Copeland Family Foundation.

The new motors are state-of-the-art, Mercury Saltwater Series 225 horsepower four-stroke outboards, and they will make the 10-year old boat more fuel efficient and environmentally friendly, according to Jim Silcox, police officer with the Marine Unit.

"These new motors will save the city thousands of dollars in fuel costs each year," he said. "The difference in fuel has been extraordinary since we refitted the boat."

Silcox said the 25-footer can navigate through shallow water and reach a top speed of 45 miles per hour. But the boat also patrols the entire 27 miles of Quincy's coastline, he said.

"During these times of uncertainty in the world and the ever-present threat of terrorism, it is important that the Marine Unit be supplied with the most up-to-date equipment," said Officer Jack Keenan, another member of the unit. Officer James Flaherty also is a member of the Police Marine Unit.

Members of the Marine Unit recently participated in a US Coast Guard seminar dealing with water evacuation of civilians during an emergency.

Silcox also said there is a possibility that the Quincy Police Marine Unit will help with security during the Democratic National Convention in July.

Council Cuts $2.8M, Phelan Hits Back

IT WAS standing-room-only in the city council chamber Monday night during a public hearing on the city's fiscal 2005 budget. After the hearing, the city council voted to cut $2.8 million from the mayor's spending plan.

Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Noble

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

After hearing the pleas of frustrated taxpayers, the city council took the extraordinary step of slashing $2.8 million from Mayor William Phelan's proposed 2005 budget, prompting the mayor to vow he would make "tough decisions" regarding possible layoffs and cuts in services.

At Monday night's meeting, the council voted 8-1 to carve out $2.8 million from the mayor's $213.1 million budget for fiscal 2005. As a result, the spending package has been reduced to approximately $210.3 million. The council's vote followed an emotional public hearing where many residents pleaded with city officials to curtail spending.

Even with the cuts, the budget will increase by $5.7 million over fiscal 2004.

Most councillors agreed that the unprecedented action was initiated by complaints from taxpayers who have been saddled with large property tax increases over the past few years. In fiscal 2004, homeowners saw an average increase of 18 per-

Vehicle Repair Merger Rejected

By a unanimous vote, the city council Monday night defeated Mayor William Phelan's plan to merge some of the city's vehicle repair departments.

The mayor's plan would have consolidated some of the city's vehicle maintenance departments to come under the direction of the Parks and Recreation Department.

But most councillors agreed that the city should iron out the issue at the collective bargaining table before introducing any type of merger. In addition, councillors said the mayor should have introduced the plan months ago so they could study it prior to budget hearings.

Councillor Joseph Finn, chairman of the Public Works Committee, criticized the administration for not offering the plan in a timely manner.

"It's a kind of smoke-and-mirrors approach to the budget," he said.

Thomas Largey, the mayor's executive secretary, said the administration offered the consolidation plan as a good faith effort to save approximately $82,000.

"Perhaps the timing could have been better," said Largey.

About 20 members of the city's laborers' union attended the meeting to protest the mayor's plan.

The council cut the entire vehicle maintenance budget as it was arranged under the mayor's proposal and restored it to its former plan as a supplemental funding item.

Summer Yardwaste Schedule Starts July 6

The city's curbside yardwaste collection for July, August and September will be every other week, from July 6 through Oct. 1, announces the Department of Public Works.

Friday, June 25, will be the last day of weekly curbside yardwaste collection. Weekly curbside collection will resume Oct. 12 and continue through Nov. 27. Holiday weeks are on a one-day delay schedule. All yardwaste will be collected by BFI.

Quincy residents should place their yardwaste curbside by 6:30 a.m. on their regularly scheduled trash collection day. They should place their leaves, grass clippings and small twigs in brown paper yardwaste bags (no plastic bags), open boxes or open barrels. Any yardwaste placed in plastic bags or covered barrels will not be collected. Yardwaste should be set apart from regular trash.

Tree branches should be cut into three-foot lengths and tied with string or rope. Larger brush and tree limbs can be dropped off at the city's Public Works Recycling Center at 55 Sea St., Mondays through Fridays from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m., and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon.

All yardwaste materials that are collected are taken to the DPW yard where they are composted over a nine-month period. The brush is processed through a tub grinder to create a product for re-use. The compost from Quincy residents' leaves and grass clippings is processed and used on many city owned properties.

For missed pick-ups, call BFI at 617-471-7900.

Most Support Spending Cuts

Residents Rail Against Tax Increases

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Their voices were heard, loud and clear.

During a public hearing Monday night, the city council received an earful from residents who expressed frustration with property tax and spending increases.

At the request of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, a public hearing was held to give residents a chance to sound off on Mayor William Phelan's proposed budget for fiscal 2005. Emotions ran high as most residents urged city officials to curtail spending and limit tax increases.

"With this budget, who is being asked to sacrifice?" asked Quincy resident Edward Melia. "Not one person in this city government is sacrificing one dime. Where is the political courage?"

Roy Johnson said residents were "crying for sacrifices."

"The spending increases are going to be on the backs of the taxpayers," he said.

Quincy Taxpayers' Association (QTA) President Alan Cousin praised the council for what he perceived as "some steps in the right direction," but urged them to slash the budget roughly $5 million.

"The taxpayers pay you to make the necessary cuts," he told the council.

But Jerry Frawley saw it another way, saying taxpayers get quite a lot in return for their tax dollars.

"I am very happy living in this city," said Frawley. "People want to live in this city. If we start cutting millions of dollars from the budget there will be layoffs."

Robert Haley, QTA vice president, said the average homeowner has sustained a 45 percent increase in property taxes over the past four years.

"Can any of the councillors look me in the eye and tell me that this has been fair to the taxpayers, especially the taxpayers who live on a fixed income?" he asked. "The city council is directly responsible for approving the budget. Anything less than a multi-million dollar budget cut will not address the needs of the Quincy taxpayers."

Tim McAloon disagreed, saying the city provides excellent services for its residents. "The real issue is what is the practical effect," he told the council during the two-hour hearing. "If the cuts affect our public safety, is that in the best interests of the city?"

Carol Fisher said she was "disappointed and frustrated" with the budget process.

"Cut $5 million, bottom line," she said. "Let the department heads do their jobs. We said no more taxes. The mayor did us wrong – he's not listening to the people."

Meeting To Address Construction At 435 Hancock St., 118 Holmes St.

There will be a community meeting on Tuesday, June 29 at 7 p.m. at 25 Haywood St., 1st floor, at the corner of Hayward and Holmes Sts., to address a plan to convert the Hayward-Hancock St. building to mixed residential/retail use.

Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner is sponsoring the meeting.

The petitioner, Hayward-Hancock Street Associates, LLC of 575 Tremont St., Boston is proposing to convert the building into a three-story, 76,290 square foot building. This building would contain 54 loft residential units with 10,100 square feet of retail space on Hancock St.

Four buildings on the site will be razed to accommodate 25 parking spaces, with an additional 99 spaces located within the existing lot on Holmes St.

The second building located on 118 Holmes St. would be converted to a 20 loft residential building by adding two stories to the existing building with 16 underground parking spaces.

The Zoning Board of Appeals will also conduct an open public meeting on this proposal on July 13 at 7:15 pm. In the 2nd floor council chamber of City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

$7 Million Overhaul For Wollaston Beach

Residents, visitors and beachgoers are one step closer to seeing a $7 million overhaul of Wollaston Beach and Quincy Shore Drive after Gov. Mitt Romney's administration proposed spending additional funds for capital improvements across the state.

Details of the $7 million improvement plan were released Saturday during a kick off ceremony marking the opening of the state's urban beaches. The funds for the Wollaston Beach project are part of a $254 million capital improvement plan, which includes upgrades to roads, bridges and renovations to state recreation facilities such as parks, swimming pools and beaches.

Romney also set aside an additional $100 million for local aid to cities and towns due to the state's $500 million budget surplus for fiscal 2004. The state Legislature must sign off on the plan before it can become a reality.

"Visitors to Wollaston and residents of this community will see a world of difference if we're able to move forward with these improvements," said Katherine Abbott, commissioner of the state Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR). The required permits are in place and the agency can bid the project if funding is approved by the Legislature, she said.

Some of the proposed changes to Wollaston Beach/Quincy Shore Drive include: traffic signal changes to slow down motor vehicles, a tot lot for children, widening of beach walkways, water fountains, outdoor showers, shade shelters and bike racks. Landscaping improvements and replacement of benches are also on the agenda.

"I am happy that the governor recognized this as a priority," said Sen. Michael Morrissey. Work could begin on the project as early as the fall, he said.

"Is it too late for me to refinance?"
(The surprising answer? Probably not!)

If you just go by what you hear or read in the mainstream media, you might think that the refinancing "window" has slammed shut. But that's a simplification that's simply not true. Here are the facts: Mortgage rates are still bouncing around near 50-year lows. So if you want to refinance for whatever reason – to be mortgage-free before you retire, to pay for tuition, to consolidate other loans and debts or just to lock in a low rate before the window does close – you still have time. But possibly not much. So don't wait. Come see us or call 617-471-0750.

Some additional facts: Annual Percentage Rate (APR) applies to 1-2 family owner-occupied homes and assumes a maximum 80% loan-to-value and first mortgage position. A 15-Year loan would be repaid in 180 equal monthly payments of $8.17 per $1000 borrowed. This rate is effective as of 06/02/04 and may vary by property type, loan amount, credit-worthiness and loan-to-value ratio. Other rates & terms are available, including 10-Year and 20-Year loans. # Those Good Old Days

Tom Galvin's "Scenes From Yesterday" is a weekly nostalgic treat for many Quincy Sun readers, bringing back fond memories of those "good old days."

One such reader is Norma (Marshall) Sepulveda, formerly of Wollaston now living in Santa Ana, CA, where she receives The Sun by mail.

GALVIN

Norma, who lived in Wollaston from 1934 to 1948 recently emailed Galvin:

"I am looking at your recent scene of Hancock Street in Norfolk Downs from Billings Rd. I must have walked that stretch of road many times to North Quincy High School.

"My memories of growing up in Wollaston are fond and I try to relate my upbringing to my children and grandchildren. These scenes help me to tell them about those wonderful years. Our younger generation has no idea what they are missing. Keep up the good work of showing off our wonderful city."

Interestingly, though she left here 56 years ago, Quincy to her is still "our wonderful city." As they say, once a Quincyite, always a Quincyite.

Norma also sent along to Galvin a copy of reflections in rhyme entitled "50 Years Ago," the author believed to by anonymous.

It's about life in the 50's, a life quite simple compared to today's gadgets and pace.

You might like a few excerpts:

A little house with two bedrooms and one car on the street. A mower that you had to push, to make the grass look neat.

In the kitchen on the wall, we only had one phone. And no need for recording things — someone was always home.

We only had one TV set and channels — maybe two. But always there was one of them, with something worth the view.

Weekends were for family trips, or staying home to play. We all did things together, even go to church to pray. When we did our weekend trips, depending on the weather, no one stayed at home because we liked to be together.

Sometimes we would separate, to do things on our own. But we knew where the others were, without our own cell phone.

Then there were the picnics, at the peak of summer season. Pack a lunch and find some trees — and never need a reason.

Get a baseball game together, with the friends you know. Have real action playing ball — and no game video.

Remember when the doctor used to be the family friend. And didn't need insurance — or a lawyer to defend.

Remember when the country was united under God. And prayer in schools and public places was not deemed as odd.

Remember when we breathed the air, it smelled so fresh and clean. And chemicals were not used on the grass to keep it green.

The milkman and the bread man used to go from door to door. And it was just a few cents more, than going to the store.

There was a time when mailed letters came right to your door, without a lot of junk mail ads, sent out by every store. The mailman knew each house by name and knew where it was sent. There was not loads of mail addressed to "Present Occupant."

Remember when the words "I do" meant that you really did. And not just temporarily till someone blows their lid. There was no "no one's fault;" we just made a mistake. There was a time when married life was built on give and take.

There was a time when just one glance was all that it would take. And you would know the kind of car, the model and the make.

One time the music that you played, whenever you would jive, was from a vinyl, big holed record called a forty-five. The record player had a post, to keep them all in line. And then the records would drop down and play, one at a time.

O, sure we had our problems then — just like we do today. And always we were striving — trying for a better day. And every year that passed us by, brought new and greater things. We now can even program phones with music or with rings.

Oh, the simple life we lived still seems like so much fun. How can you explain a game — just kick the can and run. And why would boys put baseball cards between bicycle spokes? And for a nickel, red machines had little bottled cokes.

This life seemed so much easier — and slower in some ways. I love the new technology but I sure miss those days.

So time moves on and so do we — and nothing stays the same. But I sure love to reminisce, and walk down memory lane.

THERE WAS A touching symbol at the Memorial Service for President Ronald Reagan at Union Congregational Church in Wollaston.

Rev. John Swanson, pastor, had a tattered and torn American flag, one that was due to be properly disposed of, placed at the altar during the service.

SWANSON

It symbolized, he said, "as the old flag is torn, our nation's heart is also torn at the passing of one of the greatest Presidents of the modern era."

Rev. Swanson said the flag and a photo of it at the alter will be sent to the Reagan Library in California.

AND, A NOTE from Edith Cole, a long-time School Department secretary now retired:

TED

"The Sun (June 10) eulogizing Ted DeCristofaro was just right and the comments well deserved.

"I especially enjoyed your commentary regarding Quincy Point Junior High School. I loved working there as secretary to the principal and remember you, Peter Kanavos, Bill Dana, Bob Petzoldt and many others.

How about naming the new bridge linking Weymouth and Quincy Point the "Ted DeCristofaro Bridge? No one was more devoted to Quincy Point than our beloved Ted."

OUR BUILDING ISN'T quite the same anymore. Joan Kirby, a popular figure here for 48 years, has retired.

Joan served as secretary in the offices of three attorneys, beginning with Mel Thorner in 1956, then with Ed Joyce and Tom Barron, present occupant.

Joan remembers some of the other lawyers who had offices in the buildings. Among them: Russell Bates, a Norfolk County Commissioner who ran unsuccessfully for mayor in 1935; Bill Ellis, who was elected Ward 6 councillor and became city council president; Maurice Maher and Paul Carosi.

Happy retirement!

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1909 POSTCARD is a view of the large Wollaston estate of former Mayor Charles M. Bryant. With over three acres of land, the property was surrounded by Waterson and Wollaston Avenues, Fenno Street and what is now Greene Street. It was planted with many large imported trees and included a one-acre skating pond. A ninety-foot drive led to the 15-room main house that included everything from a music room and butler's pantry to a wine cellar and a solarium. Several other outbuildings, including a large stable for the horses, were in the rear. Bryant's success came from being the treasurer of a large Boston paper company. He kept his yacht at the Squantum Yacht Club where he served as commodore for many years. He also found time to serve his beloved city: first he was a ward councillor for eight years, mayor from 1902-1904 and then he was an at-large councillor for four years after being mayor. Over that time he was elected council president for five one-year terms. Bryant died of pneumonia in 1916 at the relatively young age of 58 in the early stages of the great influenza epidemic. The property that was his estate has been subdivided a number of times over the years and several smaller houses and apartment buildings presently surround the house shown here. # Quincy Food Pantries, Churches And Shelters Grateful For Letter Carrier Food Drive

The Quincy food pantries, churches and shelters say thank you to everyone who made the May 8 annual Letter Carrier Food Drive an incredible success.

We want to thank the letter carriers, the people of Quincy who donated food and the volunteers who came together to sort and distribute the food to emergency food agencies in Quincy. In one day, over 30,000 pounds of food was donated, collected, organized and distributed. That's 15 tons!

Last December, Project Bread released a hunger report describing the food need in Quincy. In response, the mayor's office and the Quincy Crisis Center worked with Quincy's letter carriers to conduct a special food drive.

Quincy's emergency food agencies were thrilled with the success of that event and encouraged the same groups to coordinate the sorting and distribution of the food from the larger annual Letter Carrier Food Drive.

Over 80 volunteers from across the city worked together from before noon and into the evening at the DPW building on Sea Street. Over 400 hundred hours of labor were donated! Thank you to every volunteer, especially to those who were there the whole time! We really appreciate all your hard work and for the giving of your time, especially on a Saturday, to help others.

The agencies receiving food say thank you to the letter carriers for organizing, promoting and conducting this event. We appreciate the "extra duty" you do on this day because not only did you lighten your letter bag by distributing the mail, but you filled it up again with the donated food. Collectively, you carried 15 tons of food back to the post office. We appreciate all the extra hard work you did and for doing it with such positive attitudes and with smiling faces. Thank you, letter carriers!

Thank you Quincy residents for responding so generously in the giving of food. Your individual gifts of a few cans or boxes added up as the whole city got involved. The donations you made make it possible for many individuals and families to have meals on their tables and food in the cupboards.

Special thanks goes to Mayor William Phelan and to the city employees for letting us use the DPW building and for volunteering. To everyone who participated — letter carriers, Quincy residents, city employees and volunteers — thank you for responding to the call. You gave of yourself to help our neighbors in need, and on their behalf we again say "thank you." Together you made it happen.

With our sincerest thanks,

Thank you to Waterworks at Marina Bay for allowing us to use and enjoy their great facilities. In addition, thank you to Outback Steakhouse for providing a delicious buffet despite the rain and wind. A special thank you to the Bubb Band for entertaining all the brave wet walkers with their awesome tunes.

Chief Urges Jail For Auto Thieves

This Week
1958
46 Years Ago

Quincy Police Chief William Ferrazzi urged mandatory jail sentences and license suspensions for youthful automobile thieves as the best way to curb the "dangerous practice of joy-riding."

Ferrazzi complained the law enforcement officials, the courts and the public were much too tolerant of teenagers who steal cars just for the fun of it.

"Car theft usually becomes the first step in a criminal career," he said. "I feel we should try another approach to eliminate the germ of this disease."

OLD COLONY SERVICE ENDS

Federal Judge Robert P. Anderson in New Haven, Conn., gave the New Haven Railroad permission to discontinue passenger service on its Old Colony Division on July 8, ending commuter service for 10,000.

"Losses incurred by the New Haven Railroad in operating Old Colony passenger service have been in excess of $1 million a year and in 1957 approximately $2 million," said the judge.

"There is no reason to believe they won't continue to lose money."

CITY RAISES ASKED

Petitions were circulated asking 10 percent wage increases for some 1,800 city employees, a move that Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said would cost the city $600,000 or about $4 on the tax rate.

The Job Evaluation Committee, appointed in 1957, had recommended 5 percent wage hikes in January but the mayor rejected the proposal on grounds the city could not afford the money.

MISTAKEN LANDING

A commercial pilot from Chester, PA, mistook the runway at the former Squantum Naval Air Station for Logan Airport and landed his twin-engine Cessna there with three passengers.

"I'm embarrassed," said John W. Kandravic.

Clam Stuffed Pork Chops

When my husband brought home some center cut pork chops, it was raining, cool and bleak outside. So I decided to stuff them for a change. But not with the usual stuffing.

I had a can of minced clams on the shelf and decided to get creative and make a different kind of dressing. It was easy, and turned out pretty delicious. My other food critic, our son Dom also gave his approval.

Clam stuffed pork chops
1 stalk celery (minced)
1 small onion (minced)
1/2 cup spinach (ucooked)
1 can minced clams (Or fresh minced)
3 tablespoons or so of stuffing mix
1/4 cup white wine (optional)
salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons oil

In the hot oil, sauté the celery and onion together until translucent. Add the spinach, wine, the clams with the liquid and cook until blended. Add the stuffing mix and cook uncovered until stuffing is dry enough to place on the chop. You know the routine.. if too dry, add a smidgen of water, if too moist, add a smidgen more of the stuffing mix. You could also use at this point, either plain or seasoned bread crumbs if need be instead of the stuffing mix.

Season the chops with salt and pepper. In a slightly greased baking pan, put the chops with a little water on the bottom of the pan. Place the stuffing on top of each chop and cook covered in a 350 oven for about 20 minutes, and then uncovered for about 10 minutes.

Check to see if chops are done. If they are thick, they may take a little longer. I served brown rice cooked in a chicken stock instead of water, and added the spinach left over from the stuffing. (I found that the use of spinach creates a moister stuffing.)

Council Cuts $2.8M, Phelan Hits Back

-cent in their property taxes.

After more than 25 hours of budget deliberations in the finance committee, Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi proposed an across-the-board spending reduction of one percent, or $2.1 million. Coupled with nearly $700,000 in previous cuts, the entire spending package was reduced by $2.8 million.

Phelan said the council "shirked" its responsibility by cutting the budget without identifying specific areas to slash.

"It's not a vote you will read about in 'profiles in courage,'" Phelan said after the vote. "The council did something that historically has never been done before. I will take up that responsibility willingly. I love a challenge and this will be a challenge. We are going to make those tough decisions."

At the meeting, Thomas Largey, the mayor's executive secretary, predicted dire consequences and described the council's move as "drastic."

"It's drastic to those folks who are going to be laid off and those people who want to have the services they are used to," said Largey.

But Raymondi said it was well within the council's authority to offer an across-the-board spending reduction.

"Enough is enough - the taxpayers just can't stand this anymore," said Raymondi. "This is part of a fiscal plan that is homeowner-friendly. It is a reduction in the amount of increase in spending, it is not a cut."

Raymondi said the council and mayor must still support increasing the city's tax classification in order to solidify lower property tax increases.

Council President Frank McCauley, who has been involved in city politics for 40 years, said he could not recall such a move by the city council. He warned Ward councillors that there might be "some rough times ahead."

"In my day, I cannot remember that kind of money being cut," said McCauley. "The ball is in the mayor's court and we need direction from him. He's got to trim it back."

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro favored the spending cuts although he admitted the vote would have "consequences."

"Make no mistake, this is significant," said Gutro. "But tough times require tough decisions."

Councillor John Keenan, the lone dissenter, called Raymondi's move "fiscally imprudent" and questioned why the council could not find the additional cuts during 25 hours of budget deliberations.

"I think this is an easy fix," said Keenan. "It makes a mockery of the process we went through. I don't think this is fiscally conservative – I think it's fiscally imprudent."

But Councillor Joseph Finn suggested the cuts didn't go far enough. "It's hard for me to believe that this is a big chore," said Finn. "I think it's a rather conservative cut."

Alan Cousin, president of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, said the organization should take some credit for influencing the council's actions.

"Considering the council has never done anything like this before I would call it a milestone," said Cousin. "I think the public hearing and the representation by the Quincy Taxpayers' Association had a big impact on whether the cuts would pass. But keep in mind, the budget is still larger than last year."

Last week, the finance committee left intact the city's school, fire and police budgets.

Two weeks ago, the committee slashed about $220,000 from the DPW's $36 million spending plan. Included in the cuts were a part-time mail clerk and a $100,000 allocation to repair a water tank.

Committee members also cut approximately $200,000 from the line item involving Judgments, Losses and Claims for land in the Marina Bay area. The funds will be made up in the bond issue for open space, according to councillors.

The committee also level-funded the salary of the newly hired head of a reorganized buildings and construction department, Michael Ryan. The DPW budget called for an $18,000 salary increase, but the council voted to keep it at $68,000.

Committee members left the park department's budget virtually untouched. The committee also cut out the $45,000 salary of the city's labor attorney.

Phelan's proposal to hire a Chief Financial Officer (CFO) was denied by the committee.

Houghs Neck Congregational 110th Anniversary July 24

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Hough's Neck Congregational Church, 300 Manet Ave., will hold their 110th anniversary Saturday July 24.

The License Board at Tuesday's meeting issued a one day permit to Gayle Mackay, a member of the church.

Mackay said the festivities will begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m. She requested that part of the street be closed from the corner of Sea and Manet behind the Atherton Hough School to the edge of the church property. The board voted in favor of the closing.

A barbecue will be provided by Outback Steak House.

A request to display a banner on the corner of Sea Street and Babcock St. was also approved. Jay Duca, director of inspectional services asked Mackay to contact his office, and said the Department of Public Works would ultimately hang the banner.

Acting Chairman Drew Scheele was concerned about the cleanup following the event. Mackay said Outback would take care of the clean-up initially and then members of the church would also participate at the closing of the event.

Mackay said the festivities would also include games and races for the children.

In the event of rain Mackay, who said that since the actual anniversary is July 24, it will take place in the church.

Agnitti Honored For Tenure As S.S. Chamber Chairman

More than 500 people recently honored outgoing South Shore Chamber of Commerce Chairman Anthony Agnitti, of Agnitti Insurance Agency, for his dedication and effort on behalf of the Chamber.

Among those in attendance to honor Agnitti were Sen. Edward Kennedy and Rep. William Delahunt.

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has more than 2,000 member business organizations and is one of the largest in the suburban chambers.

During Agnitti's tenure as chairman, the chamber received the five-star rating, becoming the first chamber in the nation to receive such a status from the national chamber.

Other hurdles cleared included changes to the restoration of the Greenbush line and number legislative and transportation initiatives passed for the betterment of the South Shore.

During the presentation, Agnitti praised the Chamber's staff and the many volunteers for their accomplishments. He singled out Ron Zooleck, CEO of the Chamber, and Terry Fancher of Braintree, for 18 years of work on the Greenbush Commuter Rail, as well as the Chamber staff.

"The credit belongs to the business owners who volunteer for the Chamber, hence for the well-being of the community and the chamber staff and their ability to work through many issues," said Agnitti.

Ron Cogliano, in charge of Community Development, said Agnitti was always willing to meet problems head-on.

"Tony was always ready with a smile and a handshake to bring in the right people to get the job done," said Cogliano. "He continuously gives co-workers recognition for their work and is great to work with."

Agnitti received commendations from the US Congress as well as the state Senate, facilitated by Delahunt and state Sen. Michael Morrissey. Agnitti also received letters from Sen. Kennedy, Sen. Kerry, Congressman Stephen Lynch and an autographed photo from President George W. Bush.

Agnitti praised his parents, Armando and Gina Agnitti, sister Lisa Reid and brother Larry Agnitti, his wife Marietta, their two sons, Armando and Anthony, as well as his office staff, Lisa Venier and Kathy DiGiusto, for their support, stating, "Without their support I would not be able to work to make our community stronger."

Ayers Candidate For 4th State Rep. Term

State Representative Bruce Ayers (D-Quincy and Randolph) announced his reelection for the First Norfolk District at a fundraiser/reception at Raffael's Restaurant in North Quincy.

Ayers urged that, despite the fiscal realities of the state's economy, he has been able to deliver the necessary funds for city and town services of Quincy and Randolph including many capital improvements such as the recent $7 million renovations to Wollaston Beach, $3 million toward Wollaston train station becoming handicapped accessible, $1.5 million to preserve open space in Randolph, extra state police patrols for the safety of the district and many other quality of life decisions. He noted he is known for being accessible and keeping his constituents informed of the many issues throughout the district.

BRUCE AYERS

Ayers served eight years on the Quincy City Council, during which time he advocated for education, public safety and fiscal responsibility. Ayers also owns a business that modifies vehicles for the physically challenged, where he learned the importance of advocating for those in need while working within budgetary needs.

Ayers said that with rising health care costs throughout Massachusetts and the country, he founded the Quincy Helping Hand Program in 1991. This program provides free, durable medical equipment to seniors, veterans and others who may not be able to afford this type of equipment. He is involved with fraternal and veterans organizations including the Quincy Lodge of Elks as their scholarship chairman.

Also during his announcement, Ayers presented Elio Ricci of Raffael's — which is closing at the end of the month and has relocate in Hull — a State House citation in recognition of its 17 years of successful business in the city of Quincy.

Ayers is running for a fourth term at the State House. Anyone interested in learning more about Ayers or participating in his campaign is invited to contact him at 617-472-9877.

Quincy Foster Grandparents Recognized As King, Queen

Yasha Khibkin of Quincy, a native of Uzbekistan who used to teach physics and astronomy in his homeland, was crowned King of the Foster Grandparents at the 38th annual recognition luncheon of Boston's Foster Grandparent Program.

At the same time, Frances "Fran" Johnson, also of Quincy, who grew bored from doing housework, reading and watching soap operas on TV, was designated Queen of the Foster Grandparents.

Khibkin was the first and Johnson the second foster grandparent to be recruited in Quincy in 1999.

Khibkin has combined his unique background with his recently acquired English skills to spend 20 hours a week helping children in the Broadmeadows After-School Program understand their homework and learn to play chess.

Johnson spends her time helping preschool children put puzzles together and building block cities. The past five years at the Amelio Della Chiesa Center, she said, has made her "a little more outgoing and not as shy as before."

The Quincy Department of Elder Services Transportation Division received the "Friend of Foster Grandparents Award in recognition for its "outstanding support through the ongoing transportation of Quincy Foster Grandparents."

Central Middle School Scores High In Talent

More than 50 students out of 85 who qualified from Quincy's Central Middle School participated in a January national academic talent search organized by the Johns Hopkins University Center for Talented Youth (CTY).

CTY identifies the nation's top academic seventh and eighth grade students based on SAT (Standard Achievement Test) results, the college entry examination.

The student qualified to participate in SAT testing because they scored at the 97 percentile on a standardized test as sixth graders. More than 78,000 took part in the CTY 2004 talent search.

Those students who achieved above a 600 score on either the verbal or math sections during the SAT exam received a special state award in ceremonies recently at Suffolk University.

They were Lisa M. Donaghue, Christopher Eng, James E. Leong, Rebecca M. Malas, Alexandra E. Nee, John R. Storella-Mullin, Zenab R. Tavakoli and Jonathan V. Truong.

"We want these bright children to have their day in the limelight for their academic talent and to celebrate their abilities just as we celebrate excellence in athletics or the performing arts," said Dr. Lea Ybarra, executive director of CTY.

Do's And Don't For Do-It-Yourself Deck Builders

(NAPS) — Afraid that you're doomed to be deckless? You're not alone. According to the "Build With Skil" survey, more than 66 percent of Americans think deck building is difficult.

Mr. Fix-It, Lou Manfredini, has deck building do's and don't to help DIYers get decked out this summer.

DO'S

Do your homework

• Talk to homeowners whose yards feature decks you desire and similar dimensions.

• Visit Web site, such as BuildWithSkil.com, that have deck design capabilities and other information on tools and material lists.

• Curious about costs? A 16-by-20 foot DIY deck costs an average of $19.70 per square foot, which translates to an average cost of $6,300. Hiring a pro costs an average of 50 percent greater than this average cost.

Do follow codes

• Ensure the deck can adequately carry the load. National building codes for decks require them to support at least 40 pounds per square foot.

• Check with your community about deck height or size restrictions.

• Many local governments require a review of your deck plans prior to construction to ensure it's up to code.

Do choose your tools wisely

• Stock your tool box with a measuring tape, various carpenter squares, builder's and chalk lines, and levels. Essential power tools include corded and cordless Skilsaws, drill/driver, sander and jigsaw. Skil offers a 5-tool combo kit with all the essentials and a retail price of under $200.

DONT'S

Don't forget to measure twice and cut once

• Use the right measuring tools for the project.

• New laser-guided tools can help DIYers make more precise cuts.

Don't underestimate building time

• On average, a 12-by-12 foot deck can be completed by two people over two weekends, with more complicated decks usually taking 64 to 85 hours of work.

Don't forget to build safely.

• Use safety goggles when using power tools.

• Use power tools with enhanced safety features, such as Skilsaws that have safety latches to prevent tools from accidentally turning on.

Reward The Work

DIYers can earn backyard bragging rights by entering the Skil Deck-It-Yourself contest. Skil will select five best DIY decks build and completed between May 31 and Aug. 6. Five winners will each receive the following prize package:

• Complete line of Skil Power Tools (10 in total).

• Coleman 5600 Grill.

• Brookstone All Weather Rocker and Grill Alert Talking Remote Thermometer.

• Commercial Grade Teak Bench from outdoordecor.com.

• Quilted Hammock and Wind Chimes from 101 Hammocks.

• Sunpentown Misting Fan.

• Bug Eater Mosquito and Insect Trap.

• Cuisinart Flavor Duo Frozen Yogurt-Ice Cream & Sorbet Maker.

• Dockers Men's Sunglasses.

• Malibu Outdoor Landscaping Lighting.

• Thompson's Water Seal Advanced Wood Protector.

To enter this contest, visit www.BuildWithSkil.com. Entries can also be sent to: Skil Build a Deck, 444 North Michigan Ave., Suite 600, Chicago, IL 60611.

Conway Continuing Ed Program For Real Estate Licenses

The Conway Country School of Real Estate will offer a two-day continuing-education program for real estate licensees on Tuesday, July 13 and Tuesday, July 20 at the Radisson Hotel in Rockland.

The two days of courses are open to all of the state's licensed real estate agents whether active or inactive and will satisfy the state's requirement of 12 hours of continuing-education credit for license renewal.

"We are very pleased to be offering these courses for our own agents and for our colleagues," Chairman Jack Conway said in announcing the program. "A solid education is a very important part of providing good service to our customers, and we are hopeful that many agents will take advantage of this opportunity."

The two-hour classes, which run from 9:00 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. each day, will cover closing and settlement procedures, foreclosures, auctions, estate sales, selling historic homes, lead paint laws, contracts and offers to purchase, among other subjects.

Participants may choose any or all of the six courses being offered to help fulfill their license-renewal requirements, said Education Director Norman LaRocque.

For more information and a registration, call the school at (781) 826-0088 and leave your name, mailing address and telephone number.

The cost is $10 per credit hour ($120 for the full two-day program), and all classes will be held at the Radisson on 929 Hingham St., which is off Exit 14 on Route 3.

The Conway Country School of Real Estate is a division of Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co., which is the largest independently owned real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 810 agents in 43 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Questions To Ask When Considering A Mortgage

(NAPS)—Navigating the mortgage process can be both confusing and overwhelming.

"As interest rates rise, you'll find lenders becoming more competitive to get your business, so be sure to compare multiple loan offers to find the deal that's right for you," said Brian Regan, LendingTree's chief consumer officer.

Here are eight questions to ask when shopping for a mortgage:

1) What is my credit rating? The better your credit, the more options you'll have. The three major consumer credit bureaus are Equifax, Experian and TransUnion. Be sure to correct any inaccuracies on your reports.

2) How much cash do I have on hand for a down payment and closing costs? Lenders generally require anywhere from 5 to 20 percent of a home's value as down payment. You'll need cash to cover closing costs, which can add up to 2 to 6 percent of your loan amount. Ask for a "good faith estimate" in writing to avoid surprises.

3) What type of mortgage makes sense for me? In addition to the traditional 30-year fixed rate mortgage, there are dozens of mortgage loan products available, from adjustable rate mortgages to interest-only and negative amortization loans.

4) When can I lock in my rate? Once you've selected your lender, consider locking-in your interest rate to product yourself against rate increases. Some lenders let you lock in the rate at the beginning of the process, while others require the loan to be approved.

5) Are there points and how do they affect my rate? Points are additional, upfront fees that may be charged by the lender. One point equals 1 percent of your total loan amount. The more points you pay upfront, the lower your interest rate. The fewer points you pay, the higher the interest rate.

6) Can I pay more points upfront in exchange for a lower interest rate? You may be able to reduce your monthly payment and lower your interest costs by paying more points upfront, but consider how long it will take to recover the cost of those points with your monthly payments.

7) What is my APR? The Annual Percentage Rate (APR) includes your interest rate, mortgage insurance, interim interest, points and other fees, and thus makes it easier to compare loan offers on an apples-to-apples basis.

8) What will my monthly payment be? Monthly payment figures should include principal, interest, taxes and homeowner's insurance (PITI), plus mortgage insurance if required.

Fence Me In

(NU) - Fences are built for many reasons. Fences keep children or animals in the yard and define property lines.

Fences also provide security and privacy, and complement other backyard amenities, like pools, spas and decks.

Redwood is often the material of choice for fences, because it is durable, looks good, and resists warping, and splitting.

For fence building tips or other project plans and redwood information, log on to www.calredwood.org.

Prepare Now for Storm Damage

Q. Help! A big storm went through our neighborhood last night, and between the rain and wind and lightning, the biggest tree in our yard was badly damaged. One of the limbs — longer than our roof — is half-broken and looks like it may fall if another storm comes. I'm worried that the limb could fall on our front room unexpectedly. How can I shore it up until the tree service comes? — *Geoffrey L., via e-mail

A. I've sent a quick reply to you by e-mail, Geoffrey, so you can prevent further damage or possible injury from that damaged limb. For the rest of my readers, here's a quick guide to dealing with storm-related tree damage.

In a case like the one above, speed is important. As soon as you discover a huge limb about to fall, contact a tree service to have it removed quickly and safely. If the limb is touching power lines or there is a risk that it will take lines out on its way down, call the fire department immediately and keep everyone away from the tree and its branches.

The same applies to damaged trees: They may not look as if they are about to topple, but don't take any chances. And don't take on the job of felling the tree or limbs yourself. There's no telling when, or if, a tree will fall — even the experts call it wrong sometimes.

If a large limb or tree threatens to fall on your home, evacuate everyone right away and call emergency services. Don't stay behind to collect belongings or shift furniture out of the threatened section of the house; wait until the fire department has assessed the situation, and don't go back inside the house until it declares the area safe.

As you can see, it's difficult to be in control of repairs to your yard or home after a damaging storm. However, you can take some control by preparing beforehand. Store important documents in a fire-resistant safe. Keep a small suitcase filled with basic necessities — like a change of underwear, toiletries and (if necessary) extra baby gear like diapers and bottles — that can be grabbed in a hurry. Place a list of emergency numbers — including police and fire departments, contracting services like plumbing, tree removal or flood cleanup, plus relatives and neighbors — next to your phone. Design and rehearse an evacuation plan with your family.

To minimize tree damage in storms, have a professional thin the limbs in the upper branches of the trees on your property. Less wind resistance means less fallen limbs, and less strain on the tree trunk. Remove any aging or dying trees — plant saplings in their place.

September-October Closing Date For Star Of Sea Church

Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Squantum, the only Quincy parish on the Boston archdiocese hit list, will close sometime between Sept. 1 and Nov. 1.

"They're letting us stay open that long mostly because there is a wedding scheduled for the first week in October," said the Rev. Frederick Barr, the pastor.

Most of the parishioners are expected to transfer to Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy but Father Barr said there has been no decrease in attendance.

The precise closing date has not been chosen nor has the date of the final mass but Father Barr said there will be a closing ceremony at the time of the last mass.

"Then we'll shut the door and lock it," he said.

Senate Bill Aims At Loophole In Fraud Law

The state Senate gave initial approval to a bill that addresses one of the fastest growing crimes in the country – charity identity theft.

The legislation would make it a crime to pose as a non-profit organization with the intent of defrauding people.

Sen. Michael Morrissey said the legislation closes a loophole in anti-fraud statutes passed in 1998 that addressed only individual identity theft.

"We've found charities and businesses are just as vulnerable to this kind of fraud as individual citizens," said Morrissey. "They can lose a lot of money and spend years trying to reestablish their name and reputation."

The Senate bill grew out of concern that criminals were exploiting sympathy for victims of 9/11. Chief sponsor, Sen. Harriette Chandler (D-Worcester), hopes that this bill will make people less nervous about donating to charities or local police and fire associations.

"To fraudulently persuade someone to make a heartfelt donation to a worthy cause, such as a police benevolent association, is shameful," said Chandler. "Law enforcement needs this tool to safeguard charities and protect the public from this type of fraud."

Lawmakers say increasing the penalties for second and subsequent offenses should act as a strong deterrent. Currently, a fraud conviction carries a fine of $5,000 and up to two and a half years in a House of Correction. Under this bill, repeat offenders can be subject to a $25,000 fine of five years in prison, or both.

The legislation now moves to the House for further debate.

Quincy Medical Center Honors 'Truly Remarkable' Volunteers

Quincy Medical Center (QMC) recently hosted its annual "Evening of Appreciation" to honor the dedication of the medical center's active volunteers.

The volunteers, in total, have contributed more than 190,100 hours of service to QMC. (A full-time employee working 40 hours per week would require approximately 91 years to accumulate an equal number of service hours.)

Special recognition was given to volunteers reaching milestones of 100, 500, 1,000, 2,000, 3,000, 4,000, 6,000 and 10,000 hours of service. Among those honored were Pearl Quint, a 98-year-old Quincy resident who was recognized for her 22 years and 10,000 hours of service to QMC.

Tips To Improve Indoor Air Quality In Your Home

(NAPS) Surprising to many Americans is that the indoor air quality in their homes can be five to 10 times worse than outdoor air quality. Because people spend 60 to 90 percent of their time indoors, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency considers indoor air a top environmental risk.

Here are some suggestions that will help:

• It's the humidity: Dust mites and molds thrive in humid conditions, so control relative humidity (aim for 35 to 55 percent). Run bathroom exhaust fans during and for 15 minutes after steamy showers. Empty and clean evaporator trays in dehumidifiers, refrigerators and air conditioners on a regular basis.

• Keep it clean: Regular dusting, vacuuming and surface cleaning can reduce dust mites, pollens and pet dander. Use a HEPA-filter vacuum bag or a vacuum cleaner equipped with a HEPA filter to reduce the ejection and re-suspension of vacuumed particles.

• Ban the butt: Don't allow smoking in your home; limit the use of candles, incense and other soot-producing products.

• In the bedroom: Buy machine-washable pillows and comforters and launder them regularly in hot water to kill dust mites. Launder sheets and pillowcases every 10 days. Sensitive individuals may need additional laundering steps as recommended by their physicians.

• Let it flow: For better air circulation, occasionally air out the house on dry days with low pollen counts. Sensitive individuals may isolate the room they occupy most by closing the door and running a room filtration unit.

• Invest in the best: Equip your home heating and cooling system with high-performance filters such as DuPont Air Filters with advanced Microban protection, which helps to keep trapped microorganisms from multiplying on the filter surface where they could cause odors and clog the filter, requiring your system to work harder.

• Check and replace: Check your air filters at least quarterly and replace them according to the manufacturer recommendations.

• I'm just venting: Be sure that combustion appliances (stoves, fireplaces, furnaces, water heaters, etc.) are properly vented to the outside and the vents are unobstructed.

10 Tips for Reaching Physical Activity Goals

Nearly seven out of ten Americans don't get enough physical activity. Being inactive is more common among women than men, among older adults, and among African Americans and Hispanics/Latinos than Caucasians. Physical inactivity is a risk factor for cancer, diabetes, heart disease and stroke.

Physical activity does not need to be strenuous to bring health benefits. Whether it is a structured exercise program or just part of your daily routine, all exercise adds up to better health. Below are some tips for reaching your physical activity goals.

If you have not been active for a long time, are overweight, have a high risk of coronary heart disease or some other long-term health problem, see your doctor for medical evaluation before beginning a physical activity program.

Don't overdo it. Perform low to moderate-level physical activities that get your heart rate up, especially at first. These "aerobic" activities (e.g., brisk walking, jumping rope, stair climbing, jogging or dancing) build endurance and burn calories.

Slowly increase the duration and intensity of your exercise as you become fit. Over time, work up to 30 to 60 minutes of physical activity, at least five days a week. If you can't dedicate a full 30 minutes to exercise, break your physical activity into three 10-minute intervals.

Choose activities that are fun, not exhausting. Try using music to keep you motivated and entertained.

Add variety. Try not to rely too much on one activity. Find several that you enjoy. That way, exercise will never seem boring or routine.

Wear comfortable, properly fitted footwear and clothing that is appropriate for the weather and the kind of physical activity you choose.

Find a convenient time and a safe place to get active. Try to make it a habit, but be flexible. If you miss an opportunity, work physical activity into your day another way.

Try wearing a pedometer, which measures the distance you travel on foot. Set a long-term goal of 10,000 steps a day, or about five miles. Monitor your average number of steps each day and then add several hundred more steps a day each week until you reach your goal.

Share your physical activity time with others. Make a date with a family member, friend or co-worker to walk or ride bikes. Be an active role model for your children.

Keep a record of your physical activities and reward yourself. Nothing motivates like success!

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

IMPLANT-SUPPORTED DENTURES

Edentulous (toothless) patients are often outfitted with overdentures, which fit over specially prepared teeth. However, in the absence of some tooth roots, the jawbone is not sufficiently able to retain its mass and shape, and begins to shrink. As a result, even well-fitting dentures will shift and bounce, which leads to sore spots and difficulty chewing. To address this problem, implant-supported dentures may be utilized, which make use of two or more titanium implants to anchor the dentures in place. The implants replace the roots of missing teeth, integrate with the jaw, and virtually become part of the jawbone. Implants help retain jawbone mass and shape. As a result, the jawbone stabilized and dentures remain firmly in place.

Technological advances have allowed for greater improvements in dentures. Dentures can now be supported by implants, to allow for more comfort and a better fit. We provide a wide range of innovative dental services specifically tailored to the needs and wants of our patients. Ultimately, you manage your own oral health, so call 617-479-6220 for an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street where at all times, our focus is on you and what you expect from dentistry. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Dental implants can be used to hold a single tooth, bridge, or denture firmly in place.

Jorgensen Leads Quincy Past Morrisette

By CHRIS POISSON

Recent Games Recap -- Page 28

Ian Jorgensen had to pitch the first of three games between the Quincy and Morrisette American Legion baseball teams Monday night at Adams Field.

Not only was he facing a powerful Morrisette squad, but five former Quincy High School teammates were in the lineup, including ace pitcher John Folino.

Jorgensen, who is headed to UMass-Amherst in the fall on a football scholarship, yielded just two hits as he overpowered the opposition with his blistering fastball and sharp curve in a convincing 7-0 victory.

"Ian wanted the ball against Morrisette and he pitched one heck of a game," said Quincy manager Mark Jaehnig. "We talked before the game about trying to go up the middle and to the opposite field against Folino, who is one of the best hurlers in the league. Tonight our group got the job done. It's always nice to beat Morrisette. Hopefully, this will be a turning point for us."

Quincy (4-5), which played Weymouth Tuesday and Braintree Wednesday, will head to Stoughton Friday before returning home against Canton Sunday and against Cohasset next Monday.

"We were beaten," said Morrisette manager Ray Cattaneo. "We still have to play them two more times. I don't know if it was because it was our sixth straight game or if we just didn't come to play. But it happens. We'll bounce back."

"Ian pitched well," he added. "I figured he would be a little more wild. He got it over and he threw hard. I'm told he's a football player, but he should've stuck to baseball."

Morrisette (5-4), which played Stoughton Wednesday, will host Canton Friday at 8 p.m., travel to Milton Saturday, to Cohasset Sunday, to Dorchester next Monday and return home next Tuesday to play Milton.

With a large crowd on hand, Quincy quickly grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first inning. With one out, Andy McAllister reached on catcher's interference and Colin Walsh singled to left, which the fielder bobbled to put runners on second and third. Dean Sandonato punched a single to center to plate both runners.

In the third inning, Morrisette loaded the bases with one out but failed to produce a run. After walking leadoff hitter Brian Sullivan, Jorgensen seemed frustrated. He walked Steve Reardon on four pitches and after a strikeout he walked Steve Priscella to load the bases.

But Jorgensen regained his composure. He got the next batter to ground to third baseman Paul Copson, who threw home for the force out, and induced another groundout to end the inning.

"That was frustrating," Cattaneo said. "We had the right hitters up, but we just couldn't capitalize. A base hit at that time would've made a huge difference."

Quincy tacked on a run in the bottom half when Sandonato lined a double into the right-center gap that scored Walsh (walk).

Quincy scored a pair of runs with two outs in the fourth inning to extend its lead to 5-0. Jamie Chioccio singled to center and stole second base. John Fitzgerald drew a walk and on the play, Chioccio took off for third. After Fitzgerald stole second, Drew Loud stroked a two-run single.

In the sixth inning, Quincy scored two unearned runs to account for the final score. Sean Sullivan reached on an error to lead off the inning. Chioccio laid down a bunt, but the throw sailed into right field that allowed pinch-runner Don Sweeney to score and Chioccio to reach third. Fitzgerald drove him home with a single up the middle past a drawn-in infield.

Jorgensen's former teammate Steve Sullivan had both hits for Morrisette, a second-inning double and a sixth-inning single.

The program is open to boys and girls ages 9-14. Participants are not required to have previous track experience or be a member of a community track program. The meet is also open to participants from surrounding communities.

Each participant may compete in up to three events. If three events are chosen, one event is required to be a field event.

"Learning, participation, enjoyment and physical exercise are the main elements of the program," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "I must stress the importance of the basic philosophy of this program ... to stimulate the participation of all eligible children. It is no way to be construed as an all star program for chosen individuals.

"Through proper guidance and assistance from the Quincy Recreation Department, it is our firm belief and hope that we may positively shape the direction of the future of these children."

If you own a home, you may be aware that, unless your indoor air is properly filtered, it can be changed as quickly and as often as necessary. In many respects, the same is also true of your vehicle's interior. Most of European vehicles first introduced cabin air filters as part of the HVAC system. Since the cabin air filters have become standard equipment on most American vehicles, many consumers are unaware that they need to be changed. To effectively trap pollen, particles and debris, cabin air filters must be replaced according to the owner manual guidelines.

Special License Plate To Benefit Mini-Fenway

Mini-Fenway Park, Inc., a non-profit youth organization building a half size replica of Boston's Fenway Park in Quincy, announces a new Massachusetts Special License Plate to be available this fall.

Approved by the State Legislature, Registry of Motor Vehicles and Major League Baseball, the license plate will feature an artist's rendition of the 92-year old Fenway Park. Proceeds from sales of the license plate will go toward the construction of Mini-Fenway Park and the implementation of its youth baseball and softball programs.

"We are grateful to the Boston Red Sox for giving us permission to use the image of Fenway Park to raise money for Mini-Fenway Park," said Ron Iacobucci, CEO of Mini-Fenway Park, Inc. "Our legislative delegation under the leadership of Senator Michael Morrissey did an outstanding job in getting legislative approval for the Fenway Park License Plate.

"We are working with the Registry of Motor Vehicles to bring this Plate into production and have entered into a licensing agreement with Major League Baseball. The Fenway Park Plate will give Red Sox fans and youth baseball and softball supporters an opportunity to back Mini-Fenway Park," Iacobucci said.

Supporters of youth sports facilities and programs, as well as fans of the Red Sox, will want to show their pride and purchase the new colorful plate for their vehicle. The first 1,500 people to order a plate can select their own number from 101 to 1,500.

Orders for the license plate, which is $40 for two years, will be taken initially by Mini-Fenway Park.

To obtain an application, or for more information, call Mini-Fenway Park at 617-471-3332, or email www.minifenwaypark.org.

Mini-Fenway Park, Inc. is a 501(c)(3) non-profit youth organization with a mission to build a state-of-the-art facility replicating Boston's Fenway Park.

The organization's plan is to provide top-quality baseball, softball, and T-ball programs for children ages 4 to 17 living in New England.

Mini-Fenway Park will be located on 12 acres of Division of Conservation & Recreation land in the foothills of the Blue Hills Reservation in Quincy. Overlooking the Boston skyline, the Mini-Fenway Park site will be accessible from Exit 8 on U.S. Interstate 93.

Working Out With a Partner

Q: My husband and I have decided to work out together. However, both of us have different strengths and goals. Is it possible for us to work out together and still reach our independent goals?

A. It is wonderful that you and your husband have made this decision! Having a workout partner can help keep you accountable, motivated, encouraged and committed to your workout routine, and can make reaching your fitness goals easier and possibly more fun.

Although you may have different fitness goals than your husband, a few modifications can be made to your individual workouts to produce a successful partnership. Here are some suggestions:

• When planning your workouts, decide what goals you have in common. For example, if you both have a goal of completing 40 minutes of cardiovascular exercise each workout, you both can complete the task together even though you may not work out at the same intensity. For instance, if your husband enjoys running but you are unable to keep up with his pace, ride a bike or in-line skate instead.

• When it comes to strength training, many people believe that if one workout partner is stronger than the other, their workout routines will be completely different. This is not necessarily true. Choosing the correct type of exercise, learning the proper technique and applying the appropriate intensity to the exercise is what is important.

For example, a push-up can be modified to fit most exercise routines. Whether done with knees on the ground, against a wall or in a standard push-up position, the benefits of the exercise can be achieved in several different ways.

• Complete exercises for the same muscle groups together. If your workout is designed to work your legs on one day, complete lunges while your husband is doing a set of squats. You can do different exercises and still be working the same muscle group.

• You can also work different muscle groups together. While completing exercises on the floor, you may be doing lower back exercises while your husband is performing abdominal exercises.

Keep your workout sessions challenging and fun. Avoid competition. Remember, working out with your husband is a great way to spend time together while offering support and encouragement to achieve a fit and healthy lifestyle.

A Thought For The Week

Although Father's Day was not officially proclaimed a national holiday until former President Richard Nixon signed a congressional resolution in 1972, fathers have been honored in June since the early 1900s.

Mrs. John Bruce Dodd of Spokane, Washington is generally thought to have done more to originate Father's Day than any other American. She became known as the "Mother of Father's Day." In June, 1910, the first observance was held in Spokane and slowly the day came to be recognized in other cities, some thinking they were the first do so. Many Presidents through the years helped observe the holiday and The National Father's Day Committee furthered the holiday when it was created in 1935. They dedicated the day to "building a democratic world through wholesome child upbringing."

Through the years Mrs. Dodd was approached many times to endorse many gifts and products for Father's Day, but she refused. She had very definite ideas how the day should be observed. "It should include family attendance at church, a little gift for Dad and some tender words you've always longed to say to him," she said in 1953.

Quincy, Morrisette Legions Recent Highlights

The Quincy and Morrisette American Legion baseball teams entered Monday night's showdown coming off difficult, one-run losses the night before.

Morrisette fell to Braintree, 3-2, at home. Steve Reardon pitched well, allowing nine hits and no walks in a complete game performance. But the defense failed behind him, committing four errors that led to three unearned runs.

Down 3-0, Joe Priscella got Morrisette on the board with a fourth inning RBI single and Steve Priscella added an RBI single in the fifth.

Quincy dropped a 5-4 heartbreaker at West Roxbury. Justin Thorley had a two-out single in the third inning, but West Roxbury evened the score with its own two-out hit.

Jamie Chioccio belted a two-run triple in the fourth to put Quincy ahead, 3-1. But in the bottom half, West Roxbury pushed across four runs.

Andy McAllister (two hits) scored Quincy's final run with a successful double steal. John Santon pitched a strong game.

June 19

Morrisette scored five first-inning runs en route to a 6-3 home win over Weymouth. Ray Marchand had an RBI double and John Folino and Reardon each lined two-run singles. Brian Sullivan knocked in a run in the third inning.

Anthony Boyle picked up the victory, giving up two runs on five hits with eight strikeouts and five walks in five innings. Steve Sullivan pitched two innings in relief, escaping an inherited first-and-second jam in the sixth.

June 18

Morrisette downed West Roxbury, 5-2, at home. Sullivan tossed a complete-game, one-hitter with nine strikeouts. In the seventh, he dropped a pop-up and yielded a two-run home run. He rebounded to strike out the side to end the game.

Morrisette scored four runs in the second as Don Cook stroked a two-run single and Steve Priscella and Marchand each had RBI singles.

Quincy eked out a gut-wrenching 2-1 victory at Weymouth in a steady drizzle that seemed to cool off both teams offenses.

Sean Sullivan picked up the win, allowing one hit and no earned runs with eight strikeouts over five innings. Dean Sandonato earned the save, with the help of third baseman Paul Copson, who snared a liner that would have scored two runs.

Thorley blasted a towering, second-inning home run. Quincy scored the winning run with two outs in the sixth. Sandonato smashed a double and scored when the Weymouth pitcher walked three straight hitters.

June 17

Morrisette suffered a 3-1 loss at Canton. Gary Dalton gave up one earned run on six hits in six innings. Marchand plated Cook (single) with a single for Quincy's lone run in the fourth inning.

June 16

Morrisette routed Weymouth, 15-3, as it exploded for nine runs in the third inning. Matt Haskins had a two-run single, Joe Priscella (3-for-5, 3 RBI, 3 runs) a two-run double and Marchand (3-for-5, 2 RBI, 3 runs) an RBI double to highlight the inning.

Liam Powers (2-for-4, 2 runs) and Brian Sullivan (2-for-4, 2 RBI, run) each had multiple-hit games. Folino yielded two runs in five innings for the win and Joe Caparrotta pitched two innings in relief.

Quincy suffered a 6-4 loss to Milton at home in a rematch from the previous night. Thorley pitched a solid game except for three costly hit batters.

Colin Walsh had three hits. Ian Jorgensen hit a booming two-run triple and Copson knocked in Sullivan (triple). Second baseman Don Sweeney played well defensively.

June 15

Quincy dropped a 6-2 game at Milton. Thorley, Walsh and Chioccio singled to give Quincy a 1-0 lead in the second, but Milton tied the game in the bottom half.

In the fourth, Jorgensen singled, stole second and scored on Brendan McDonald's single for a 2-1 lead.

Unfortunately, two costly fielding errors led to three Milton runs in the sixth. Jorgensen pitched well enough to win against the powerful Milton lineup.

North Quincy High School Unveils Solar Power

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Solar power has officially arrived in the City of Quincy.

A group of environmentally-conscious organizations have joined the city in promoting the benefits of solar energy by installing solar panels on the rooftop of North Quincy High School. The solar panels and its technology will harness the sunlight to help power the school and educate students on the benefits of solar energy.

The panels, which were installed on Earth Day, use semiconductor technology to convert sunlight into pollution-free electricity.

The project was revealed to the public last week at a ribbon cutting ceremony held at the school. About 100 North Quincy High School students, city officials and representatives from organizations that made the project possible attended the ceremony.

"With the panels, we are hoping to create a broad base of students, teachers and parents that are genuinely concerned with saving energy," said Kara Culgin, a senior at North Quincy High. She was one of a team of students that successfully competed in the Massachusetts Envirothon last month. The team's project focused on the installation of the panels and emphasized the importance of renewable energy and energy conservation.

Eventually, the solar panel technology will be routed to a computer system inside the school so students may study and learn more about solar power. The solar panels will also lend power to the school, allowing for lower electrical bills.

At the ceremony, Mayor William Phelan praised the efforts of everyone involved and called the project "one small step toward a cleaner environment and a better future."

Leslie Grossman, representative from Mass Energy, said the school could save up to $500 per year in electric bills due to the solar panels.

The project was made by possible by the Massachusetts Energy Consumers Alliance, a non-profit organization that promotes the use of "green" energy, such as wind and solar power. Other project partners include the Massachusetts Technology Collaborative, the City of Quincy, the Quincy Rotary Club and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 103, who donated the cost of labor performed by Lighthouse Electrical Contracting Inc. of Pembroke.

The installation at North Quincy High School is further subsidized by the customers of New England GreenStart, a product offered to customers of Mass. Electric by Mass Energy. Through the purchase of renewable energy certificates, New England GreenStart encourages the development of clean energy projects.

Larry Chretian, executive director of Massachusetts Energy Consumers Alliance, former city councillor and graduate of North Quincy High School, said the country is becoming more energy efficient, but more work has to be done.

NORTH QUINCY HIGH School science students stand alongside solar panels which were recently installed on the roof of the school. The panels will be used as an educational tool and save electricity costs. Pictured here (from the left, sitting) Rita Buseher, Elyse Dolbec, Kara Culgin and Kristina Pan, (standing) Philip Wang, Eric Karanxha, Science teacher Ray Whitehouse, Jake Smith, Matt Schow, Nick Rice and Rey Chang.

He noted the high level of support for renewable energy in Quincy. "This community has really shown its commitment to clean energy and we are looking forward to working together on future projects," said Chretian.
